UNDERWRITERS WANT CHANGES

Say Present Fire Fighting Equipment is in Good Shape But More Needed.

DEPT. DISCIPLINE GOOD

Recommends City Electrician as Suggested Sometime Ago by Councilman Cose—Suggests Shifting of No. 1 Company to Another Section.

Recommending forty-seven changes in the fire prevention facilities in Plainfield and North Plainfield, and urging improvements which would boost the tax rate materially in both places, the committee on fire prevention of the National Board of Fire Underwriters has just made public a report on conditions in the city and borough. The report follows an investigation made in the two municipalities during April of this year by Engineers R. C. Dennett, C. A. Whitney, H. E. Newell and E. J. Richards, and full acknowledgement is given of the help which they received from Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of the city, and Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of the borough, as well as the various officials of the city and borough departments and the Plainfield Union Water Company.

The report covers twenty-five large pages, and a map, and is undoubtedly the most exhaustive document of the kind ever printed about local conditions. No words are spared where the investigators found that things were not just right, and they are equally commendatory about the conduct and handling of the men and apparatus in the department. After going into detail concerning everything related to fire fighting and prevention, the report summarizes conditions in this city as follows.

City in General.

Population about 23,000. City principally residential, with several manufacturing plants. Surface mainly level; some steep grades in eastern section. Street widths fair; large proportion paved and in fair to good condition. High winds frequent. Winter temperature sometimes severe. Loss per fire moderate; average number of fires and loss per capita low.

Fire-Fighting Facilities.

Water Supply—Privately owned and operated works; management capable and efficient; good records. Supply pumped from wells adequate for present needs. Non-fireproof pumping station with much combustible material in old portion; protection fair; pumping capacity adequate in connection with standpipes, new reservoir and emergency supply. Distribution in one service; consumption high. Pressures fair and well maintained. Mainly good distribution system. Gate valves widely spaced; in good condition. Hydrants of satisfactory size; in only fair conditon; widely spaced.

Fire Department—Part full paid and part call. Financial support fairly liberal, but not sufficient for proper strength. Companies have too few permanent men. No civil service requirements, but appointments for indefinite terms. Apparatus mainly well distributed; additional protection needed in southeastern section. Engine capacity inadequate. Chemical service fair. Automobile ladder truck needed. Hose supply adequate; part in doubtful condition. Minor equipment fair. Discipline good. No drills. Response to box alarms satisfactory; to telephone alarms poorly arranged. Fire methods mainly good. Building inspections not of sufficient frequency. Records fairly complete.

Fire Alarm System—Automatic system, maintained by contract; does not receive proper attention to insure reliable service. Headquarters in non-fireproof building with serious exposures. Boxes in good condition; distribution good in mercantile district, poor elsewhere; many boxes of unreliable type; no red bands on supporting poles; red lights poorly maintained. No separate alarm circuit, except at headquarters. Circuits all overhead and in poor condition; mostly on poles with high tension lines; subject to interruption such as recently occurred. No telephone switchboard. Operation slow. Frequent inspections. Records incomplete.

Fire Department Auxiliaries—No State fire marshal laws; fire chief local fire marshal. Incendiary fires investigated by fire chief and police department; two recent arrests, but no convictions. Co-operation of police with fire department good. Public Service Corporation sends men to some fires. Telephones much used for transmitting fire alarms. No central station watch service. Auxiliary fire alarm boxes, maintained by city in schools and hospital. Private fire apparatus of value of premises where installed. Substantial outside

AMATEUR THESPIANS IN FINE PRODUCTION

Plainfield High School Seniors Give Annual Play in the Theatre.

The class of 1914 of the Plainfield High School presented "If I Were King" in the Plainfield theatre Saturday night entertaining a large audience of critics. It may be said that the play was one of the best ever given by a high school cast in this city and the smoothness with which it was produced was evidence of the excellent coaching the participants have received during the preliminary drills at the hands of Miss Katherine Sminck, H. B. Biddle and Samuel B. Howe, the coaches. Mr. Howe, a former Plainfield High School instructor, dramatized the production.

The leading roles taken by Cortland Fleming, William Thomsen, Miss Elizabeth Doig and Miss Emily Garda, were played to perfection, the students being particularly well adapted to the parts in which they were figures.

ALL IS NOT JOY IN THE FITZ HOUSEHOLD

Prizefighter's Daughter Asks to Be Allowed to Stay With Bob's Manager.

"Ruby" Robert Fitzsimmons, of roped arena fame, created one of the spasmodic uprisings in the little burg of Dunellen, Friday, when he rushed into the borough hall while court was in session and demanded immediate attention from all present, declaring that Mrs. John Meek, wife of his manager, had kidnapped his daughter Rosalie. When he demanded a warrant be sworn out for Mrs. Meek, the action was denied by Judge von Minden.

However, Mrs. Meek was escorted to the hall by Marshal Tarpey, who was deputized to bring her to the court and was accompanied by Rosalie Fitzsimmons. The latter related a tale of woe to the court that excited the judge's sympathy and immediate efforts were taken to smooth matters over. According to the daughter, her father came home in an angry frame of mind the night previous and while in a "huff," it is alleged, ordered her out of the house. She was taken to the home of Mrs. Meek and sheltered for the time being, Bob thinking that Mrs. Meek was kidnapping Rosalie.

In court the daughter testified that life in the paternal home was unbearable and pleaded to be allowed to stay with Mrs. Meek. When asked by the court whether or not he would consent to this arrangement, the man of many battles shouted back in the affirmative and shuffled out of the hall.

Mrs. Fitzsimmons has started proceedings against her husband in the Chicago courts for an absolute divorce on charges of alleged cruelty. Since the parents separated Rosalie has been keeping house for her father in Dunellen and says she also has been subjected to cruelty at the hands of Fitzsimmons.

REV. DR. HERRING'S TOUCHING TRIBUTE TO FATHER MILLER

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, at the close of a strong sermon yesterday morning, one of a series on "the Creed of an Evangelical Christian," concluded by reading an excerpt from an article appearing in "The Constructive Quarterly," over the signature of the Bishop of Corona, in which the writer expressed a sincere hope for the ultimate union of all Christians.

The reading of this article led Dr. Herring to allude very touchingly to the serious illness of his friend, Father W. H. Miller, of St. Joseph's church, and in concluding the services again referred to Father Miller in his closing prayer.

PHILLIP ALLEN.

Phillip Allen, the three and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen, of Watchung, died Saturday after a short illness. The funeral services will be held this afternoon at the home of the parents. Rev. George Bowers will officiate.

"HORSE DAY" IS BEING OBSERVED

Local S. P. C. A. Making Personal Appeal for Funds for Its Work.

SEEK CO-OPERATION

In a Plan of Education for the Better Treatment of Horses—The American Humane Society Offers Valuable Suggestions.

Plainfield in common with other cities throughout the country is today observing "National Horse Day," and in connection with the plans for the local observance a tag day has been arranged, the members of the S. P. C. A., making a personal solicitation for funds with which to carry on their work. In these days great progress has been made in the interest of the horse and more and more people are realizing the great value of the animal and the importance of humane treatment.

Every horse will work better and longer if given three ample meals daily; plenty of pure water, proper shoes, sharpened in slippery weather, a blanket in cold weather, a stall 6x9 or enough room to lie down, a fly net in summer and two weeks vacation each year.

The American Humane Education Society, of Boston, in a pamphlet issued recently gives most excellent advice on "How to Treat a Horse," which should prove of interest to every owner and lover of horses. Among other things it says:

"It is wise to treat a horse well. Men who are well treated are generally happier and better able to do good work than men who are illtreated. It is the same in the case of horses. It will pay you to treat your horse well.

"The reason why you feel pain in your body when you are hurt is because you have nerves. Horses have nerves and feel pain as well as you. Think of that, and do not make your horse suffer.

"Horses that are used very little, for instance, for an hour or so a day of pleasure driving in good weather, have weak eyes caused by the long hours in the dark stable. If possible, have windows so that horses can put their heads out of them.

"A horse should always be well fed. A working horse should have beside his hay, twelve quarts of grain a day, half oats and half corn. If all corn is used, soak it in water until it swells. This will prevent colic. A driving horse should have all oats instead of part corn. There is no danger of over-feeding an old horse.

"Be sure to give your horse plenty of good water. You know how it feels to be thirsty; but do not water immediately after eating, wait at least three quarters of an hour.

"A horse should be kept clean and have a good dry bed at night. When you clean your horse do not use the currycomb roughly. If he has a fine skin, do not use a comb at all, but a hard brush. See that your horse's collar fits. An ill-fitting collar will make sores and cause much suffering. If the harness begins to rub anywhere and make a sore place, wash the sore with clean water and castile soap, then place pads on each side of the place that touched the sore.

"High check reins cause injury to the neck muscles, to the lungs, to the blood vessels, to the nerves and even to the knees. Go to a good blacksmith and keep your horse's shoes in good order. They should be removed every four or five weeks.

"Keep the stable clean if you want your horse to be well. Keep a lump of salt in the corner of the stall where he can get it when he likes it. Never use a tight check-rein. It is cruel. He does not need blinders either. They are likely to injure the eyes of any horse.

"Never overload your horse. When the roads are bad, make your loads lighter and when going up or down a hill let the horse take his time. When you leave your horse standing give him a chance to rest. If it is on a hill block the wheels with stones Keep your wheels well greased.

"Do not let a horse stand two or three days without exercise. Take him out of the stable every day long enough to exercise him. Be sure to give him fresh air also. When your horse is tired you need to do something to make him fresh the next day. As soon as you get to the stable, sponge his nose and the part under his tail, wipe off the harness marks and rub his legs downward; also, if possible, bathe his legs from the knee down with hot water and rub them dry.

"Give your horse plenty of stall room; if possible a box stall, but if not, make his stall as wide as possible. If a horse does not eat well have his teeth examined by a veterinarian. They may need filing.

"Sore back on horses is often caused by the shafts bearing too heavily on the back. For all wagons over one and three-eights inches axle, stiff shafts properly hung are better for

FR. ZIMMER'S ABLE SERMON

Delivers Bacalaureate Address at Mt. St. Mary College.

IMPRESSIVE EXERCISES

"Woman's Particular Mission and Mission of the Alumnae," Theme of Address—Reception of New Members Into the Sodality.

Baccalaureate services were held at Mt. St. Mary College, yesterday afternoon, in connection with the commencement week program. The alumnae formed in the college corridor. The senior class led, in cap and gown, followed first by those of the alumnae, who were in academic robes and then by those who wore the conventional white lace veils. Moving out of the main college entrance, the procession passed the academy and marched through the open ranks of the students up the broad marble stairs to the chapel, where a special program was carried out for the occasion.

The Baccalaureate sermon was given by Father Joseph Zimmer, of Raritan, who spoke of woman's particular mission and the mission of the alumnae. In part he said:

"Woman possesses natural grace and gifts, which enoble her and raise her high in the estimation of man, and with the coming of Christianity she was placed on her proper plane. With the aid of holy religion those natural gifts are touched and improved and heightened by the supernatural sources, making her most worthy of the respect and regard of mankind. The young women whose school life is drawing to a close in this splendid institution have been fed and nourished with the teachings of their holy faith and strengthened with the mysteries of our Holy Church. They have had advantages superior in technical education, but best of all their lives have been moulded under the influence of religion and by the lives of those who have consecrated themselves to God for the welfare of human souls.

"They go forth now to exercise the strong influence which only a Christian woman can exert. They go forth to shed lustre on the Alma Mater which has nourished, watched over, and guarded them during the years of their school life. They go forth to produce fruits worthy of their training. The measure of their success will not be according to the applause and admiration of the world, but according to their conformity to the will of God. They begin a new period of life in which to prepare for the final examination; and our prayer is that when that final and supreme test will have come they will be found full of good deeds which will gain for them, not the perishable but the immortal crown of eternal happiness.

The tribute to the Queen of Heaven, "Our Tainted Nature's Solitary Boast," was beautifully rendered by Miss Katherine Virginia Griffin. It was composed by Miss Griffin for the occasion. Miss Isabel Mullen delighted the hearts of all present by the artistic manner in which she sang the "Farewell to May."

Rev. John A. Baldwin the College chaplain received the new members into the Sodality and gave the Benediction assisted by Rev. Father Zimmer.

DRAMATIC CLUB WILL PRESENT "GOING HOME"

The executive committee of the Rutgers College Dramatic Club have unanimously decided to produce a play entitled "Going Home," which will be written this summer by Earl Silvers, '13, of Rahway.

The play, as outlined by Mr. Silvers, will be a four-act comedy of college life. The scene will be laid at Rutgers, and every effort will be made to reproduce the spirit and life of the New Brunswick institution. The action wil center around a group of students and their guests at a week-end house party, and the cast wil include about eight characters.

It is the intention of the Dramatic Club to produce the play in ten or more cities throughout the State before the final production is given in New Brunswick during the junior prom week. Efforts will be made to visit Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield and other Union county cities.

HONOR TO THE LIVING AND DEAD

Father B. M. Bogan Preaches Eloquent Sermon to Veterans.

RECALLS HEROIC DEEDS

"The Glorious Temple of Liberty Stands Today on An Imperishable Basis," Says the Speaker—Impressive Musical Program.

Upon invitation of Father B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, the members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps, attended divine service at that church last night, when an eloquent sermon was preached by Father Bogan, the subject being appropriate to the occasion. The veterans and other guests were met by a guard of honor and escorted to reserved seats. During the service there was special music by the choir under the direction of Miss Mary Smith, organist.

Prior to his sermon, Father Bogan recited an impressive poem entitled "Decoration Day." He then spoke as follows:

"Soldiers of the Grand Army, I bid you welcome to St. Mary's. Your presence here this evening, in such goodly numbers — veterans and friends as well of Winfield Scott Post — draws closer bonds of Christian friendship which bind us in common fealty to the one true God in memorial service of the dead. In the name of our congregation, I thank you for this respect which despite honest differences of religious belief, is so typical of constitutional Americanism, liberty of conscience and freedom of worship. With bowed head and reverent tone, we salute this evening the memory of the brave and illustrious dead. Here we hold communion with the spirits of the embattled hosts who in strife for liberty without slavery sank beneath the sulphurous clouds of war; and today a grateful nation pays tribute of indebtedness to the living and the dead, through whom we enjoy the priceless heritage of our homes, our firesides and our freedom. By their heroic deeds and loving labors, the Union still survives. The glorious Temple of Liberty stands today upon an imperishable basis. The Sun of Freedom which gilds our mountain tops with glory, darts its genial beam into our deepest valleys and pours its effulgent radiance into every cranny of our continent, has been immovably set in the firmament of the Republic by the creative fiat of those multitudious voices whose shouts for liberty, once heard from Bull Run to Appomatox, are now hushed forever in the silence of the tomb.

"For many veteran survivors the last long march has already started. Down the decline their steps are tending toward the inevitable grave that shall hide them forever from our sight.

"As the long train of ages glides away,
The sons of men shall, one by one,
Be gathered to thy side
By those who in their turn shall follow them.

"And as the ranks grow thinner, stronger grow the arms of friendship, until we lay their comrades down, and scatter flowers about their final resting place. And so in sacred song and sentiment we gather tonight to keep alive the memories of those sad, heroic days of your young manhood, binding closer and closer together as year follows year the ties of heroic fellowship. How thoroughly in keeping with the time-honored and beautiful custom of strewing the graves of patriot dead with the new spring flowers is this evening's celebration when in sacred song and grateful prayer we come to pay our tribute of religion to our common God, for religion lifts into a higher spirit the principle of patriotism and breathes into it the spirit of immortality. Vain, indeed, were the sacrifices of our nation's heroes upon the altar of their country, if to God were not entrusted the perpetuation of their work.

"Honest recognition has ever striven to confer upon merit an adequate reward. But for heroes such as those whose memory we commemorate, no reward can meet the measure of their worth. Hence we stoop to Mother Earth and gather flowers to deck the graves of the honored dead, conscious that our tribute is a symbol of a nation's gratitude. To us of the nation's younger generation the memory of those warrior days comes like the memory of a troubled dream; so far away they seem, those

"Sad but troubled years,
Writ in a nation's heart in blood and tears.

"But to the survivors of the bloody fields such celebrations bring memories of a dreadful realization. Each

HOAGLAND MARTINE'S CHOICE FOR P. O. JOB

It is Expected His Name Will Be Sent to the Department Today.

Alvin E. Hoagland, of West Front street, as stated exclusively in the Daily Press of Friday, is the choice of United States Senator James E. Martine for postmaster of Plainfield, and it is understood that he has sent the local man's name to President Wilson for appointment to the office. For several months, following the announcement that Congressman Tuttle had decided to allow Mr. Martine to name the man, it has been the belief here that Mr. Hoagland would be selected.

Mr. Hoagland received his first information concerning the fact that he had been picked for the office through the Daily Press. As yet he has not heard from Senator Martine, but is expecting word at any time. Of course, he is much pleased over the turn of affairs and he and his friends believe that the name will be confirmed soon after the President sends it to the Senate, which it is expected will be done today.

WILL BUY ANOTHER AUTOMOBILE ENGINE

Councilmanic Fire Committee Decides to Advertise for Bids.

The fire committee of the Common Council has decided to advertise for bids for a triple combination auto fire engine to be placed in the Netherwood firehouse. The vehicle will be a combination auto fire engine, hook and ladder and hose cart combined and will be even a better apparatus than the Nott engine now doing duty at headquarters. The pumping capacity will be fully as big as the latter engine and will be designed to meet all requirements for the Netherwood section. The ordinance advertising for bids is now in the hands of Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, and will be inserted in the trade papers within the next few days.

It is believed that the apparatus planned can be obtained for about $8,000. It will repiace the present combination chemical hose wagon and also the steam fire engine now located in No. 4 house. This will be the only new piece of apparatus added to the department this year, but it is the intention of the committee to motorize all other vehicles in the city early next year.

WOMAN CALLED HIM NAMES, SHE IS MADE TO PAY FINE

Facing complaints charging them with disorderly conduct, in the city court this morning, Mrs. Rosie Cook, of 615 West Fourth street, and William Page, an undertaker, both colored, aired their troubles before City Judge W. G. DeMeza, following which a fine of $5 was imposed on the woman. Each appeared as complainant against the other and while on the stand related conflicting stories.

Page testified that he went to the Cook home to collect a bill for meat amounting to $3.84 and was called vile names by the woman. She said Page threatened to kill her. The woman was represented by V. W. Nash, Jr.

THREE APPLICANTS WILL BE NAMED AS PATROLMEN

When the Common Council meets for its June meeting tonight it is understood that the names of three applicants for positions on the police force will be recommended for endorsement by the councilmanic police board. The men whose names will be sent in are Jack Fritts, John Neylon and William Hayles.

These three men took the recent examinations and were among the few who came up to the stringent requirements demanded. Fritts is the well known athlete who won third place in the all around athletic championships of America on the Celtic Park field two weeks ago.

EXCITING HUNT FOR BORO WOMAN

Mrs. Frank Culber, of Dunellen, Found After Strange Disappearance.

MENTALLY UNBALANCED

Searching Party Formed by Sounding of Fire Alarm—Clairavoyant's Clue Leads to Whereabouts of the Missing Party.

The sudden disappearance of Mrs. Mary Culber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wrage, from her home on Walnut street, Dunellen, Friday night, aroused the whole borough, and as a means of finding the woman the fire alarm was sounded bringing together a large number of people who formed searching parties in which people of other nearby municipalities joined.

The woman was finally found at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at a place known as Possum Hollow in the vicinity of Lincoln, when it was discovered that she had been suffering from mental troubles, her mind being almost a blank. She was rational for brief periods and would then lapse into a condition whereby her mind would wander and she failed to recognize anyone. She was taken to her home where she is now suffering from nervous prostration.

Mrs. Culber has been mentally unbalanced she being deserted by her husband, Frank Culber, about a year ago. In company with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Fred Wrage, she attended a moving picture theatre at Plainfield on Friday afternoon. It was while on her way home from this city that she got lost and wandered aimlessly about the countryside. She was escorted part of the way home, and it was expected that she had reached there in safety.

Later, when Mrs. Culver failed to appear at her home at midnight, the relatives became worried and sent out a general alarm, Mrs. Henry Wrage walking a distance of a half-mile to her son's home to arouse the household. It was at the suggestion of John Fedderman that it was decided to ring the fire alarm as a means of forming a searching party. In a few minutes a large crowd assembled and being informed as to what occurred, parties of twos and threes were soon hunting in the highways and byways for the lost woman.

The relatives were joined by Chief Monhan, J. Newton Apgar, Chief McDonald, of the Lincoln police department, and other officials in their persistent search. Mayor George W. Harris, of Lincoln, later joined one of the parties. Mr. Harris really secured the first trace of the woman, when he discovered a bottle of medicine, which it was known that Mrs. Culber had purchased. Keeping close on the trail, the party soon noticed Mrs. Culber emerging from a woods near Possum Hollow, near the Port Reading Railroad. When questioned at first she gave rational answers, but her mind soon was a blank.

A curious co-incident was that Mrs. Henry Wrage, Mrs. Culber's mother, and her sister, Mrs. Allegar, of Plainfield, consulted a clairavoyant in this city, who informed them that the woman would be found at a certain point southwest of Dunellen, which late revents proved to be correct.

WALPOLE CASE POSTPONED BY JUDGE ROSALSKY TODAY

Sitting in Part IV, General Sessions, of the Criminal Court of New York, this morning, Judge Rosalsky adjourned the arraignment of Lynus Walpole, Jr., of this city, indefinitely. Walpole is indicted on three counts in the State of New York as the result of the part he is alleged to have played in the Ruth Naylor abduction case here several months ago.

The Plainfield witness in the case and the parties involved were summoned to New York this morning to be present at the trial and when the postponement was announced futile efforts were made to find out when it would be tried. Walpole, the defendant, is confined in the Tombs prison in New York, pending arraignment. He was extradited from this city two weeks ago.

WILL GO TO JAIL.

Charged with fighting in the house located at 664 South Second street, Mathew MacGrath, William McGrath and Henry Weiler were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning. William presented a badly disfigured face inflicted by his brother and Weiler acted in the role of peacemaker. Mathew McGrath was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 or serve forty days in the county jail.

CARRANZA SAYS HE'S PRESIDENT

Rebel Chief Declares Himself Head of Mexico.

READY TO NAME CABINET

Bryan Hopes That Mediators Will Recognize Rebel Chieftain, as He Could Upset All Plans For Peace. Wants Recognition.

Torreon, Mexico, June 1.—To forestall action by the peace mediators at Niagara Falls in selecting a provisional government for Mexico, General Venustiano Carranza virtually assumed the position of provisional president and began the work of selecting his cabinet. Advices to this effect were received here from Durango. Carranza leaves Durango at once for Saltillo to establish a provisional government.

The new capital will have the protection of nearly 5,000 troops of the army of General Pablo Gonzales, who has transferred his army from Monterey to Saltillo. He will protect Saltillo while it remains the provisional capital and will send detachments of troops to garrison the smaller towns in that vicinity while Villa's main army is conducting the campaign against Zacatecas and San Luis Potosi. When the rebel army moves upon Mexico City General Gonzales and his army will escort the provisional president and his cabinet to the capital.

Want Carranza Recognized.

Washington, June 1.—Secretary of State Bryan has not yet given up hope of persuading the A, B, C mediators at Niagara Falls to allow Carranza to participate in the mediation conferences on the basis of his latest note to them. Mr. Bryan is using all the influence at his command to bring about this result. A long cipher message is being sent from the state department to the South American mediators. It is believed that it related chiefly to the Carranza incident and expressed the strong hope of this government that the mediators would see their way clear to make the Constitutionalist chieftain a party to the proceedings.

It is understood, too, that the communication contained the answer of the United States to the proposals that were submitted in preliminary form by the mediators several days ago. These were the fundamental proposals upon which the representatives of the United States and Mexico were substantially in accord.

The Washington officials feel that it will be necessary to bring Carranza into the Niagara Falls conference before a formal agreement is reached. They fear that unless this is done the Constitutionalist chieftain may decline to accept any of the proposals and upset the entire work of the mediation conference.

It is the belief of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan that the mediators would be warranted in making substantial concessions to Carranza in order to insure the presence of his representatives at the conferences, if only to consider the international phases of the proceedings. On the other hand, it is known here that considerable feeling exists among the mediators over the way in which Carranza rejected their first offer, and the information which reached Washington was to the effect that the South American diplomats probably would turn the Constitutionalist leader down unless he would consent to enter the conference on the same basis as the other delegates—to join in the mediation of Mexico's international differences.

MAIDEN TRIP OF AQUITANIA.

Greatest British Steamship Leaves Liverpool Without Aid of Tugs.

London, June 1.—Without the assistance of a single tug and as easily maneuvered as though she were an ordinary ferryboat, the Aquitania, the Cunard line's newest and largest steamship, slipped away from the Liverpool landing stage to enter upon her maiden voyage to New York.

Captain Turner was in command, and the several thousand persons who gathered at the pier to see the vessel leave gave him a rousing cheer as the vessel swung from the landing.

The usual noisy demonstration given a new vessel about to begin her first voyage was omitted, the memory of the recent disaster to the Empress of Ireland being too greatly impressed upon the public mind to permit of a great display of enthusiasm.

JUDGE HORNBLOWER.

Judge William B. Hornblower of the court of appeals of New York, who has been ill for some time at his home, the Gables, at Litchfield, Mass., is worse, according to the statement of Dr. N. Lloyd Deming, his physician. No hope for Judge Hornblower's recovery is entertained.

TWELVE AGITATORS ARE PUT IN CELL

I. W. W. Gang Renews Rioting Near Tarrytown.

Tarrytown, N. Y., June 1.—Fifteen I. W. W. agitators in jail; Alexander Berkman sent back to New York with his gang of anarchists; the whole police force of Tarrytown on continuous duty for twenty-four hours. This, in brief, tells the story of the most riotous night and day this Sleepy Hollow country has ever known.

After the arrest of Rebr Edelson, Arthur Caron, Edkard Plunket, a Cornell graduate, the big Swede and eight others last night, Berkman, David Sullivan and twenty more agitators arrived in Tarrytown and immediately started out to continue the fight for free speech in this village which the agitators choose to call J. D. Rockefeller's town.

Berkman's gang walked to Fountain square, and one of the members mounted a box and started to talk. He was hustled on his way by the police and offered fight. Policeman Creiger chased him, and when he caught him at Wilder avenue the fellow turned and yelled, "If I had a gun I'd put a bullet in you." With that Creiger landed on him with his club. The prisoner was taken to the police station, but on his promise to get out of town at once he was allowed to go.

In the meantime Sullivan and Berkman, who was accompanied by a girl known as Helen of Troy, but who gave her name as Helen Harris, walked about the town, followed by a crowd of at least 500. Berkman and Sullivan kept protesting to the police that they had the right to free speech, and they returned to Fountain square and Berkman tried to talk. He was arrested.

The gang in the lockup, six in a cell, kept the neighborhood in an uproar with boisterous singing and banging on the cell doors.

New York Man Succumbs After Illness In Washington.

Washington, June 1.—Stricken by the side of his bride of one week, William Schaefer, thirty-nine years old, of New York city, who came to Washington on his honeymoon, died in an Emergency hospital ambulance shortly after being removed from his rooms at the Winston hotel.

Mr. Schaefer had been ill ever since he arrived in Washington. He was treated at Casualty hospital Thursday. All indications, Coroner Nevitt said, point to death from natural causes. He complained of illness when he retired, and his condition became such that the hotel authorities summoned an ambulance. An autopsy will be held.

FATE OF PEACE IS STILL IN THE BALANCE

Clifton House, Niagara Falls, June 1.—The fate of the peace conference is hanging in the balance today. The Americans and the mediators were scheduled to meet at 10 a. m. for a further discussion on the suggested admission of General Carranza as a factor in the mediation proceedings. When they have reached a positive conclusion it is believed that they will listen to no proposition that will mean a diplomatic and perhaps temporary alliance with the rebel chief. If they maintain such a stand the conference may break up, although all doubtless would accord to the mediators an opportunity for a full discussion and a chance to again confer with the Americans.

PATRIOTIC ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN AT HOPE CHAPEL

Thomas and Robert Rogers, who witnessed the accident took him to the home of the Misses Burgmiller, nearby, when first aid treatment was administered.

ANNUAL MEETING OF P. H. S. ALUMNI ASS'N

The annual meeting of the Plainfield High School Alumni Association will be held this evening at the High School auditorium at 8 o'clock. There will be a number of interesting reports and the election of officers for the ensuing year.

The annual meeting and the reception and dance of the association were postponed this year from the month of February, when these events have usually taken place, awaiting the completion of the new auditorium at the High School.

Under the conditions that exist this year, it was decided to combine the Alumni Association reception and dance with the commencement dance, and to have the Alumni Association give the commencement dance to the class of 1914.

The affair will be none the less an Alumni Association gathering, and the same conditions as have always governed the attendance of members at Alumni Association dances will prevail for the commencement dance.

Tickets may be obtained by those who are eligible to membership in the Alumni Association upon application to Dr. Sydney R. Titsworth, acting secretary, upon payment of dues for the current year.

CITY FIREMEN RESPOND TO A TOTAL OF THREE ALARMS

The city fire department answered three alarms, from yesterday until today noon, none of which amounted to much. At three o'clock yesterday afternoon an alarm from box 12 called the apparatus to Samuel Block's store at Front and Somerset streets where the explosion of a plumber's torch set fire to an awning. The blaze was put out before any great damage was accomplished.

At 6:42 this morning an alarm from box 63 called the department to the home of Michael Acolia at 411 Berckman street. In some unknown way, flames originated in a bedroom and spread rapidly before being discovered. The damage amounting to $50.

The Netherwood apparatus was sent out at ten o'clock this morning in response to a telephone alarm stating that a bad fire was raging in the dump on East Seventh street near Leland avenue. The firemen worked two hours before the flames were thoroughly extinguished.

LAST CONCERT.

The last of a series of concerts given under the auspices of the Municipal Orchestra during the course of the present season, will be held at the auditorium of the Washington School tomorrow evening. Miss Beatrice Cameron, soprano soloist of the Dunellen Presbyterian church choir, will be the soloist of the evening. The orchestra is one of the many activities carried on by the Recreation Committee.

PITTSBURG MAN IS CALLED HERE

Will Succeed E. C. Ostlin as Physical Director of Y. M. C. A. September 1.

HAS WIDE EXPERIENCE

Former Incumbant's Resignation Takes Effect Today and He Will Take a Position With the United States Chemical Company.

Robert L. Meermans, asistant physical director of the Pittsburg Central Y. M. C. A., has been called to succeed E. C. Ostlin, whose resignation as physical director of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. takes effect today. Mr. Ostlin has accepted a position with the United States Chemical Company of New York. Mr. Meermans will assume his new duties September 1.

Mr. Meermans was chosen for the place because of the splendid record he has made as a leader and later as one of the physical directors in the Cleveland and Pittsburg associations. He has been very successful in his work with both men and boys. Besides finishing an excellent technical training received under some of the most efficient association leaders, Mr. Meermans has the ability in a rare degree to make and to hold friendships. He is regarded as one of the most popular members of the employed force of the Pittsburg association.

At the same time that a call was extended to Mr. Meermans by the local association he received another very attractive offer to enter social settlement work. Mr. Meermans' decision to accept the call to Plainfield was prompted by the conviction that it offered a better opportunity.

THE LOCAL PAPER.

There was a time when all of the big national advertisers used the magazines to introduce their wares to consumers, but of late the shrewdest of this great class of space users have turned to the columns of the newspapers as the best medium for creating a demand for their goods.

How many of the business men who use the Daily Press have stopped to think that the home paper is ten times more valuable for their use than it is for the mail order man. The Plainfield merchant is on the job every day in the year; he is here to follow up his advertising with the strength of his personality and his constant contact with the buying public, while the foreign advertiser is a sort of vague, unknown person or corporation, in many cases not even backed up by having in town a local agent or dealer who handles the line advertised.

Every newspaper accepts the advertising of the foreign concern who deals in reputable goods. Many newspapers bar patent medicine advertising of an objectionable character, but the man who is offering straight merchandise is as much entitled to present his claims as is the local merchant. The local man has the advantage above mentioned, which more than offset any attractively worded inducements made by a mail order house.

There is no more effective way of strengthening any business than by using a local newspaper. The Daily Press is strictly in the latter class. Eighty per cent. of its circulation is in Plainfield, and the balance of it is in the towns immediately surrounding. Readers of the Press are an intelligent class of people, who take the paper because of its attention primarily to local news, which they are interested in above all other kinds, coupled with the many special features which appear in this paper only. Hence its value as a medium for local merchants.

The police wants to purchase two motorcycles for the use of the department. What for? There was a time not so many years ago when two of these machines were used by the police, and the patrolmen invented every excuse they could find to avoid riding them. They were finally sold for a figure little higher than a junkman would pay. In these days when tax rates are soaring, the people's money could be spent much more advantageously than in buying things for which there is apparently no need. There has been no public demand for policemen mounted on these "contraptions." No committees have waited on the Council demanding additional protection by placing motorcycle policemen in any section of the city. The machines would be worthless for night patrolling, because of the noise made and the attention they demand from the riders, and in the day time the only use would be to chase auto speeders and in 999 out of 1000 cases a policeman on foot or on an ordinary bicycle can get the number of a speeding automobile, which is all that is needed. Plainfield has about as much need for motorcycle policemen as it has for an aeroplane squad.

Councilman Calkins' measure regulating the number of licenses to be granted in this city in the future, will probably come before the City Council tonight for final passage. If it is enacted it will be another step forward in the establishment of what has become known as "the Plainfield policy." That the plan has the endorsement of a large majority of the citizen of Plainfield is made evident from the fact that there has been practically no public protest against the passage of the ordinance, except that which was made at the meeting held one night last week when a number of citizens frankly stated that they were opposed to it because they believed in prohibition, without any middle ground. The Calkins' measure if passed by the Council tonight will do away with a lot of bickering which has been evident each year when applications have been made for new licenses. All the Council need do is to abide by the ordinance until 1916, when the result of the 1915 census has been made known. They may then perhaps grant another license if need is shown for it but when the matter is decided that year no more will be granted for five years.

In his contributed editorial published last Friday, George P. Mellick, president of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital touched briefly on one topic which is of vital importance. That was the reference to the need of an automobile ambulance. He suggested that it would be a very fine thing if some public spirited citizen would give such a vehicle, and that the city could maintain it. Were an ambulance provided which could be used either as a police patrol or ambulance, the city could maintain it more economically than they now care for the two wagons for this purpose at police headquarters. Certainly the upkeep of a horse, who has to be fed whether he is working or not, is greater than for an automobile, which would not need any attention except when actually in service. The experience of the fire department has demonstrated that money can be saved by using motor driven vehicles in preference to horse driven ones.

If the Federation of Men's Bible Classes do as President George H Batchelor intimated last week, no local option law will be needed to settle the liquor question in Plainfield. Mr. Batchelor is quoted as having said that a movement is now underway whereby all candidates for Council will be requested to state their position as to whether they favor or are against license. Certainly if any man says that he is against license, those who favor it will have a candidate for the same office in favor of license. Then the matter can be put squarely up to the voters, and a local option law would be unnecessary.

FUNERAL SHIP REACHES QUEBEC

Distressing Scenes Attend Identification of Bodies.

MANY CORPSES BATTERED

Lady Grey Arrives With 188 Victims of the Ill Fated Empress of Ireland. Some So Battered Recognition Is Almost Impossible.

BODIES MUTILATED IN SHIP CRASH.

The British flag was at half staff and all Quebec was in mourning when the funeral ship Lady Grey, escorted by the cruiser Essex, arrived with 188 of the 967 who died in the sinking of the Empress of Ireland. Upon many of the crude coffins was written, "Do not shed tears over me," but thousands wept as the dead were carried to the morgue pier.

The awfulness of the tragedy of the St. Lawrence was keenly realized when it was seen that many of the bodies were mutilated, bruised or gashed. There is a story that women were stabbed. That may be false, but the dead carry dreadful marks. Twenty-five of the bodies were those of babies. Twenty-one bodies were identified and left at Rimouski, so that up to last night only 201 have been recovered out of 967 lost.

Quebec, June 1.—Stretched in forty rows in a low ceiling pier shed were 186 black, brown and white pine coffins containing 188 bodies, less than one-fifth of the victims of the collision between the Empress of Ireland and the collier Storstad.

Twenty-five of these coffins, covered with white satin and snuggled irregularly together, had bodies of babies. All had just arrived from Rimouski.

Ranged along the shed, conspicuous in the Louise basin in the St. Lawrence river because it was draped with black and the British flag, were the scarlet coated marines from the British cruiser Essex, acting as a guard of honor. Blue coated Quebec policemen moved to and fro, while Canadian government officials stood ready to give sympathy and help.

At the heads of those forty lines of coffins stood lines of men and women, many of them survivors, looking for relatives and friends. Each coffin lid was lifted by one of the searchers while others crowded close to get a glimpse at the body inside. The line moved constantly. One lid would be dropped with a low toped "No," and the searcher would raise the lid of the next coffin, just dropped by the person ahead.

Suddenly a low moan of a man or the muffled scream of a woman broke the silence. "Oh, Mary!" "My husband!" or some name of endearment was uttered.

A stalwart man bent forward and kissed the gashed forehead of his wife. It is remarkable how many heads were cut or bruised. A woman would fall fainting on the lid of the coffin she had just raised. Thus it went on all day long until forty-eight bodies were identified.

Few Likely to Be Identified.

The bodies which are not identified here will be embalmed and kept for a few days longer. Then they will be photographed by representatives of the Canadian Pacific and buried in graves marked "unknown."

The prospects are that few more will be identified and that the remainder of the victims will have graves on land marked by a number, as their coffins are now, or graves in the sea. All the bodies have been recovered, and no more were found at Rimouski.

The steamer Lady Grey, commanded by Captain Mercie, left here for Rimouski to bring all unidentified bodies to this port. Meantime, at the order of King George of England, the armored cruiser Essex, which had been in Mexican waters and was ordered north to Montreal to meet the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia, was sent to Rimouski to act as an escort of honor to the bodies from that place to Quebec.

The Lady Grey had not taken enough coffins to Rimouski for the bodies. Kind hearted carpenters, however, went to work and soon manufactured enough boxes, into which bodies were placed. The coffins and the boxes were stacked on the upper and lower decks of the Lady Grey, and that vessel, followed closely by the cruiser Essex, proceeded up the St. Lawrence river.

Women Seek Relatives.

The bodies were brought here in crude coffins, wooden boxes or any kind of box which could be utilized to hold them. They were laid in three rows in the long shed, the older persons in the two outer rows and the younger persons and the bodies of the children in the middle row. The public was admitted to make such identification of the bodies as they could. Sturdy men and frail, grief stricken women crowded into the shed searching for their relatives.

MARINES DROWNED ATTEMPTING TO LAND

Mexicans Rescue Some; Take Them Under Guard.

Mexico City, June 1.—Several American marines from the cruiser Albany were drowned while attempting to land in the port of Arista, state of Oaxaca. The boat in which they were attempting to reach the shore was caught in a heavy sea and sank. Mexicans put out from the shore and rescued several. Those rescued were sent under a heavy guard to Salina Cruz where they were delivered to the commander of the Albany.

General Blanquet, the minister of war, has issued an order raising the embargo on the properties of the Waters-Pierce Oil company, which were seized by the Mexican authorities after the American troops landed at Vera Cruz.

President Huerta, accompanied by General Blanquet and his aids, drove in an automobile through the principal streets of the city.

A band of Zapatistas dynamited a freight train near Ozumbo, on the Interoceanic railway to Vera Cruz. Troops were sent from here and also from Chalco and engaged the bandits, killing many.

It is learned that General Arturo Alvarez was not killed in the engagement with the rebels, as at first reported. He met his death in an automobile accident near Saltillo. General Joaquin Maass, who was riding with him in the car, had a narrow escape.

General Maass' troops, which evacuated Saltillo, are now approaching San Luis Potosi.

MEXICAN WRECKS HOTEL.

Protests on the Drinks, but American Negro Owner Escapes.

Torreon, Mexico, June 1.—When the food did not suit him General Martiano Severin, chief of the rebel artillery in Villa's army, shot up the restaurant of a hotel here conducted by an American negro named Lewis. He wanted to shoot Lewis, but the negro saw the general first and fled.

The incident occurred early in the morning, causing a riot which required the presence of a special detail of troops to put down. General Severin, it is said, had been drinking heavily and had several times during the night found fault with the food and liquors furnished him.

Finally he began shooting, and as the crowd of diners scattered he directed his pistol to the mirrors and to a large glass inclosed pool in the center of the restaurant in which were many goldfish.

DYNAMITES HIS GIRL'S HOUSE

Because She Won't Go to Door Halifax Man Causes Explosion.

Halifax, N. S., June 1.—Because Miss Myrtle Robinson, a young woman to whom Thomas Reilly of Halifax was paying attention, would not respond to his appeal to come to the front door of her house early this morning and see him he exploded a stick of dynamite on the sidewalk. The explosion blew in the front of the house and smashed the windows in two blocks.

The dynamite had a fim fuse, so that Reilly was able to get out of danger. No one was badly hurt, but the damage to property is considerable. Reilly was a workman on the new terminals, where blasting is going on, and knew how to use dynamite. He is the son of an ex-soldier.

He was captured an hour after the explosion and put in jail, charged with attempted murder.

Consul Returns to Guayamas.

Washington, June 1.—The United States consul, Mr. Stadden, reported to the state department from Mazatlan that he is leaving for Guayamas, which formerly was his post. Mr. Stadden was forced to flee to Lower California with refugees shortly after the occupation of Vera Cruz.

HANGED TRYING MOVIE FEATS

Playmates Think Noose Slipped and Strangled Youth.

NO REASON FOR SUICIDE.

Had Everything to Live For, as He Is Son of Rich Paterson Contractor. Saw Pictures of Acrobats Doing Feat, and It Is Believed Victim Was Inspired to Try Them.

Paterson, N. J., June 1.—Everett Harlor, thirteen years old, son of William Harlor, a prosperous contractor of 467 Totowa avenue, was found hanging with a clothesline around his neck in the cellar of his home. The family and the police believe that the boy had been trying some feats he saw in moving pictures and that the noose he formed in the rope tightened up and strangled him in spite of his efforts to get free.

The boy had been in the garage of his home with two boy friends, George Ford of 135 Jasper street and Cornelius Emauss of 50 Bunhans avenue. They had planned to take some pictures in the country, but found a screw of the camera loose. Harlor said he would get a screwdriver.

The other boys waited fifteen or twenty minutes and then began to look for Harlor. After searching the upper part of the house they looked into the cellar and found him suspended from a beam, with his toes three inches from the ground. He was cut down and a physician was summoned, but he had been dead some minutes.

Before winding the noose around his neck he had wrapped his handkerchief around the rope so as not to soil his collar. The police could find no reason for suicide. The boy had everything to live for and had been in high good humor with his friends just before he went into the cellar.

Ford and Emauss furnished the only explanation. The three went to the movies, and one of the pictures showed acrobats doing feats on rings and trapezes. The boys think young Harlor saw the rope in the cellar and was inspired to try some of the feats.

BOY AND FATHER KILLED.

Five-year-old Was Trying to Pull Patrick Riley From Track.

Morristown, N. J., June 1.—It is believed that it was while he was trying to pull his father from the tracks of the Morristown and Erie railroad out of the way of an approaching train that Francis Riley, five years old, and his father, Patrick Riley of West Orange, N. J., were instantly killed near Whippany, about four miles from here, by a locomotive.

The engineer, Fred Romaine, did not know he had struck a human being until after he had stopped his train and gone back to investigate. The man's body was dragged several yards and when found was lying squarely between the rails. The boy's body was between the rails, and his head was alongside of the track. It is thought that the father had a fit or was stricken in some manner and was unable to rise. The boy and his father were visiting a relative, Patrick Riley of Whippany, and had been to Morristown in the evening.

At a conference presided over by Mrs. William Raws the subject of a colony for women along similar lines that has made Keswick a successful refuge for men was discussed, with the probable result that an attempt will ultimately be made to found such a settlement in some, secluded spot in south Jersey.

VETERANS HONOR DEPARTED HEROES

William N. Runyon, Orator at Impressive Exercises in Reform Hall.

"THE UNKNOWN DEAD"

Following a Parade Cemeteries Are Visited and Graves Are Decorated —Chorus of Children Give Patriotic Program of Songs.

With a diminished number of veterans in line, Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., paraded from their headquarters to North Plainfield and Evergree cemeteries Saturday morning, where they held their annual Memorial Day services in memory of their departed comrades. The clouded skies that greeted the veterans of the Civil War early in the morning evidently did not dampen their enthusiasm, for the program went forward with the usual military dispatch that has marked the many previous exercises under the direction of the local post.

The preliminary work of the decoration of the dead soldiers' graves had been completed earlier in the week, the various resting places having been marked with flowers and small national emblems, as had been the custom for many years in the past. Several members of the Post visited the local public and parochial schools, as well as those of the borough, Scotch Plains, Dunellen and Mt. St. Mary College during the course of the school hours of Friday. Here the veterans were greeted by children, who were honoring the nation's dead heroes by special Memorial Day exercises.

The activities of Memorial Day began at 7:30 in the morning, when the comrades gathered at headquarters to go to Scotch Plains, where exercises were held at the Baptist cemetery. The school children of the village assisted the members of the post at that place by distributing the flowers to the graves. At the conclusion of the services there, the Post re-assembled at headquarters, and started the customary parade. During the year that just passed Winfield Scott Post has lost several of its active members. The North Plainfield and Evergreen cemeteries were visited during the course of the morning, ritualistic services being conducted at both. During the parade an escort was formed for the Post, by Company K, Uniform Rank, Jr. O. U. A. M., representing Franklin Council, No. 41, and Somerset Council, No. 41, under the direction of Guy Thomas, and the several troops of Boy Scouts of the city under the direction of Allen E. Beals, who is the head scoutmaster.

The services were continued in the afternoon at Reform Hall, beginning at 2:30. Former City Judge William N. Runyon delivered the memorial address of the occasion, in place of Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, who was called away. Several of the officers and veterans took part in this service, reading Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and conducting the services to the unknown dead. A large chorus of school children trained under the direction of Mrs. John Manley, of the Women's Relief Corps, sang several patriotic songs during the exercises. Captain William Hand was the marshal of the day.

A memorial mass for the nation's dead soldiers and sailors was held at St. Mary's R. C. church at nine o'clock in the morning, a large number being in attendance.

The Women's Relief Corps assisted in the exercises and a committee from the W. C. T. U., of which Mrs. M. C. Dobbins was chairman, provided each veteran with a carnation and white ribbon, the flowers being generously given by Mrs. C. W. McCutchen.

The children's program follows:—Chorus, The American Hymn; Nothing But Flags, by eight children; chorus, There's No Land Like Ours; recitation, The Bronze Button; violin solo; recitation, tributes by two girls; solo and duet and chorus, Grand Old Army Men; violin solo; recitation by Thelma Smith, chorus, Old Glory; song by three children; recitation by Elsie Frazee, Memorial Day; violin solo; chorus.

RESTRICTED LOTS TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

Robert F. Adams of the well-known land auctioneering firm of Adams & Ingalls, of Stamford, Conn., who are to auction off some fine restricted lots at Holly Park on Park avenue, opposite the former Plainfield Driving Park, on June 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th, is well acquainted with the location of the property, and is of the opinion that the people of Plainfield are exceedingly fortunate that Holly Park has been opened for development because it has a private nine-acre lake which affords fine bathing and fishing for those who buy lots on this property, and also because many of the lots have already been sold to representative New York business men.

The auction sale opens Wednesday, at 2 o'clock on the property and will be held at the same time each day thereafter for the remainder of the week.

SUCCESSFUL SALE OF BUILDING LOTS

The most successful sale of lots ever held in this city was conducted by William Schorb, the well-known auctioneer, at the circus grounds in the east end of the city on Saturday afternoon. There were present a representative lot of buyers and many out of town people who are watching this latest development of Plainfield real estate. The result of the sale was most gratifying to all. There were twenty lots sold at auction and five more were sold privately, which are more than have ever before been sold on the opening day at any sale in Plainfield.

The tract is known as Mountain Park and Pine View Park. The idea of the company in having the sale is to bring the lots to the attention of desirable buyers, and private sales from now on will take place until the next auction sale on the afternoon of the Fourth of July. The terms are most liberal, and no lots will be sold except to desirable purchasers, who will make the class of improvements that will improve the value of the remaining lots.

The sale on Saturday was enlivened by music by the Dutch Arms Band, which did themselves proud by their rendition of patriotic and other airs. The sale augurs well for this latest development of what promises to be one of the best sections of the city. The land lies well, is directly connected by the trolley with the center of the city, and only the best class of houses will be erected.—Adv. **

POLICE REVIEW GREAT SUCCESS

Bluecoats Complimented by Mayor Percy H. Stewart for Their Fine Showing.

TWENTY-SEVEN IN LINE

Patrolmen and Superior Officers Go Through Close rOder Drills in Charge of A. I. Littell—Councilman Calkins Also Present.

Twenty-seven members of the local police force headed by Chief P. S. Kiely were reviewed as a body by Mayor Percy H. Stewart and Leigton Calkins, of the councilmanic police committee, in front of the headquarters on Sycamore street Friday night, presenting an appearance that was the subject for much favorable comment on the part of the city officials. The squad was composed of the chief, Captain Christian Frederickson, Sergeant Maurice Higgins, Detective Sergeant John J. Flynn, Roundsmen Charles Flynn and Andrew Saffron, and twenty-two patrolmen, all in charge of Albert L. Littell.

The men were put through a close order drill in the court-yard and went through the manoeuvres in a finished style that reflected with credit on the drilling the squad has been given during the preliminary work of the past three weeks. Appearing in full dress the men measured up to all requirements and complimentary remarks were made by the Mayor and chief during the review.

Addressing the regiment of bluecoats Mayor Stewart commended the men as a unit for the good work accomplished during the past year and spoke of the important duties with which each is entrusted as a guardian of the public peace. The city executive thanked the minions of law as a whole for their co-operation and expressed a desire that the good work would continue during the coming years. He spoke of the need for obedience to superiors' orders and complimented the senior officers and those in charge of the department work for the excellent order maintained and results brought about in the department. The Mayor said it would be impossible to single out individuals as bearers of rewards for meritorious service and that he considered each man a credit to the department and thought that each had accomplished good work during the year.

Chief Kiely thanked the men for the hearty co-operation accorded him during the year and expressed a wish that the good feeling now existing between officer and official would continue for time to come. He spoke of the trust imposed by the citizens in the police officer and urged the men to discharge their duty efficiently and fearlessly. Following the review the chief thanked the Mayor and councilman for their interest in the police work and in return was individually complimented for his efficiency as head of the department.

The patrolmen in line were Dennis O'Keefe, John Kelley, Martin Flatley, Martin Welsh, John Henderchott, Richard Birmingham, Nicholas Meyers, George Muir, William Mernagh, Tobias Nolan, Roland MacIntyre, Arthur McGinley, Thomas Flatley, Thomas O'Gorman, Frank Martin, Ferdinand Bader, Harry Brower, Florence O'Sullivan, Charles B. PRESIDENT OF CORPORATION LIABLE FOR CONCERN'S DEBT

Appearing before Judge David, in Elizabeth, Friday, Robert Newton Crane, of this city, representing the Hall Incubator Company, was awarded a verdict of $205.81 against William Stanbury, of Scotch Plains, president of the Poucher-Stanbury Poultry Farms.

Stanbury loaned $2,400 to his company and took a chattel mortgage conveying the property of his corporation, and later foreclosed his mortgage and bought in the incubator upon which the above amount was still due. The court decided that the president of a business corporation is personally liable for the debts of the corporation. W. R. Codington and F. J. Blatz appeared for the defendant.

RIVAL TEAMS PLAYED TWENTY-THREE ROUND

Hope Chapel Split Even in Extra Session Contests Waged at Bound Brook.

Hope Chapel split even in a pair of games played on the Bound Brook diamond Saturday morning and afternoon against the Y. M. A. ball club of that place. Two runs in the ninth inning won the morning contest for the Chapelites after a garrison finish had been staged in the tenth inning.

The afternoon contest went for thirteen innings when the home sluggers counted for four runs against the local church boys three, winning the issue by a margin of 5 to 4. The fielding in both games was ragged, but the teams exhibited some fine batting during the twenty-three rounds.

CRESCENT PLAYERS TROUNCED RIVALS

Tennis Club Ball Players Had Little Trouble in Rolling up the Score.

The O. Z. T. Fraternity, of Dunellen, defeated the Crescent Tennis Club, of that place, to the decisive tune of 11 to 4 on Maurer's Oval, that place, Decoration Day morning.

The O. Z. T.'s put the game on ice in the first inning. Westcott received a free ticket to first and immediately stole second. Nangle put a fly ball to left field, Vail in endeavoring to nab the ball fell on his back, giving Nangle a two-base hit, which scored Westcott. Eckert singled over second scoring Nangle. Bogardus got a two-base hit to center when Martin came running in on his line drive, the ball going over his head, Eckert scoring on the hit. Ritterbusch hit a fly into right field. "Pud" Maurer went back for the ball instead of remaining in his tracks for it, the sphere falling safe and Bogardus scoring from second on the error in judgment for the final tally of the inning.

PLAINFIELD SISTERS WIN FINALS IN THE DOUBLES

Miss Edna Wilder and Mrs. Natalie Farley, her sister, of this city, were victorious in the final round of the doubles Saturday, on the courts of the Essex County Country Club, at West Orange, winning the match from Mrs. Marshal McLean and Mrs. Alfred G. Miles, at 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The sisters showed the result of their continuous playing together as a team by the sureness with which they covered court. After dropping the first set by a score of 4-6, they began playing with more determination, directing their main assault against Mrs. Miles.

Mrs. McLean attempted to relieve her partner of the brunt of the attack, but the sisters placed cleverly and scored many passing shots down the side courts, taking the last two shots and the match at 6-3, 6-4.

The summaries follow:

Ladies' invitation doubles (final round)—Miss Edna Wildey and Mrs. Natalie Farley defeated Mrs. Marshall McLean and Mrs. Alfred J. Miles, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

NOVEL ATHLETIC MEET HELD BY EPWORTH LEAGUE

Despite the weather conditions which prevailed, the opening day of the tennis court of the Monroe Avenue Epworth League was fittingly observed Saturday morning and afternoon. Because of the condition of the court, the tournament of gentlemen's singles and mixed doubles was postponed until the afternoon.

Luncheon was served at noon to the League members and visitors in the Epworth House, which was decorated with the national colors of red, white and blue, besides many flags. In the afternoon, the field day sports, consisting of the hobble skirt race for the rainy day race for ladies, the hundred yard dash for gentlemen, twenty yard dash for ladies, hurdle races, were enjoyed by all.

The mixed doubles, represented by Arthur Humble and Dr. Randolph, for First Church, and Townley Pierson and Mary J. Mathews, for Monroe Avenue, resulted in First church being the winners.

The committee in charge were the Misses Anna S. Mathews, May G. Stafford, Mary J. Mathews and Clarence Weber.

JOHNSON ADMITS HE IS GREATEST PITCHER.

There was received in the Chicago postoffice the other day a souvenir postal card bearing, in lieu of a definite name and address, only the following inscription:

"To the Greatest Pitcher on Earth."

The postcard was sent to the dead letter office, where one of the funeral directors of defunct correspondence was quick to grasp the situation. She promptly forwarded the card to Walter Perry Johnson of the Washington Americans. He has filed it among the other acquisitions of his remarkable career.

COBB HITS ALL BOX MEN ALIKE

Tyrus Plays No Favorites, While Jackson Fears a Few.

"One reason why Ty Cobb leads Joe Jackson in the batting averages each year is that Cobb hits all pitchers with impartial vigor, while Jackson plays favorites," declared Fred Blanding, the Nap pitcher. It was at a fanning bee in Cleveland the other day.

"When Cobb feels like hitting there isn't a pitcher in the American league with speed or curves enough to stop him. Chief Bender and Jack Warhop both have Jackson's groove. He can't hit either of them.

"Another reason is that Jackson isn't a fast man going down to first base. He is thrown out on many a hit that any ordinary shifty base runner would beat out. He's a lightfooted person after he has turned first; not even Cobb himself will make more bases on a long drive. But it takes him time to get started. By the time he is rounding second base on a triple, say, or a possible homer, Jackson is just going about as fast as any man in the American league can cover ground. But that doesn't help him to any singles.

"It handicaps him, too, as a base runner. Jackson looks to be a long way off first most of the time, and he is. But he's not very often in the right position to break. Cobb goes straight down the line, further than any other man in our league. He can go 20 or 25 feet and scramble back; he is never off his balance. But Jackson, though he seems to the people in the stands to be well headed toward second, is generally way back of the bag and really not one-third as far 'down' as Cobb.

"He never has been able to hit either Bender or Warhop, though he does about as well against Walter Johnson as Cobb ever has. We don't get to see Cobb hitting against Johnson, but from what I hear Ty doesn't alter his style materially when he faces Walter. We know Jackson doesn't. He grips his bat just as close to the end as when hitting against the slowest man in the league. And he gets his hits off Walter just about as often as any one.

"Bender and Warhop, though, have something on him when they are pitching up to form. They have him popping up into the air like any busher. Don't know why it is, but Jackson considers himself a pretty lucky ball player any time he gets a hit off either of them."

PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB INAUGURATES GREAT SERIES

Competition in the men's doubles handicap opened Saturday morning on the Plainfield Country Club courts the affair being a great success and producing some excellent contests. The final round will be played next Saturday afternoon. The handicaps were allotted in a commendable fashion, the teams of best players being trimmed by the so-called 'dubs" in some instances.

In the semi-final round of play T. M. Day and W. M. Wherry defeated Carr Neel and Howard Carter 4-6, 6-3 and 6-3. H. W. Brower and C. M. Baker beat A. D. Beers and H. J. Cochran 6-4, 4-6, 2-4 and by default. Cochran sprained his ankle in the latter match and this necessitated the retirement of his team.

The Neel mentioned above in a loser's role was formerly a member of the national doubles team and came within an ace of copping the single's title when he met Bob Wrenn in 1896.

UNDERWRITERS WANT CHANGE

Summary—Reliability of water supply affected by non-fireproof pumping station; adequate quantities available only as engine supply. Fire department undermanned and deficient in engie capacity. Fire alarm system, except for headquarters equipment, inadequate and unreliable in a number of features.

Structural Conditions and Hazards.

Building Department—State laws good but not sufficiently comprehensive. Municipal laws mainly good, but deficient in several respects. Enforcement fair to good. Structural conditions generally weak. Fire limits of insufficient extent.

Explosives and Inflammables—Laws few and incomplete. Control mainly with the fire chief; inspections not sufficiently frequent. Local conditions only fair.

Electricity—No regulations for inside or outside construction. Inspection of new work by underwriters' inspector, written agreement with electric company. New work fair to good; old work in poor condition. Wires underground in principal mercantile district; elsewhere overhead; obstructions few. Evidence of electrolytic action slight.

Conflagration Hazard — Serious group fires are probable throughout the district; owing to the inadequate fire-fighting facilities and the absence of fire breaks, the probability of a general conflagration is high. Serious group fires are probable in minor mercantile districts; hazard in manufacturing district purely local. Flying-brand hazard severe.

The recommendations, with the exception of the minor ones are as follows, those printed in black face type being the ones which the examiners think should be immediately followed out:

WATER SUPPLY.

Supply Works.

That combustible structural material be removed from the pumping station, or that an automatic sprinkler system be installed throughout.

That the standpipe at the pumping station be either increased in height or cut out, so that sufficient pressure can be maintained to keep the North Plainfield standpipe and the reservoir full.

That the 12-inch and 24-inch mains extending to Westfield be cross-connected at the pumping station.

Consumption.

That the per capita consumption be reduced by the general installation of meters.

Mains.

That the distribution system be strengthened by the early installation of the mains given below, and of such other mains as are necessary to furnish fire supply as follows:

a. In the principal mercantile district, 5,000 gallons a minute.

b. In manufacturing districts, 4,000 gallons a minute.

c. In residential districts, 1,500 to 2,500 gallons a minute.

The above quantities to be in excess of maximum domestic consumption and to be available in high value districts about any large building or group of buildings of special hazard, and in residential districts about any block.

Recommended mains:—One twelve inch main running through West Front street from Grant avenue to Clinton avenue, through that street to West Seventh street, and back through the latter to Grant avenue.

Twelve inch main on Somerset street from Grandview avenue to Regent street.

Eight and six inch mains on Randolph, Sixth, Berkman, Belleview, Webster, Kensington, Dixie, Osborne, Denmark, Duer, Belmont, Leland and Mountain streets and avenues, as indicated on the map which accompanies the report.

That connections be made between mains intersecting the 16-inch main on Woodland avenue at Seventh and Central streets, and Putnam and Watchung avenues.

That the following be adopted as the standard minimum size of mains used for hydrant supply for all future construction:

a. In residential districts, 6- and 8-inch; the former to be used only where they complete a good gridiron and the latter in locations where dead ends and poor gridironing are likely to exist for some time, and in any case in blocks 600 feet or more in length.

b. In mercantile and manufacturing districts, 8- and 12-inch; the former to be used only in sections where they complete a good gridiron, and the latter for long lines not cross-connected.

Gate Valves.

That the distribution system be equipped with a sufficient number of gate valves, so located that no single case of accident, breakage or repair to the pipe system will necessitate the shutting from service a length of pipe greater than 500 feet in important districts, or 800 feet in other sections.

That all valves be inspected yearly, and that records of inspection and operation be regularly filed.

That the spindles in the gate valves which open to the left be replaced, so that all valves will operate in a uniform direction.

Hydrants.

That special hydrants or cranes be provided for the use of the street department and the use of hydrants be restricted to members of the fire department.

That the city authorize additional hydrants installed to give:

a. In the principal mercantile and manufacturing districts, two hydrants at each street intersection and intermediate hydrants in all blocks where the distance between street intersections exceeds 300 feet.

b. In residential districts, one hydrant at each street intersection and such additional hydrants that the distance between them will not exceed 300 feet.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Organization.

That two full paid men each be added to Companies 1 and 4 and 1 each to Company 3 and the Ladder Company, and that full paid men be added each year to give eight men to each engine and ladder company and seven men to each hose company.

That a full paid captain be appointed for the ladder company and a full paid engineer for the steamer.

That new members of the department be appointed after civil service examination, with suitable height, age and weight limits.

Companies and Apparatus.

That Ladder 1 be equipped with an automobile springbalanced aerial truck.

That Hose 1 be equipped with an automobile combination pump and hose wagon; it is recommended that this company be moved to a new station in the vicinity of Park avenue and Arlington place.

Hose Wagons and Hose.

That each hose wagon carry about equal amounts of 2½- and 3-inch hose, with a total of at least 1,000 feet, and that a complete shift be provided for each wagon; all 2½- and 3-inch hose to be fitted with 2½-inch couplings, properly beveled.

That specifications of the National Board of Fire Underwriters for hose for city fire department use be adopted or used as a guide in framing specifications for new hose, and that all hose be tested annually to 200 pound pressure.

That a drill tower and school be established, where members of the department, especially probationers, shall be trained in pompier and other ladder work, quick handling of hose, use of deluge sets and turret nozzles, and life saving; these drills to be in charge of a competent instructor, who shall be sent to at least two cities which maintain drill schools, to obtain experience in modern fire methods.

FIRE ALARM SYSTEM.

Organization.

That a competent electrician be appointed superintendent of fire alarm and held responsible for proper maintenance and operation of the system.

Headquarters.

That the fire alarm headquarters be removed to a fireproof building or addition to a fire station, especially constructed to reduce as far as possible all liability to interruption of service. In the new location, all apparatus to be placed on incombustible mountings, and no unnecessary combustibles to be permitted in fire-alarm rooms. Until this is done every effort should be made to safeguard the present quarters by placing hand chemical extinguishers throughout the building and sand pails in the operating and battery rooms. It is suggested that the recommended new stations be utilized.

Apparatus.

That the following changes be made:

AT ALARM HEADQUARTERS:

a. Register and time snap for all alarms.

b. A non-interfering break-wheel transmitter, for sending out the nearest box location for telephone alarms, after notifying the nearest company by telephone.

AT EACH FIRE STATION:

A gong connected to an alarm circuit and a reliable punch register on a box circuit; stall trips, light switches and similar devices to be operated from the gong.

Boxes.

That additional boxes be installed, so that a box shall be within 800 feet of every valuable group of buildings.

That boxes connected to underground circuits be mounted on substantial standards, with suitable terminal plates, and be conspicuously located at street corners and indicated by red lights. Those connected to overhead lines to be mounted on conspicuously located poles or posts at street corners; boxes and a wide band on poles to be painted red annually, and the red globes on street lights renewed.

Circuits.

That the present hazardous condition of outside circuits be remedied, and circuits be placed underground immediately where ducts are available, using No. 14 rubber-covered copper wire in lead sheathing; wires to be installed in duct systems and on poles carrying signaling wires only.

That gongs and indicators be removed from box circuits and separate alarm circuits installed to connect gongs in fire stations and gongs and tappers elsewhere; wiring in headquarters and fire stations to be in accordance with the National Electrical Code.

Operation.

That tests of boxes be made monthly and after every electrical storm, a map showing the location of boxes and circuits kept, and records kept of alarms, tests and troubles.

That the system be timed to operate at about one stroke per second.

That an agreement be made with North Plainfield, by which mutual aid may be given on all second alarms, and on first alarms along the boundaries; connections to be made so that alarms in each municipality may be received at fire headquarters of the other.

Building Department.

That the building code be revised to conform to modern requirements for construction and fire prevention as given in the National Board Building Code, and that the laws be mandatory and not left to the option or judgment of the building inspector.

That the fire limits district be extended to include and properly protect all business districts; that construction outside these limits be so regulated as to prevent the developing of dangerous conditions, and that incombustible coverings be required throughout the city on all new or repaired roofs.

That an assistant building inspector be appointed, who shall devote his entire time to the inspection of buildings, examining plans, issuing permits and keeping complete indexed records of buildings and inspections, and that improved facilities for the filing of records be provided.

Explosives and Inflammables.

That a complete code of regulations covering the manufacture, sale, storage and transportation of explosives and inflammables be adopted by ordinance, the chief of the fire department to be held solely responsible for its enforcement and the keeping of records, and that members of the fire department make regular and frequent inspections of all buildings and premises in their respective districts, filing complete records of each inspection. It is recommended that the suggested ordinances on these subjects promulgated by the National Board of Fire Underwriters be used as a guide in framing new regulations.

Electricity.

That the National Electrical Code be made by ordinance the standard for all electric work.

That a complete reinspection of old wiring be made, defects corrected and all wiring be subsequently reinspected at suitable intervals.

Conflagration Hazard.

That owners of existing defectively constructed buildings, which are so located as to form conflagration areas, be required to suitably protect roof, floor, party wall and exposed openings.

That automatic sprinkler equipments, with outside siamese hose connections and controlling valve near the main in street, be required in all buildings which, by reason of their size, construction or occupancy, singly or combined, might act as conflagration breeders.

North Plainfield.

That the number of full paid men in the fire department be increased to six, and the steam fire engine be replaced by an automobile pumping engine.

That a complete building code be adopted by ordinance to conform to modern requirements for construction, limitation of heights and areas, thickness of walls, and protection to openings in roofs, floors and external and internal walls. It is recommended that the suggested building ordinance of the National Board of Fire Underwriters for small towns be used as a guide in framing new laws.

That within the fire limits, ironclad and veneered buildings be prohibited and that construction outside these limits to be so regulated as to prevent the developing of dangerous conditions, incombustible coverings to be required throughout the city on all new or repaired roofs.

That the chief of the fire department act as building and explosives inspector, until it becomes necessary to have these offices separately filled, and that he be held solely responsible for the enforcement of the building laws.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

Why Not?

In her communication to the Press of May 27, Mrs. Riley says in speaking of the movement for suffrage on the part of "intelligent organized" womanhood. "And the women of the United States are asking 'Why Not?' of our great Republic." Mrs. Riley ignores the fact that the majority of the women, either in an organized body or by an equally forcible silence are demanding "Why" grant the vote to women when the work to be effected can be more easily and safely done without it?

In a letter to your columns a short time since, I gave from the publication of the Suffragists themselves a very telling example of the truth of this argument. Briefly stated, my example was this: A bill dealing with sex questions was presented to the Legislature of a suffrage State. It was backed by the names of three thousand women, representing, of course, three thousand votes. It was defeated. About the same time (I am taking my facts from a magazine published by Suffragists) a similar bill was presented to the Legislature of Vermont. Two ladies took it to the Legislature, one of them speaking in its behalf. Circulars giving the reasons for urging the bill were sent to each member of the Legislature. It was passed unanimously. Now the point I made, which Mr. Millar either overlooked or ignored was that the bill that was defeated was backed by votes, while the one that passed without any trouble had no votes behind it. Mr. Millar's argument that the Idaho bill did not pass because of the fact that the men are in a majority there is really an argument against suffrage, except where the sexes are practically equal in numbers. Our elections are costly enough now and it would scarcely be the part of wisdom to render them more costly unless good were likely to be obtained by such an increase.

Another instance of the needlessness of the vote to effect legislation that has real merit to back it was brought to my notice the other day. A vicious vivisection law had passed the New Jersey Legislature, but an energetic woman (without a vote) was able to obtain its veto. (I beg leave to state here that I am not an anti-vivisectionist, but this law gave too much license.)

I met a woman the other day who declared herself a Suffragist. "That is," she said, "I would vote if the suffrage was given us, but I have never joined any league. In fact," she went on, "I am not at all sure that the same work we want to do wouldn't be done more easily without than with the vote." Of course, I showed her that she really was an Anti-Suffragist.

Mrs. Riley further finds fault with our classing Socialists and extreme Feminists with Suffragists. Of course, we all know many of the Suffragists are as great lovers of home and even of property as we are, but "Birds of a feather flock together" and whe nthe red flag of Socialism is flaunted in their parades, and the upholders of Feminist doctrines are amongst the foremost and most quoted of their speakers, are we not justified in classing them all together. I have the article by W. L. George given me as a "strong argument" by a very domestic and quiet Suffragist.

And as to militancy. While Mrs. Pankhurst and her insane followers are lauded and feted here in America (we cannot forget that Jane Addams gave a lunch to that dreadful disturber of the peace) who shall say when our own Suffragists will flare out into action.

This communication to the New York Times is a little straw showing the drift of the current:

Woman, the Fighter.

To the Editor of the N. Y. Times:

I observe in newspaper dispatches today that it required a force of 1,500 policemen to prevent a small body of militant Suffragists from marching on Buckingham Palace to hand a petition to King George.

I also observe a dispatch from Mexico which shows that women took a very prominent part in the fighting of Zartuche last Sunday. It appears that most of the fighting in that battle was done by women.

Do not these events show that the belief in some quarters that the men of the world do all the fighting and that therefore women should not vote is erroneous? Are we not approaching a time when the women will be the fighters of the world?

at Half and Two-thirds Less than this Season's Prices

NEARLY a thousand out-of-the-ordinary gowns were received from the workrooms last Friday—out of the ordinary in style and in price.

Among them is a copy of the model which Bechoff-David called his "best gown for the summer races." The original was shown in our Spring Fashion Exhibition. It cost to land, $275. Up until Friday its reproduction, draped with silk that cost retail $7.50 yard, was in our stock at $68.50.

Tomorrow, Tuesday, this model made of the same quality of materials will be....$22.50

Martial et Armand's three-in-one gown, a dancing frock of lace which can be changed by two sets of draperies, cost to land, $325. Its reproduction has been in our stock until now at $65. That very gown is in this sale at....$22.50

Paquin's high-waisted frock of flowered crepe with pleated quilling at the foot is here carefully reproduced at....$16.50

Cheruit's best models reproduced in striped French taffeta, striped crepe de chine, shepherd check, taffeta, white linen and novelty cottons at....$16.50

Poiret's "Dress Nothing" shown in our Spring Exhibition, is carefully reproduced in this sale at....$10.75

Ratine dresses in plain colors and embroidered striped tissues at....$8.75

Group of cool, pretty striped voile dresses at....$5.75

These gowns come from the manufacturer who copied for us a great many of our Paris models. We have co-operated with him all Spring. Now, his season nearly finished, he has given us practically the key to his workroom.

We have taken our choice of the copies of our own importations and of the Paris models secured by the maker—gowns just out of the workroom and entirely fresh—at prices so low that we can offer them at a fraction of our regular rates.

If there were only one gown of a kind this collection might be called notable. But this sale is unique in that almost every model may be had in a wide variety of colors, suitable for all summer occasions.

Women who ordinarily go to Cheruit, Poiret, Paquin, Bechoff-David or Martial et Armand for their summer clothes are invited to see these surprisingly accurate copies.

ROD AND REEL

Many Plainfield fishermen took advantage of the two-day holiday and fresh water fishermen were out in great numbers in the northern part of the State yesterday. Many autoists left here Saturday to various trout streams and it is safe to say that all of the better known streams were whipped thoroughly.

Trout fishermen are finding worms the best bait now although a few are trying flies and have had fairly good luck.

Pickerel fishermen were out in great numbers and Queen City sportsmen reported fine catches at Greenwood lake, Lake Hopatcong, Split Rock Pond, Budd Lake and many other smaller places.

The Salt water anglers—the fellows who went out for plenty of fish over Decoration Day—were in their element. The deep sea boats got plenty of blackfish, with an occasional sea bass, while they fairly slaughtered the ling off the Rockaway shore and on other nearby grounds.

A Plainfielder visited Midvale over Sunday, and caught sixteen trout that averaged nine inches. He had one that went to fourteen inches but most of the speckled beauties went under the legal size.

A party from here tried the Raritan Bay over the week-end. They saw the net men get a harvest of weaks but caught few on hook and line.

An enthusiast says there is still hope of fishing in the Passaic River He saw three perch alongside of Kroll's float yesterday—and they were alive.

Fish are starting to run along the coast now and the Long Branch, Asbury Park and Ocean Grove piers were meccas for the sportsmen yesterday.

The Van Emburgh and Kiely teams are scheduled to meet in an Elks Bowling Tournament series on the club's alleys tonight. Five series are booked for this week which will be one of the busiest in the tournament. Tomorrow night the Laing and Stout forces will clash; Wednesday night Campbell meets Kiely and his pinners; Cose and Blatz forces come together Thursday night; and the grand finale will be staged Friday night with the Van Emburgh and Campbell cohorts as participants.

BURLESQUE BASEBALL SHOW WON BY PLAINS' BENEDICTS

A burlesque ball game was staged on the grounds of the Fanwood Field Club, Saturday morning, between the married and single men of that place. Storr, who did the twirling for the married set, had his younger opponents standing on their heads in all the sessions he pitched, not a run crossing the pan. Fancher did the mound work for one stanza and was touched up for five runs and was relieved by Storr.

Cressy made the best catch of the game, running to deep right field and nailing a sky scraper bare-handed. Vanderveer did some good all around work for the losers.

HOME-RUN CLOUGH SIGNED BY ELIZABETH AGGREGATION

Johnny Clough, who played left field for the Dunellen Central New Jersey League baseball team last season, has signed to play this season with Bill Howe's South Elizabeth aggregation. He played his first game with the southerners Saturday in the contest against Rahway.

Clough is recognized as one of the fastest fielders in Central New Jersey and his batting is always a feature. When with Dunellen he earned the title of "Home run" Clough because of his hard swatting in the league games.

WILLIE SIMON, YOUNGEST ENTRANT, THE VICTOR, KEEPING 25 MILE ROAD HONORS IN PLAINFIELD

Queen City Youth Let Field of Thirty-nine Starters—Had Previously Taken Second Place in Race for City Mile Title—Time Prize Went to Fred Woisen, of the Acme Wheelmen, Who Was Nosed by Inches for the Winner's Laurels—Mix-ups Occur at Starting Line—All Differences Satisfactorily Adjusted by Officials.

Racing on a slow course, against a field of experienced pedal pushers, little Willie Simon, of the Rambler A. C., a local club, led the pack over the tape in the sixth annual twenty-five mile road race of the Plainfield Cycling Club Saturday morning garnering his second honors of the holiday, having previously copped second place in the mile city title race. From the scheduled starting time until the wrinkles were smoothed out by the officials at the meeting which followed, the event was marked by occurrences that kept those in charge continually on their toes and the fact that protests were avoided and intricate situations eliminated reflects with credit on the judges, timers and referees. Bike fans swarmed to the starting tape early in the morning and when the pistol cracked shortly after 11 o'clock the course was packed from curb to curb, the minions of the law experiencing difficulty in holding the mob in submission.

Of the fifty-eight entries, thirty-nine took the mark, a fact that in itself was a surprise as many had taken for granted that the weather conditions would make the grind impossible. The delay caused by the late arrival of metropolitan entrants gave the thoroughfare over which the race was run an opportunity to dry up and shortly before the riders were sent on their way Old Sol appeared in the heavens putting the final touch to the program. Intermingled with the New York, Brooklyn, Rahway, Elizabeth, Jersey City, Bayonne and Newark wheelmen, was a plentiful springling of Queen City talent and the natives of Plainfield gave vent to their stored up enthusiasm when a youngster born and bred here romped across the line two inches in front of the veteran Fred Woisen, of the Acme Wheelmen, who copped second honors and first time prize. The fact that not a single man was eliminated for setting or taking pace fouling or cutting the course, or other minor infractions, is evidence in itself of the calibre of riders that participated and although the course record was not endangered by the returns, when the slow condition of the track is taken into consideration the records established are exceedingly creditable.

Before the first lap had been completed the grinding pace had begun to tell on many of the pedal pushers and eleven failed to circle the halfway post. No spills of any consequence were reported although several of the athletes were dumped and sustained scratches and slight bruises.

An incident occurred at the starting line which, under ordinary conditions, would have resulted seriously and would probably have produced many protests. Owing to a misunderstanding following the elimination of the two-minute class the starter sent the scratch men off two minutes ahead of the scheduled time thus cutting the handicaps of each other rider down two minutes. Simon's victory from the three minute mark and the satisfactory ruling of the referee and committee in the matter, brought about an adjustment that did away with any possibility of adverse criticism arising.

For his victory young Simon gets a Pierce bicycle of the racing model and Woisen cleaned up on two of the awards. He took the Indian racing tires for runner-up and the Crawford racer for the time prize. Eddie Simon, a brother of the winner, who had previously taken the city one-mile title, came in fourth from the two-minute mark. He was given a pair of thorn-proof tires. George Simon, a third edition of the winning family and incidentally the oldest of the trio, ranked twenty-third, just getting into the prize list. None of the Plainfield riders broke into the select class for time prizes.

FIRST EVENT FOR ALL-AROUND CITY BIKE TITLE RESOLVES ITSELF INTO FAMILY AFFAIR

Four starters faced the pistol man in the initial event for the city amateur bicycle racing championship on the mountainside course Saturday morning, three of the youths in bike togs coming from the same family. "Simon" was the handle sported by the well represented generation of pedal pushers and it is a significant fact that the lonesome fourth starter was left in the rear before the finish line was reached. Eddie Simon, second in the rollcall for age, broke the tape a winner in the mile event, with his younger brother Willie, a wheel's length behind. George, the oldest of the trio, was third and H. H. Mortenson, an outsider was fourth. Willie reversed the tables on his big brother in the main event of the morning over the same course, however, when he took the twenty-five mile road title with the city mile winner second and George third.

Although those who were interested in the outcome of the event expected to see more pedalers take the mark the quartet that participated supplied plenty of good competition as they neared the finish mark. The riders came down the home stretch closely bunched and it was anybody's race up to a few feet from the tape when Eddie jumped into the van and copped the event.

The winner's time, 2:28 1-5, is considered exceptionally good for the mile when the road conditions are considered and many cycling experts who viewed the youngster's performance expressed a belief that he would become a factor in bigger races before many more moons roll by. This event is one of five run for the city title and the diamond studded medal that goes with it.

The summaries and point score to date are as follows:

FORSEE A BASEBALL WAR IN THE FUTURE

Saurer Team Looms up as a Representative Plainfield Ball Combination.

Members of the strong Saurer baseball team, including several former semi-professional performers, are considering enanging the name of the aggregation to a representative Queen City title and those at the helm anticipate getting possession of Parker Field on alternating Saturday afternoons if this is brought about. Jack Garretson, Britt Martin, Billy Coyle, Tommy Mullin, "Snapper" Bergen, Ed Harriman and Johnny Dixon are among those having the most interest in the Saurer club and many discussions have been held recently regarding the plausibility of changing the handle of the combination.

Garretson has stated that he will not be a member of the Plainfield team this season and several others who were at one time looked upon as likely mainstays for Dorflinger's crew have shifted the scene of their playing to the Saurer lot. Many there are who think that the factory players are competent to represent this city in baseball circles and the members of the aggregation would like nothing better than to get a whack at the honors. Several home bred stars who are yearning for an opportunity to break into the semi-pro world would like to snatch this opportunity and it is not unlikely that a conference will be held with the playground management for the possession of Parker Field during this week.

The entrance of the Saurer team into the field in a fight for representative honors would no doubt be a good thing hereabouts as competitive baseball for a city's standing always raises the level of the competition produced. There are enough performers for two local teams and we would like nothing better than to see a real conflict for a city franchise.

NEW YORK CLUBS ARE SEEKING LOCAL BOY

Plainfield High School Athlete Being Watched by Metropolitan Officers.

Representatives of the Pastime A. C., who attended the Union County Athletic League field and track meet held on Pingry Oval, Saturday afternoon, stated that the program of events was one of the best conducted they had ever witnessed in schoolboy circles. Particular interest was centered around the work of Ralph Runyon, the Plainfield High School star, who competed in a phenominal manner in the pole vault.

Runyon has been snared by the Pastimers as a promising young member and they are making every effort to place him in meets to compete under the club's colors during the summer months. The recent efforts of the Irish American and New York A. C. clubs to corral the Plainfield athletes have aroused the Pastime representatives to action and they were on hand in Elizabeth Saturday to protect their charge against any invaders who might seek to gain his services.

In the event of his sticking to the Pastime club until the school term closes Runyon will be taken in hand by a professional trainer connected with the organization and given some valuable pointers that will help to improve his present record. During the past season of competition Runyon has made an enviable record in schoolboy meets and has the makings of a champion in him. This has apparently been recognized by other metropolitan clubs and he has been sought by several who offer registration blanks.

HEAVY HITTING WON DUNELLEN'S VERDICT

Kraft Peppered Hard by Rival Swatsmiths on Somerset County Field.

Harney's pitching and his teammates' heavy hitting resulted in a Dunellen verdict by a score of 7 to 3 at Somerville, Saturday afternoon. Harney fanned the last three men to face him, Freeza, Porter and Cunningham, and was master of the contest at all times. Fielding laurels went to Alberts, who made a spectacular running catch over the foul line, and to Cunningham, who grabbed one over his shoulders that came from Alberts' bat ticketed for four cushions. Giddes also played a good game:

P. H. S. RUNNER-UP FOR TRACK TITLE

Union County Championship Goes to Roselle With Locals a Close Second.

RUNYON BROKE RECORD

Red and Blue Pole Vaulter and Daniels, a Halfmiler, Star for the Queen City Delegation in the Point Winning.

Plainfield High School track team representatives ran a close second for the Union County championship honors in the competition staged on the Pingry athletic field in Elizabeth Saturday afternoon, scoring eighteen points, while the winners, Roselle High School, rolled up twenty-seven.

One of the brilliant features of the meet was the pole vaulting of Ralph Runyon, a local boy. He was an easy winner over Laggren, of Pingry, and Smith, of Somerville, at a heighth of 9 feet 9 inches. He tried for a record and had little trouble in clearing the bar at 10 feet, 2 inches. Runyon scored ten of Plainfield's eighteen points. Westfield High School was fourth and Somerville High School seventh.

Day, of P. H. S., was second in the mile run, being beaten out by Cook, of Bloomfield, who covered the route in the slow time of 5 minutes, 10 4-5 seconds.

Daniels scored Plainfield's remaining five points, taking first place in the half mile.

Cowperwaite Allows But Three Scattered Hits—Winners Runs Bunched in the Fourth Inning With Final Tally in the Lucky Seventh.

Cowperwaithe's pitching was the feature of the contest in which Westfield hung up a victory at the expense of Garwood on the Mt. Ararat grounds Saturday afternoon, the final score being 4 to 2. The contest was a thriller from start to finish, with the teams battling on almost even terms during the entire nine rounds of play. The Westfield hurler held the hit column down to three and fanned eighteen of the opposition. Masben, the opposing hurler, also did some first-class work. He is a former Marconi wireless moundsman and exhibited some excellent twirling while on the mound.

JUNGLETOWN TEAM BEATEN BY P. H. S.

Locals Put up Fine Article of Ball and Ran Away From Princeton High School.

The Plainfield High School baseball team won a hard fought game at Princeton, Saturday, from the High School team of that place by the score of 5 to 4. The local boys played like big leaguers and hit when hitting was necessary. Sminck held his opponents at bay at all times and Princeton made but four safeties off his delivery. Plainfield led in the scoring department throughout the contest and it was not until the last few innings that the home team came near tying the game up. Hetfield, Butler and Victorsen led the local batters with two bingles each.

BRONX LEAGUERS BEAT THE PETS

New Yorkers too Speedy for Local Balltossers Who Are Outhit and Outplayed.

TURNER WAS A PUZZLE

"Matty the Second" Gets Into the Limelight by Clouting Ball Over Center Field for a Four Cushion Canter.

The Plainfield baseball team met its match last Saturday on Parker Field, when the Bronx minor leaguers of New York, defeated them by the score of 12 to 3. The home team was completely outclassed in every respect, and Toerner, the visiting pitcher, had the local batsmen at his mercy at all times. The visitors were a bunch of hitters and collected thirteen bingles off two pitchers, one of which was a circuit clout in center field. Bauman, who started to twirl for the local team, was hit hard and was relieved by Stewart, who fared little better.

The visitors started things going in the first inning and pulled two runs over the plate on clean hits. In the third round they also made two tallies, but were blanked in the next inning. Plainfield found Toerner for a few minutes in the fourth and scored two runs on two hits and an error.

In the next stanza the visitors put the game away by scoring four runs. Bauman was hit hard and after two runs had been made, Hank Mathewson, brother of "Christy," hit the ball to center field for a home run, scoring one ahead of him.

Wonder, Mathewson and Moritarity did some fine hitting for the visitors, while Nelson caught a stellar game for the locals. This team will appear on Parker Field again later in the season.

NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

FORGET-ME-NOT SPRAYS FOR EMBROIDERING MANY THINGS

Now that the warm weather is coming, the vanity bag will play a lively part with "milady." Attractive little ones may be made from lovely bits of colored ribbon, silk or of fine white linen. These may be lined with chamois and embroidered with small forget-me-nots sprays and bowknots, which are found in pattern No. 13448. The flowers may be developed in solid work in two shades of blue and one of pink, the leaves in solid green and the bowknots in solid work or outline and seed-stitch in a pale blue. If preferred, this design may be carried out entirely in white. There are 14 tiny sprays and bowknots, which are suitable for trimming waists, neckwear, underwear, children's dresses, infant's dresses, caps, bibs, shoes and many fancy articles. They may be combined to form larger bunches or used as they are for scattering over a surface.

Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer patterns will be supplied to readers for 10 cents.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

In this design we have a single-breasted raglan coat with two large patch pockets, a mannish collar and revers and the favored flare at the bottom. It is quite a fad this season to make these coats in waterproof material; tweeds, homespuns and other coating stuffs often are faced with a thin rubber and others are put through a process which makes them rainproof. This is a very practical idea as many of us can not afford to have more than one top coat. This design could be suitably made up in any of the foregoing materials or if desired, for more dressy purposes, could be made up in cloth and fine serge or gabardine, the patch pockets being omitted. This coat may be copied in size 36, with 3⅝ yards of 42-inch material. These coating materials all average 42 inches in width, while many of them are as wide as 54 inches. In price, they range from $1.50 a yard and up. The pattern is cut in six sizes, 34 to 44.

This is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

GREEN PEPPERS WITH MEAT.

FOR a substantial dish green peppers may be stuffed with meat or with a mixture containing meat. Wash the peppers, removing stems, seeds and membranes. Boil five minutes, plunge in cold water, drain and fill with any preferred mixture.

Stuffed With Fish.

Stuffed With Salmon.—Cut the stem end from green peppers and scoop out the seeds. Make a salad with one can of salmon, one teaspoonful of pepper seeds, one cupful of chopped celery and sweet pickles. Mix with thick mayonnaise. Stuff the pepper shells and serve on lettuce leaves. A stuffed olive or piece of parsley may be put in the end of the pepper as a garnish.

Stuffed With Oysters.—Remove the stems and seeds from green peppers. Parboil oysters in their own liquor and season with salt. Chop fine half of a large pepper and one very small onion and fry in butter. Mix the fried pepper and onion and oysters together and add breadcrumbs until the stuffing is of a suitable consistency. Stuff the peppers, dot with butter and bake until brown. They may be served with tomato or cream sauce.

Substantial Foods.

Stuffed With Beef.—Take one onion, eight green peppers, one pound of lean raw beef, one egg, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one tablespoonful of onion grated or chopped very fine. Cut off the tops of the peppers and remove the seeds. Mix the meat with the egg and the seasoning and fill the peppers with this mixture. Put the onion in the stewpan and just cover with water. Put the peppers in this and stew until they are done.

Stuffed With Veal.—Take large peppers, soak them in salt and water, changing the water constantly to make them less pungent. Cut out the vein that makes them so hot and stuff them with finely chopped veal seasoned with salt, butter, a little onion and parsley, some sweet herbs and crumbs of bread. Stuff the peppers and fry in butter. Serve with a rich gravy.

Every Year the Parade Grows Smaller.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—What the Memorial Day Procession Now Means.

JACK and Evelyn had been watching the parade that went to the cemetery in the morning. They were both impressed by the few soldiers that there were left to march. In fact, it had made Evelyn feel sad.

When daddy was about to begin his story Jack first wanted to tell daddy all about the parade they had seen.

"Every year," began daddy, "that parade grows smaller. But then we mustn't feel sad about it, but proud that these men who once were soldiers in the war still come out on Decoration day to carry flags to their comrades in war. They would feel too old, too frail, to come out perhaps for anything else, and it just shows us what a wonderful thing patriotism is.

"They want to show to the boys and girls of today what it means to go every year to put new flags on the soldiers' graves—new flags in reality, but also copies of the flag that will never grow old, the flag that has waved over this country since the days of 1776 and the flag that will always wave over this country while the boys and girls feel pride in a little procession such as you saw today.

"It is a very simple thing for them to decorate the soldiers' graves, but it is one of those many simple things that count more than many of the big things.

"The soldiers who have fought for their country should indeed be remembered by placing on their graves the flag for which they fought—the flag for which they gave up everything.

"And so I hope that when you think over the meaning of Decoration day you will feel that, although it may never be necessary for you to fight for your country, there are other things to be done for it.

"Not only is Decoration day a memorial to the brave men who have lived and died for their country, but it should help us to be worthy of these men who gave us our country and our freedom.

"So we never want to do anything which would make us feel that if they were alive today they would ever be ashamed of us.

"And I am certain my little children will try to be the very finest citizens, for every one counts in a great, big free country like this, and each one helps to make some one else stronger, more patriotic, because bravery sometimes—often, in fact—is not just the being brave in war, for we may never have to fight in a war, but we want to be strong so that we will be brave to meet anything that arises.

"So there are two things never to forget—one that we must remember the fine soldiers who fought for freedom and the other that we are to so live that we are worthy of them."

A LODGING FOR THE NIGHT

By Robert Louis Stevenson

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. The choice of Booth Tarkington, Jack London, Alfred Henry Lewis and Richard Harding Davis was "A Lodging For the Night," by Robert Louis Stevenson.

BOOTH TARKINGTON

PART II.

THE house in question looked dark at first sight, but as Villon made a preliminary inspection in search of the handiest point of attack a little twinkle of light caught his eye from behind a curtained window.

"The devil!" he thought. "People awake! Some student or some saint, confound the crew! Can't they get drunk and lie in bed snoring like their neighbors? What's the good of curfew and poor devils of bell ringers jumping at a rope's end in bell towers? What's the use of day if people sit up all night? The gripes to them!" He grinned as he saw where his logic was leading him. "Every man to his business after all," added he, "and if they're awake, by the Lord, I may come by a supper honestly for once and cheat the devil."

He went boldly to the door and knocked. The sound of his blows echoed through the house with thin, phantasmal reverberations, as though it were quite empty, but these had scarcely died away before a measured tread drew near, a couple of bolts were withdrawn, and one wing was opened broadly, as though no guile or fear of guile were known to those within. A tall figure of a man muscular and spare, but a little bent, confronted Villon. The head was massive, but finely sculptured; the nose blunt at the bottom, but refining upward to where it joined a pair of strong and honest eyebrows; the mouth and eyes surrounded with delicate markings, and the whole face based upon a thick white beard, boldly and squarely trimmed.

"You knock late, sir," said the old man in resonant, courteous tones.

Villon cringed and brought up many servile words of apology. At a crisis of this sort the beggar was uppermost in him, and the man of genius hid his head with confusion.

"You are cold," repeated the old man, "and hungry? Well, step in." And he ordered him into the house with a noble enough gesture.

"Some great seigneur," thought Villon, as his host, setting down the lamp on the flagged pavement of the entry, shot the bolts once more into their places.

"You will pardon me if I go in front," he said when this was done, and he preceded the poet upstairs into a large apartment, warmed with a pan of charcoal and lit by a great lamp hanging from the roof. It was very bare of furniture; only some gold plate on a sideboard, some folios and a stand of armor between the windows. Some smart tapestry hung upon the walls representing the crucifixion of our Lord in one piece and in another a scene of shepherds and shepherdesses by a running stream. Over the chimney was a shield of arms.

"Will you seat yourself," said the old man, "and forgive me if I leave you? I am alone in my house tonight, and if you are to eat I must forage for you myself."

No sooner was his host gone than Villon leaped from the chair on which he had just seated himself and began examining the room with the stealth and passion of a cat. Then he stood in the middle of the room, drew a long breath, and, retaining it with puffed cheeks, looked round and round him, turning on his heels, as if to impress every feature of the apartment on his memory.

"Seven pieces of plate," he said. "If there had been ten I would have risked it. A fine house and a fine old master, so help me all the saints!"

And just then, hearing the old man's tread returning along the corridor, he stole back to his chair and began humbly toasting his wet legs before the charcoal pan.

His entertainer had a plate of meat in one hand and a jug of wine in the other. He set down the plate upon the table, motioning Villon to draw in his chair and going to the sideboard, brought back two goblets, which he filled.

"I drink your better fortune," he said gravely, touching Villon's cup with his own.

"To our better acquaintance," said the poet, growing bold. A mere man of the people would have been awed by the courtesy of the old signor, but Villon was hardened in that matter; he had made mirth for great lords before now and found them as black rascals as himself. And so he devoted himself to the viands with a ravenous gusto, while the old man, leaning backward, watched him with steady, curious eyes.

"You have blood on your shoulder, my man," he said.

Montigny must have laid his wet right hand upon him as he left the house. He cursed Montigny in his heart.

"It was none of my shedding," he stammered.

"I had not supposed so," returned his host quietly. "A brawl?"

"Well, something of that sort," Villon admitted with a quaver.

"Perhaps a fellow murdered?"

"Oh, no, not murdered," said the poet, more and more confused. "It was all fair play—murdered by accident. I had no hand in it. God strike me dead!" he added fervently.

"One rogue the fewer, I dare say," observed the master of the house.

"You may dare to say that," agreed Villon, infinitely relieved. "As big a rogue as there is between here and Jerusalem. He turned up his toes like a lamb. But it was a nasty thing to look at. I dare say you've seen dead men in your time, my lord?" he added, glancing at the armor.

"Many," said the old man. "I have followed the wars, as you imagine. Have you any money?"

"I have one white," returned the poet, laughing. "I got it out of a dead jade's stocking in a porch. She was as dead as Caesar, poor wench, and as cold as a church, with bits of ribbon sticking in her hair. This is a hard world in winter for wolves and wenches and poor rogues like me."

"I," said the old man, "am Enguerrand de la Feuillee, signor de Brisetout, bailie du Patatrac. Who and what may you be?"

Villon rose and made a suitable reverence. "I am called Francis Villon," he said, "a poor master of arts of this university. I know some Latin and a deal of vice. I can make chansons, ballads, lais, virelais and roundels, and I am very fond of wine. I was born in a garret, and I shall not improbably die upon the gallows. I may add, my lord, that from this night forward I am your lordship's very obsequious servant to command."

"No servant of mine," said the knight. "My guest for this evening, and no more."

"A very grateful guest," said Villon politely, and he drank in dumb show to his entertainer.

"You are shrewd," began the old man, tapping his forehead, "very shrewd. You have learning. You are a clerk, and yet you take a small piece of money off a dead woman in the street. Is it not a kind of theft?"

"It is a kind of theft much practiced in the wars, my lord."

"The wars are the field of honor," returned the old man proudly. "There a man plays his life upon the cast. He fights in the name of his lord the king, his Lord God, and all their lordships, the holy saints and angels."

"Put it," said Villon, "that I were really a thief, should I not play my life also and against heavier odds?"

"For gain, but not for honor."

"Gain?" repeated Villon, with a shrug. "Gain! The poor fellow wants supper and takes it. So does the soldier in a campaign. Why, what are all these requisitions we hear so much about?"

"These things are a necessity of war, which the lowborn must endure with constancy. Look at us two," said his lordship. "I am old, strong and honored. If I were turned from my house tomorrow hundreds would be proud to shelter me. Poor people would go out and pass the night in the streets with their children if I merely hinted that I wished to be alone. And I find you up, wandering homeless and picking farthings off dead women by the wayside! I fear no man and nothing. I have seen you tremble and lose countenance at a word. I wait God's summons contentedly in my own house, or, if it please the king to call me out again, upon the field of battle. You look for the gallows—a rough, swift death, without hope or honor. Is there no difference between these two?"

"As far as to the moon," Villon acquiesced. "But if I had been born Lord of Brisetout and you had been the poor scholar Francis, should not I have been the soldier and you the thief?"

"A thief?" cried the old man. "I a thief! If you understood your words you would repent them."

Villon turned out his hands with a gesture of inimitable impudence. "If your lordship had done me the honor to follow my argument," he said.

"I do you too much honor in submitting to your presence," said the knight. "Learn to curb your tongue when you speak with old and honorable men, or some one hastier than I may reprove you in a sharper fashion." And he rose and paced the lower end of the apartment, struggling with anger and antipathy. Villon surreptitiously refilled his cup and settled himself more comfortably in the chair, crossing his knees and leaning his head upon one hand and the elbow against the back of the chair. He was now replete and warm, and he was in nowise frightened for his host, having gauged him as justly as was possible between two such different characters. The night was far spent, and in a very comfortable fashion after all, and he felt morally certain of a safe departure on the morrow.

"Tell me one thing," said the old man, pausing in his walk. "Are you really a thief?"

"I claim the sacred rights of hospitality," returned the poet. "My lord, I am."

"You are very young," the knight continued.

"I should never have been so old," replied Villon, showing his fingers, "if I had not helped myself with these ten talents. They have been my nursing mothers and my nursing fathers."

"You may still repent and change."

"I repent daily," said the poet. "There are few people more given to repentance than poor Francis. As for change, let somebody change my circumstances. A man must continue to eat, if it were only that he may continue to repent."

"The change must begin in the heart," returned the old man solemnly.

"My dear lord," answered Villon, "do you really fancy that I steal for pleasure? I hate stealing like any other piece of work or of danger. My teeth chatter when I see a gallows. But I must eat, I must drink, I must mix in society of some sort. What the devil! Man is not a solitary animal—cui Deus faeminam tradit. Make me king's pantler, make me abbot of St. Denis, make me bailie of the Patatrac, and then I shall be changed indeed. But as long as you leave me the poor scholar Francis Villon, without a farthing, why, of course, I remain the same."

"The grace of God is all powerful."

"I should be a heretic to question it," said Francis. "It has made you lord of Brisetout and bailie of the Patatrac. It has given me nothing but the quick wits under my hat and these ten toes upon my hands. May I help myself to wine? I thank you respectfully. By God's grace, you have a very superior vintage."

The lord of Brisetout walked to and fro with his hands behind his back. Somehow he yearned to convert the young man to a better way of thinking and could not make up his mind to drive him forth again into the street.

"There is something more than I can understand in this," he said at length. "Your mouth is full of subtleties, and the devil has led you very far astray, but the devil is only a very weak spirit before God's truth, and all his subtleties vanish at a word of true honor, like darkness at morning. Listen to me once more. I learned long ago that a gentleman should live chivalrously and lovingly to God and the king and his lady, and, though I have seen many strange things done, I have still striven to command my ways upon that rule. It is not only written in all noble histories, but in every man's heart, if he will take care to read. You speak of food and wine, and I know very well that hunger is a difficult trial to endure, but you do not speak of other wants. You have totally forgotten the great and only real ones, like a man who should be doctoring toothache on the judgment day, for such things as honor and love and faith are not only nobler than food and drink, but indeed I think we desire them more and suffer more sharply for their absence. I speak to you as I think you will most easily understand me. Are you not, while careful to fill your belly, disregarding another appetite in your heart, which spoils the pleasure of your life and keeps you continually wretched?"

Villon was sensibly nettled under all this sermonizing. "You think I have no sense of honor!" he cried. "I'm poor enough, God knows! It's hard to see rich people with their gloves and you blowing in your hands. An empty belly is a bitter thing, although you speak so lightly of it. If you had had as many as I, perhaps you would change your tune. Anyway, I'm a thief—make the most of that—but I'm not a devil from hell, God strike me dead! I would have you to know I've an honor of my own as good as yours, though I don't prate about it all day long as if it was a God's miracle to have any. It seems quite natural to me. I keep it in its box till it's wanted. Why, now, look you here, how long have I been in this room with you? Did you not tell me you were alone in the house? Look at your gold plate! You're strong, if you like, but you're old and unarmed, and I have my knife. What did I want but a jerk of the elbow and here would have been you with the cold steel in your bowels, and there would have been me, linking in the streets, with an armful of golden cups! Did you suppose I hadn't wit enough to see that? And I scorned the action. There are your d——d goblets, as safe as in a church; there are you, with your heart ticking as good as new, and here am I, ready to go out again as poor as I came in, with my one white that you threw in my teeth! And you think I have no sense of honor—God strike me dead!"

The old man stretched out his right arm. "I will tell you what you are," he said. "You are a rogue, my man, an impudent and black hearted rogue and vagabond. I have passed an hour with you. Oh, believe me, I feel myself disgraced! And you have eaten and drunk at my table. But now I am sick at your presence. The day has come and the night bird should be off to his roost. Will you go before or after?"

"Which you please," returned the poet rising. "I believe you to be strictly honorable." He thoughtfully emptied his cup. "I wish I could add you were intelligent," he went on, knocking on his head with his knuckles. "Age, age; the brains stiff and rheumatic!"

"God pity you," said the lord of Brisetout at the door.

"Goodby, papa," returned Villon, with a yawn. "Many thanks for the cold mutton."

The door closed behind him. The dawn was breaking over the white roofs. A chill, uncomfortable morning ushered in the day. Villon stood and heartily stretched himself in the middle of the road.

"A very dull old gentleman," he thought. "I wonder what his goblets may be worth?"

HONOR LIVING AND DEAD

year they re-enact on memory's field the horrid scenes of war, and turn in grateful prayer to Him through whom the victory came and long-abiding peace. Yes, victory came, and with it a promise of long years of peace and honor among the nations. Above the clouds just arising on our southern horizon the honor of our nation is lifted aigh in universal recognition. Already your children have lifted their strong young arms to defend the honor of our flag. God speed them on their mission, and bring peaceful swift rewards. Day after day our nation's younger sons leap to the ranks, ready to bear the trials of camp and march and burdens of war, eager to do battle for humanity and our country's honor. And what a tribute to the veterans of today. The States united rise in their preserved unity under one flag. No North nor South, but the union of States and sentiments, cemented by the blood of a nation's heroes.

"Well blest the country that has sons to lend
From trades of peace to learn the trade of war—
Thrice blest the nation that has every son
A soldier, ready for the warning sound,
Who marches homeward when the fight is done,
To swing the hammer or to till the ground.

"With what pride do we look upon our country's growing greatness, ascending year by year to her destined place among the nations. How strong the cheer that greets each armor-clad that flies the Stars and Stripes. But not from every foe do they protect us. There are dangers still within the body politic from which no battleships protect us nor regiments secure us. The body of our nation, though armor-clad and accourted cannot save the nation's soul from danger. We are constitutionally, at least, a Christian nation. On Christian principles our national morality is builded. Deny God and you bind the feet of American progress. Take from the citizen his belief in God and you leave him logically free to spread the faith of anarchy. Tell him there is no God and perjury has no meaning for him, and the most enduring safeguard of our nation is destroyed.

"Well we may ask, though confident of the answer, what is the future of our country to be?

"By what astrology of fear or hope
Dare I to cast the horoscope?

"There exist now doleful prophets, who see in the complex and conflicting elements of our national life the seeds of decay and dissolution. Is this, the most glorious fabric ever erected by the hand of man for the security of human rights, and the shelter of human freedom, to share the fate of those Republics which live only as a memory of bygone greatness?

"Rome, the world-conquering Empire, whose sun-eyed eagles spread their pinions under every quarter of the heavens, whose royal standards spoke allegiance to the nations of the world, was pulled down from her towering grandeur; the sceptre of dominion dropped from her nerveless grasp; and, though venerable in her antiquity, proud in her desolation, and still beautiful in her ruins, she has for nearly a score of centuries presented to the eyes of mankind the inglorious spectacle of the pomp of civilization, and the pride of imperial power, when cast down by corruption and debilitated by crime and folly.

"Greece, the land of the mighty, where valor found a glorious death or laurelled victory; Eden of the classic world, where Plato's godlike lore was taught and Sapho's songs were sung; where the chisel gave form and beauty to the dull rock and made it breathe and live; where Olympia's towers resounded with Orphean lyre and mid shady grots and valleys green' the muses sent their vocal strains to salute the skies; Greece, the nurse of arms and the mother of science, is fallen. She has become the sepulchre of the mighty dead, whose smouldering ashes spread as dust upon the fields of vanished glory. Her arts are no more; her shrines are laid low, and through her forsaken halls and fallen temples and all her ruined walls, stalks gaunt desolation.

"And how shall it fare with us? It may be that our experience shall but add to the lessons of history, and that the disaster predicted by the prophets of the old world despotisms shall one day overtake us. It may be that the mournful story of the past Republics shall be written upon the broken and shattered ruins of our social fabric. It may be that the sun of our national glory shall go down in blood, shining sullenly upon the 'dishonored fragment of a once glorious Union,' that violence and turbulence shall rend asunder the bonds which now unite us, and scatter them in wild confusion through the world. It may be that the smiling fields of our prosperity and the green valleys of our contentment, where Columbia's sons now repose in security and peace, may be devastated by the tornadoes of anarchy or blighted by the chilling frosts of despotism. It may be so, my country men, it may be that the light of our nation's grandeur shall sink in shame and dishonor, if religious rancor or sectional animosity shall estrange a portion of our people from this now glorious and inreparable union; if infamous venality or political intrigue should sap the foundations of patriotism and dry up the springs of loyalty; if unlimited and God-defying prosperity should open the flood gates of corruption and material advancement as the only goal of our ambition, should blind us to the need of moral and intellectual cultivation; if wealth should make us aristocratic and debauched, like the effete nobility of Europe; if power should make us arrogant and tyrannous; fanaticism, intollerant; pride and the gross pursuit of venal ambition, insensible of the great Almighty source from whom our blessings flow. But I hold no such dolorous view of my country's hopes and prosperity. I cast no such dismal horoscope of my country's future for I hold that sin and vice alone can make a people weak; wickedness makes them old; ungodliness, infirm and tottering. But in the fear of the Lord, there is the strength, the power, the beauty of perpetual youth.

"In the proud sovereignity of the individual vote, there is a dignity shared in our Republic by rich and poor alike. The birthright of American citizenship transmitted as an inheritance is more precious than the boasted heraldry and pomp of royal power. By its proper exercise we are assured of the blessings peculiar to our American institutions. Inasmuch as the preservation of those cherished institutions depends upon the independence of the individual voter, so much the more disastrous must be their destruction if the individual independence is exercised but indifferently, or, worse, placed in the market as a purchasable commodity wherein the buyer shares with the seller in the iniquity of the transaction.

"Upon us rests a grave responsibility. Upon us and those who follow us, upon the young especially, 'the good man's hope and the patriot's trust,' upon those parents and teachers to whom the education of the young is entrusted rests with fearful weight this grave responsibility. It is the virtue of word and example that gives power and influence to the nation. The little child at the mother's knee who is being trained in virtue and truth is already an element of strength, and the mother who is molding his character, no matter what other uplifting influences yet may come to her, is fulfilling the duties of citizenship better than if she had a thousand ballots and fail in this duty, and spoke on every suffrage platform in the country.

"It is in this absorbing sense of responsibility that we take from your trembling hands, respected and venerated veterans, the national trust you have left to the coming generation. May the God of righteousness inspire and preserve within us a national morality worthy of the sacred trust you have transmitted to our keeping. May this sentiment of confidence brighten the sunset hours of your fast declining day. Honor to the living and honor to the dead on this Memorial Day. To the living, loving greetings; to the dead, balmy rest. Weave your chaplets of flowers and lay them tenderly upon their tomb. In the voiceless valley where they lie, the hum of earth's distracting care shall never come. The summer breeze will sigh in sadness above their couch of rest. The wild birds will make mournful music near their lowly dwelling place; and when the first sun-beams of each returning spring shall pierce the dewy mould, the lovely violet shall bloom above their grass-grown graves; and when, responsive to the archangel's summons, Time shall fade away and the earth be swallowed in eternity, then shall the illustrious and heroic dead who died for liberty march upon the palmy summit of Paradise and take their seats near that everlasting throne which all the wars and revolutions of a thousand worlds can never overturn."

HORSE DAY OBSERVED

horse and wagon. Sometimes drivers step on the shafts in getting in and out of wagons; this is often the cause of sore backs on horses. Carts should be loaded so that the shafts will not bear on the horse's back. Always leave the whiffletree hung between the shaft bar.

"Never shout or use rough words to your horse. You will get much more from him by kindness. Never whip or be cruel to a balky horse. Balkiness is a kind of disease. When your horse is afraid of anything, if it is possible, drive slowly up to it and let him look at it. Never whip him when he is frightened.

"Love your horse and he will love you. Kind, gentle, encouraging word will make him want to obey you. Try them and use the whip as little as possible and never in the stable.

"Never go to saloons. Never take any intoxicating drink. Many poor, tired horses go all night or longer without water or feed when their drivers have been drinking. Do not drink at all. You will never be sorry for not drinking, but you and your family and your friends may be sorry if you do."

SCHOOL BUDGET FINALLY ADOPTED

City Council Approves Appropriation of $109,130 for Educational Purposes.

PASS TAX ORDINANCE

Board of Health Ask for Permission to Retain Fees—Water Company Reminds Council it Has Not Renewed Contract—Many Petitions.

The Board of School Estimate in a communication to the Common Council at its June meeting, last night, certified that $109,130 would be needed for the maintenance of the schools for the coming year, exclusive of the amount to be received from county and State, and certified statements to that effect were offered. This is the amount agreed upon at a recent meeting of the Board.

Later in the evening Councilman Leighton Calkins offered an ordinance, a supplement to the tax ordinance, fixing that amount to be raised through taxation. The ordinance was adopted on two readings and ordered advertised, according to law.

The Board of Health requested the Council to allow that body to retain all fees collected during the year, inasmuch as it could not see its way clear to grant an extra $1,000 appropriation, making the total sum $9,000. The Board set forth that it would need the additional amount to meet certain fixed expenses. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

The Plainfield-Union Water Company informed the Council that it had voted to locate seven two-way hydrants in the Netherwood section, as requested, but called the attention of the members to the fact that the city's contract with the company expired in May, 1912, and had never been renewed.

Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, the city's counsel in the sanitary sewer matter, in a communication informed the Council that the rule to show cause for which application was made by the Borough of Middlesex, had been dismissed by Justice Bergen, and advised the members to deliver the bonds which were sold several weeks ago. This will be done at once.

A communication from the Board of Freeholders relative to the care of certain roads was referred to the street committee and then to Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed for an opinion. The agreement between the city and the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital for the care of indigent patients at the hospital, was received and filed. By the agreement the city pays a rate of $2 a day for the care of such patients.

The A. C. Thompson Automobile Company asked the Council for permission to install a 380 gallon gasolene tank at its place of business on Park avenue. This was referred to the fire and building committee. J. B. Motley and others petitioned for two lights on Richmond street and this was referred.

William J. Tallamy made a protest against the erection of frame automobile garages, stating that only recently two such structures had been built near his residence at 214 East Sixth street. He thought more strict regulation should be provided for buildings of this character. This matter was referred to the fire and building committee.

Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported receipts of $189.10 for the past month and expenditures of $55.50. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of seventeen permits during the month, and Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported the granting of twenty-one sewer permits for the same period.

Overseer-of-the-Poor Garret T. Dunham in his monthly report referred to several impovements that had been made at the Industrial Home, and stated that the monthly expenses aggregated $674.43.

Through a resolution offered by Councilman Calkins the sum of $100 was ordered paid to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., according to the annual custom, to meet Memorial Day expenses.

Resolutions offered by Councilman Francis J. Blatz and adopted, provided that cast iron pipe be used in making house connections to the sewer, that bids be received on Monday, July 6, for the construction of an addition to the sewer system, according to maps and plans filed. An ordinance introduced by the same member, read twice and ordered advertised, provided for the establishment of the grade on certain streets and fixed Monday, July 6, as the time for a public hearing.

Permission was given to the New York Telephone Company to extend its underground work in Grant avenue and South Second street. A number of petitions in connection

SCHOOL CENSUS WILL BE TAKEN THIS YEAR

Board of Education Plans to Prepare Roster of Local Pupils.

The monthly meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education was held in the High School last night, when considerable routine business was disposed of. The Board decided to hold the Plainfield High School commencement this year in the new auditorium which will be completed prior to the date set. The class day and other commencement week exercises will also be conducted in the auditorium. Work is being rushed on the high school addition and it will have a seating capacity of 1,100.

The Board also decided to take, this summer, a school census, a requisition made by the State school laws, with which the local board will have to meet. Miss Margaret Holly, the attendance officer, will have charge of this work and her report is expected to develop facts not yet known concerning the growth of the school population in Plainfield.

POPULATION WILL REGULATE LICENSES

Common Council Adopts a Fixed Policy Regarding the Liquor Question.

The supplement to the ordinance to license inns and taverns, fathered by Councilman Leighton Calkins, which provides that in the future both retail and wholesale liquor licenses shall be granted on a basis of the population, was adopted on third reading at the June meeting of the Common Council, and after Mayor Percy H. Stewart's signature is affixed will become a law. The ordinance was passed by a unanimous vote.

Mr. Calkins was much gratified with the result, and took occasion to comment on the fact. He said that he was told a year ago that it would be impossible to put through such a measure, that all such efforts were hopeless. He expressed his appreciation to his fellow members for their support, adding that while it was not a move in the direction of prohibition and consequently not approved by all prohibitionists, he did claim it to be a temperance measure. He vouchsafed the opinion that the two absent members, Messrs. Claybrook and Edgar, would have voted for the ordinance had they been present.

The ordinance provides that there shall be one retail licensed place for every 2,500 of the population and one wholesale place for every 6,000 population. It will make no change at present, but is likely to result in the granting of an additional wholesale license next year. The new measure does not affect the Tyler "zone" ordinance.

CHURCH WORKERS PLAN FOR ANNUAL SUMMER FESTIVAL

Arrangements have been completed for the annual summer festival of the Church of the Heavenly Rest which will be held on the church grounds and in the parish house, Saturday afternoon and evening, June 20. There will be a sale of fancy and useful articles many of which were made by the women of the parish and dancing will be one of the features of the occasion.

The grounds surrounding the church will be transformed into a scene of gayety with decorations and lighting effects for which the committee in charge is now planning. Refreshments will be served by a committee during the afternoon and in the evening.

VERDICT SET ASIDE.

Judge Spear, of the Circuit Court, sitting at Elizabeth, granted a ruling to show cause why a verdict granting Edward A. Knapp, of Elizabeth, $1,000 for services rendered in adjusting insurance claims on the residence of William J. Buttfield, of the borough, should not be set aside and a new trial granted. The ruling was asked for by Donald McLean, Mr. Buttfield's attorney.

SHRINERS AT NEWARK.

A number of local Shriners will attend the ceremonial session at Salaam Temple, Newark, Thursday evening of this week. The trip will be made by auto bus, the start being made from Park avenue and Second street early in the evening.

RECORD CLASS WILL GRADUATE THIS YEAR

North Plainfield High School Seniors Plan for Commencement Program.

Final arrangements are now being completed for the annual commencement exercises of the North Plainfield High School which will take place in the Plainfield theatre on the evening of June 19. The seniors have each received twenty invitations and will probably receive as many tickets. There are twenty-five in the class which makes it the largest that has ever been graduated from the borough school.

The school chorus, which consists of sixty voices, has about completed its work and will render four selections under the direction of Miss Jessie Utter, singing instructor.

The annual alumni dance, which is held at the Park Club, in honor of the seniors, is in charge of Messrs. Newton Spencer, Thomas Fetherstone and Richard Underhill, of last year's class. This closing function will undoubtedly prove a great success and a fitting finale to the school year. Rosenberg's orchestra, of New York, has been engaged for the exercises and the dance.

Those who will be graduated are, Mary Bennett, Sadie Bornmann, Edith Dalley, Lucile Ewart, Elva Force, Aline Giddes, Edna Green, Kathleen Hanlon, Flora Krausse, Virginia LaPorte, Mary Mary, Lois Peck, Beatrice Pope, Jennie Sears, Anna Warnock, Helen Woodruff, Charles Beckman, Ashley Burner, Gibson Fairman, Atwood Giddings, Franklin Lowe, Roy Love, Robert McGunnel, Estes Small and Frank Dunning.

BEST WISHES FOR RETIRING OFFICER

Council Adopts Resolutions Congratulating Police Captain Frederickson.

Proper recognition of the retirement of Police Captain Christian Frederickson, yesterday, after a continuous service of twenty-four years in the police department, was taken at the June meeting of the Common Council, last night. Councilman Juan A. Babcock, chairman of the police committee, following the adoption of the resolution retiring the captain on June 1 on half-pay, offered another resolution in which the congratulations of the Council were extended to him and expressing regret over the loss of his service, which was marked by painstaking effort and efficiency.

A copy of these resolutions were ordered drawn and framed to be presented to Captain Frederickson as a mark of esteem from the Council. All of the members joined in extending their best wishes to the retiring officer. He plans to spend the summer in his native home near Copenhagen, Denmark. A copy of the resolution providing for retirement at half-pay, will be sent to the Police Pension Commission, through which Mr. Frederickson will draw his salary.

PATRICK J. FAY TO BECOME A BENEDICT

OUTLINE PLANS FOR CELEBRATION

Dunellen Board of Trade Arranging for Observance of July 4.

ELABORATE PROGRAM

Borough Council Will Co-operate With Civic Body—Various Petitions Regarding Street Matters Are Received.

The Dunellen Council at its June meeting last night, received a communication from the Board of Trade outlining the plans for the proposed Fourth of July celebration and the borough body has decided to co-operate with the civic organization. The celebration promises to be an elaborate one, in fact the best the borough has had in many years.

The Watchung Investment Company in a communication requested the grading of Second street, between Washington and Jackson avenues, and the street committee will take the matter up with the company. A petition from the Board of Trade relative to the repairing of sidewalks on the east side of Prospect avenue, was referred to the street committee. The Mayor and borough clerk were authorized to draw a demand note for $500 to meet current bills.

The monthly report of Treasurer Isaac J. Stites showed a balance of $372. Two bids for the contract of laying crosswalks in the borough, were received. John Fedderman offered to do the work at 40 cents a square foot, while Goldson Smalley's bid was 34 cents a square foot. Mr. Smalley's bid was accepted.

Overseer-of-the-Poor Lewis Schneider was questioned by Mayor Latham regarding the case of Wladyslaw Sienkievitch, who was sent to Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield, by the Board of Health. A bill covering treatment for the man had been received by the Council. Mr. Schneider said that the man was still sick and unable to work, but his sister had informed him that just as soon as he could go to work he would pay the bill.

An ordinance relative to the establishment of grades in various thoroughfares was passed on first reading. Chairman Castner, of the street committee, reported that the cost of oiling the various streets amounted to $450 and that $120 additional will be needed to complete the job. The streets yet to be oiled are North avenue, Chestnut street to Gallagher's corner, Madison avenue, Mountainview Terrace to Fourth street, Washington avenue between the railroad track and North avenue and a twelve foot strip along North avenue. Mr. Castner also reported that the Public Service Corporation had agreed to contribute $160 towards the oiling of North avenue. The committee was empowered to repair the culvert near Kuldoshes Brothers' grocery.

Walter S. Craig, of New Market road, was present in person at the meeting and called the Council's attention to the unbearable condition of that thoroughfare on account of the dust stirred up by automobiles. He said that last Sunday automobiles passed along that road at the rate of seventy-five miles an hour.

Chairman Ryan of the committee on laws and ordinances, stated that the borough was minus a number of dogs and that within a short time several more canines would be disposed of in a humane manner.

TRAIN TELESCOPES BUT CREW ESCAPES

Fast Freight Wrecked By Broken Flange Near Bound Brook Last Night.

Twelve New Jersey Central freight cars telescoped east of the Bound Brook railroad station at 7:55 last night, when a flange on one of the forward cars snapped off causing the car to jump the tracks. The cars were reduced to a tangled heap of splinters and scrap iron and the wreckage was strewn over the westbound tracks, tying up all traffic for three hours. Although driving his train at a speed estimated at forty miles an hour, the engineer escaped injury as did also the remainder of the crew. Those nearest the derailed portion of the train were severely shaken up, but none required medical attention.

The freight was traveling on track No. 4 and when the flange broke the central part of the train smashed together with a terrific impact, sending out a report that could be heard for a considerable distance. Rumors of a catastrophe soon spread around Bound Brook and hundreds of spectators flocked to the railroad. At first it was thought that members of the train crew were caught under the pile of debris, but those fears were soon allayed.

The wrecked cars were mostly of the box type and contained little freight. During the tie-up westbound trains were sent through Bound Brook on the Lehigh Valley tracks.

MRS. CLARENCE E. S. BELLOWS PASSES AWAY

Succumbs to Complications at Her Home on Woodland Avenue Today.

Mrs. Jane Grey Bellows, wife of Clarence E. S. Bellows, died early this morning at her home, 516 Woodland avenue, from a complication of asthma and heart trouble with which she had been a sufferer for several years. The news of her death was a severe shock to her many friends, who did not realize the seriousness of her condition.

Mrs. Bellows was born in Brooklyn and lived there until sixteen years ago when she removed to Plainfield. During her residence here she made many warm personal friends and was admired for her strong womanly qualities. She was a member of Grace Episcopal church and interested in the work of the parish guilds. She was devoted to her home and family where there were strong ties. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs Robert Hazelton, of Brooklyn.

There survives a husband and two sons, Robert H. and C. E. Stanley Bellows; four sisters, Mrs. Francis C. Wernig, of this city; Mrs. Frank Thompson, Mrs. Benjamin Mammel and Miss Florence Webster Hazelton, and a brother, Henry W. Hazelton, all of Brooklyn. WILL MAKE NO CHANGE IN DEPOSITORY Council Decides to Keep Its Funds in City National Bank.

The Common Council at its June meeting, last night, decided not to change its depositories for city moneys as requested by the First National Bank and State Trust Company, which institutions previously requested a reasonable proportion of the funds on deposit. Councilman Leighton Calkins referred to the letters received from the two above-named institutions, and then explained that after careful consideration the finance committee had decided not to make any change. Mr. Calkins said that the average city balance amounted to $10,000 and nothing would be gained by dividing this amount among three institutions, and beside the Plainfield Trust Company could reasonably expect a share, although it had not made a request up to the present time.

He went on to explain that by such a division as proposed it would mean a considerable amount of bookkeeping and would only place extra work on the city treasurer, who has a right to be considered in the matter. Mr. Calkins said that the finance committee had held a conference with the representatives of the First National Bank and State Trust Company, at which time the whole matter was explained to them. Consequently there will be no change for the present.

FREE LIGHTING CASE TO BE ARGUED SOON

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed at last night's meeting of the Common Council, informed the members that the case on appeal of the Public Service Corporation against the City of Plainfield, in the matter of free lighting would be argued at the present term of court beginning today. He said that he felt sure that the higher court would sustain the decision of the Public Utilities Commission, but in case it did not, he advised that the matter be taken to another court.

A copy of the report of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, a digest of which was published in The Daily Press of yesterday, was presented to the Council and filed. The sum of $3,000 was transferred from the general to the fire fund in accordance with a resolution of Councilman Calkins.

WOULD DEFINE AUTO BUS ROUTES

Through An Ordinance Mayor Would Designate Streets to Be Used for Service.

MEASURE IS OPPOSED

Business Men's Association and Board of Trade Object to Any Restriction or Discrimination—Ordinance to be Acted Upon Later.

Believeing that the Common Council planned to take some action regarding the operation of automobile buses in Plainfield, the Business Men's Association and the Board of Trade petitioned that body, last night at its June meeting, urging that nothing be done to interrupt this service and protesting against efforts on the part of certain people to prohibit the operation of these vehicles or curtail their usefulness in bringing people into the city.

Later in the evening, Councilman Juan A. Babcock, acting for the committee on public affairs, presented an ordinance, which was read once for information, which allows the Mayor to grant or refuse licenses, restrict and designate the streets through which the auto buses and vehicles of a similar character shall be operated. It provides for a license fee of $15 for each vehicle and $20 fine for each violation. Copies of the ordinance will be sent to the members for consideration before it comes up for further action.

As was to be expected the introduction of the ordinance aroused considerable comment and not a little discussion following the meeting. There was pronounced opposition to the ordinance on the part of some of the members of the Council and there is no doubt but that when the ordinance comes up for a final vote there will be difficulty experienced in putting it through in its present form.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart in commenting on the ordinance after the meeting, said that he did not want anyone to understand that he was opposed to the auto bus service in any sense, but he believed that it should be under proper regulation and subject to the orders of the Mayor. He said that he had held several conferences with the representatives of the auto bus companies and the latter felt disposed to enter into an amicable arrangement, and he had expressed his willingness to meet the representatives half way.

However, the Mayor thought that as the buses are assuming such size that it was time that steps be taken to properly regulate their operation. He had no doubt but that a satisfactory arrangement could be made that would not interfere with the service.

Only recently, A. H. Atterbury, of West Seventh street, protested to the Common Council against the buses running through that street. It is no doubt due to this fact that some people have the idea that there is opposition to the bus service. In the opinion of many one street is no better than another for such a service and no discrimination should be made.

MAYOR STEWART NAMES THREE NEW PATROLMEN

John Fritts, Joseph H. Hayles and J. J. Neylon were named by Mayor Percy H. Stewart, at the June meeting of the Common Council, last night, as patrolmen on the local force to serve from June 15 next to January 1, 1915. They were confined through a resolution offered by Councilman Juan A. Babcock, chairman of the police committee.

The new men will be expected to serve a probationary period before being made regulars, in accordance with the rules of the department.

COUNCIL DECIDES TO PURCHASE ANOTHER ENGINE

Through a resolution offered by Councilman C. C. Graves at the June meeting of the Common Council, last night, advertisement for bids for furnishing the city with a triple combination auto fire engine to be placed in the Netherwood firehouse, was authorized, as foretold in the Daily Press yesterday.

The new apparatus will be a combination auto fire engine, hook and lader and hose cart combined and will be a better one than the Nott engine now located at headquarters. Bids will be received at the meeting of the Council on Wednesday night, June 17.

COULD NOT DELIVER THE WINNING PUNCH

Plainfield High School Nine Lost Hard Game to the Pingry Players.

A poor inning cost Plainfield High School a defeat yesterday afternoon, at the hands of the ball team representing Pingry School, of Elizabeth. The score was 2 to 1. Both teams played a classy game of baseball, Pingry making four misplays and Plainfield one. Brick was in good form for Plainfield, giving but two passes and fanning five men. Only four hits were made off his delivery, while the local lads scored six off Langstaff.

As usual Plainfield had a chance to win out in the ninth, but the necessary punch was lacking and Pingry carried the bacon to Elizabeth.

"RED" GRIMES WILL PLAY WITH PLAINFIELD OUTFIT

Next Sunday afternoon the Plainfield Sunday baseball team will meet Jimmy Montross' fast Dunellen contingent on the South Plainfield diamond. Captain Mullin, of the Plainfield nine, has three new players signed who will take part in their first contest this week.

PLAINFIELD WILL FACE A "S. O" WONDER SATURDAY

Plainfield will have its work cut out Saturday afternoon when Manager Dorflinger takes his Pets to Westfield to lineup against Manager McDonald's aggregation in the first of a series of inter-city ball matches. The Westfield team is considered much stronger this year than it was last, and possesses one of the best hurlers in this vicinity.

In Saturdays game against Garwood, Cowperwaithe allowed but four hits and fanned eighteen batters. Just what the Pets will do against this article of twirling remains to be seen, but Manager Dorflinger intends to take a strong lineup to the place for the game.

COUNTY TITLE GAME HAS BEEN POSTPONED

The second game for the Somerset County baseball championship between the North Plainfield and Somerville High School teams has been indefinitely postponed. In the last game played at Somerville last week one of the home players was hurt and the management does not wish to encounter the boroughites on Hyde Oval without their regular lineup.

Manager Beckman and Captain Smalley, of the N. P. H. S. baseball team, went to Somerville yesterday and tried to arrange a game for this week, but were unable to. Manager VanFleet explained that there was no use in throwing the title away by coming here with a poor team and the local management accepted this as a legitimate excuse. The team will go to Woodbridge tomorrow afternoon by automobile.

FINAL LEAGUE GAME.

Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools will meet in the final contest of the Interscholastic League race on Hyde Oval next Saturday afternoon.

MISS WILDEY LOST HARD FOUGHT SERIES

Local Woman Player Defeated by Miss Marion Fenno in Championship.

Brilliant play between tennis players from New York, Boston and Philadelphia's leading racquet clubs featured the opening day's program of the annual Women's Pennsylvania Eastern States Championship Tournament yesterday afternoon, on the courts of the Merion Cricket Club, Haverford. One of the best matches of the day was the one between Miss Edna Wildey, of this city, and Miss Marion Fenno, of Boston. Both won from Philadelphia players before they met in the opening round, Miss Wildey defeating Miss Eleanor Hopkins in two sets, and Miss Fenno eliminating Miss E. Dougherty in two sets.

The Plainfield player was defeated by Miss Fenno in an exciting match which attracted an unusual amount of interest from the large gallery present. Miss Wildey made her opponent work hard every minute of the time, losing after a hard struggle in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4.

PLAINFIELD BALL PLAYERS ON THE BIGGER CIRCUITS

Girard, the former High Bridge High School twirler, who starred in games against North Plainfield High School last season, is making an enviable record for himself in a Lafayette College uniform. In Saturday's game against Ursinus he engaged in a pitching duel with Johnson of the rival side. After a teammate had made the first base hit of the game in the tenth inning Girard came across with a single that brought the winning run across the pan, the final score being 2 to 1. Girard twirled against Plainfield in a High Bridge uniform last season in the Central New Jersey League race. He is a freshman in Lafayette.

Jack Martin continues to hold down the difficult corner in the Boston Brave camp. In a double header with Brooklyn yesterday, his team dropped both contests, but he managed to garner one of the few hits made. In the two games he handled five putouts and four assists without an error.

Doc Scanlon, former Central New Jersey twirler and at one time a Brooklyn National Leaguer, pitched in fine form for the Bay Ridge Athletics at Bay Ridge, Saturday, shutting out the New York fire department team 6 to 0. Scanlon allowed only three hits, struck out thirteen men and gave no passes.

One run in the ninth inning won a 6 to 5 verdict for the York team of the Tri-State League over Wilmington yesterday. Lidgate, the Fanwood youth, scored two runs, two hits and accepted five putouts and three assists without an error.

LEALS IN ACTION.

The Carteret Academy team is due to appear on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon for a game with the Leal School team, of this city.

COURT TO FIX GUILT IN WRECK

Joint Probe by British and Canadian Officials.

CAPTAINS DO NOT AGREE.

Commanders at Odds on Cause of the Collision — Kendall Says Liner Was Stopped—Anderson Says She Was Making Speed.

CAPTAINS' STATEMENTS ON DISASTER DISAGREE.

Captain Kendall and Captain Anderson in their public statements agree that fog signals were exchanged when their vessels were a considerable distance apart, but there are irreconcilable statements as to the speed and as to the Storstad's conduct immediately after the collision.

Extracts from the captains' statements follow:

Captain Kendall—I saw my ship was stopped. I blew two long blasts, meaning, "My ship is stopped and has no way upon her."

Captain Anderson—The Empress was going a good speed ahead. She was going fast. She was making considerable headway.

Captain Kendall—I shouted to the Storstad to keep his ship full speed ahead to fill the hole made. He backed away. The Empress then began to fill and listed over rapidly.

Captain Anderson—The Storstad's engines were ordered ahead for the purpose of holding her bow against the side of the Empress and thus preventing the entrance of water into the vessel. The headway of the Empress swung the Storstad around in such a way as to twist the Storstad out of the hole.

Montreal, June 2.—The placing of the responsibility for the sinking of the Empress of Ireland, in which 960 lives were lost, promises to be one of the greatest fights in the history of admiralty courts.

It is evident from the stand taken by the representatives here of the owners of the Storstad, which rammed the Empress, and also by that taken by the Canadian Pacific officers, that many months will pass before a final decision is reached by the board before which evidence regarding the collision will be heard.

Preliminaries have been begun. Captain George Lindsay, wreck superintendent of Canada, has summoned witnesses who will be heard at the inquiry.

Within a few days legislation will be passed by the Canadian parliament authorizing the appointment of a special commission of three to make the fullest investigation of the accident. The investigation by the commission will be along similar lines to that which Lord Mersey conducted in England at the time of the Titanic disaster.

Members of Commission Chosen.

The Canadian members of this commission will be Sir Adolphe Routhier, chief of the court of admiralty of Quebec, and Ezekiel McLeod, chief justice and judge of the admiralty court of the province of New Brunswick.

The representative of the British government, who will complete the commission, will in all probability be a judge.

G. L. Yaux, a member of the British board of trade, who is on his way here, is a member of the legal staff of the Canadian Pacific. E. L. Newcombe, deputy minister of justice, will probably have charge of the case for the Canadian government.

Both Captains In Montreal.

Captain H. G. Kendall of the Empress and Captain Thomas Anderson of the Storstad are both here. Captain Kendall is still suffering much from his injuries, and he refuses to make any additions to the story he told before the coroner at Rimouski.

When Captain Anderson of the Storstad was shown the official statement issued on his behalf he said it was quite correct and added:

"When Captain Kendall shouted through the megaphone I shouted back, but I did not have a megaphone at hand, so I shouted as loud as I could and our man on the lookout heard me call. And I did go full ahead. I kept my handle on the telegraph to the engine room and the very moment we touched the other ship I rang the engine full speed ahead.

"But the Empress was going a good speed ahead, and it was impossible for me to keep our boat in the hole. She was going fast. She disappeared from this ship and for a long time I kept blowing my whistle, but I heard nothing until the cries."

Look to Your Feet

The new styles in woman's dress brings especial attention to the feet. A new style skirt, with shabby or out of style shoes, is a serious reflection to the wearer's taste.

No matter how elaborate the dress there is a Queen Quality Shoe to go with it. For street wear, formal occasion, house or outing, there is an appropriate shoe.

POOR SARCASM.

Seumas McManus may know how to write fairy stories, but when he prepares a letter for publication, which he considers sarcastic, in order to try to ridicule a man with as splendid a reputation as City Judge DeMeza, he goes wide of the mark. The Daily Press makes it a rule to print all letters which are sent to it, when they are properly signed, and that is all that accounts for our publication elsewhere today of McManus' communication. We have, however, not the slightest sympathy for the contents thereof, and believe people in the city, familiar with the circumstances, commend Judge DeMeza for his action.

McManus admits that he was "an eminently burglarious-looking person," whatever that may be, and that he "sauntered up and down in front of the house" for some time, thus naturally exciting the suspicion of one of the best men on the local police force. He admits that he refused to tell the officer whom he was, and every intelligent citizen knows that an officer has a perfect right to demand the name of a person whom he thinks is acting suspiciously.

Judge DeMeza, when the case came in court was lenient with McManus, not wishing to injure him in his profession, and considerately let him go, saying in so doing that he had been decidedly indiscreet in not telling the officer at once who he was. McManus may have thought that his fame was such that everyone knew him by sight, but until this instance we think it safe to say that mighty few people in Plainfield realized that such a celebrity lived within our borders. Then Mr. McManus must remember that policemen do not read every fairy story that appears in the magazines.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Examiners sent by the Board of Fire Underwriters to investigate fire fighting and prevention conditions in Plainfield certainly take a mighty pessimistic view of things in the city and borough. While no one disputes that all of the things which they recommend would be very nice, we are inclined to believe that no other community offers such a perfect condition of affairs with regard to the fire department as the underwriters examiners seem to think is needed here.

With a tax rate soaring above $2.10 per $100, and scores of other things needed in the city we are incined to believe that it will be some time before a lot of things are ordered which are said by these outsiders to be needed. Plainfield has thrived for a great many years with much less efficient equipment than it now possesses, and there has only been one really serious fire in fifteen years or more, that in the Babcock building. Now the motor driven apparatus practically doubles the efficiency of the department, and the increase in the number of paid men this year takes care of all reasonable needs. Bids have been authorized for another automobile pumping engine, and this equipment will be in operation in a few months. It is to be hoped that the specifications will not be so drawn that only one engine will come within the requirements, however.

The size of the city, the fact that most buildings are far apart, except in the business section, which it is admitted is well protected, and the efficiency of the call men in the department indicate that the demand for seven paid men in each hose company is not reasonable. That the cost of operation of the Plainfield fire department has increased so largely within five years is convincing proof that this city is well up with other cities, and no cause for alarm need be felt. In 1909 the total cost of operating the department was $27,267. Last year it amounted to $36,336. In the five years intervening $26,539 was spent on improvements, and early this year the automobile fire engine was added. Certainly these figures prove that Plainfield is keeping up to other places of the same size in the conduct of its fire department.

So the autobusses are to be limited to certain streets, in spite of the protest of the business men who pay the biggest taxes in the city, are they? We rather suspect that before the Common Council gets through with monkeying with the ordinance which was introduced last night they will wish the subject was never brought up. Every merchant in the city can be depended upon to lift his voice in protest against the measure by Councilman Babcock. Mayor Stewart, who is quoted as saying that he believes that there should be some regulation of these busses, it is to be feared, has been listening too much to the complaint of the man who does not care whether business thrives in Plainfield or not, and not enough to the just claim of the merchant, who sees hundreds of dollars brought into town every month by people who ride in these vehicles. Here is a splendid opportunity for the Plainfield Business Men's Association, and the Board of Trade to show just what they can do, and that they will come to the defense of the bus lines goes without saying.

When the Daily Press pointed out last night the foolish extravagance of buying motorcycles for the local police department, it was said that this newspaper was misinformed about the situation in the city. Certainly there was no misinformation in the statement that there has been no crying demand on the part of the taxpayers that officers be mounted on these machines and certainly we were not equally misinformed when it was said that in about 999 cases out of 1,000 motorcycles are not needed to bring speeding autoists to justice, for the license number is all that is needed to eventually round them up and usually some sharp eyed person gets this if the police do not happen to be around. Motorcycles are worthless for patrolling purposes at night, for a policeman might just as well go about the city shouting that he is coming as to ride one of the noisy two-wheeled vehicles. They are all well enough perhaps in big cities, but they are a foolish extravagance in a community like Plainfield.

The failure to name a captain in the police department is as great a mistake as the plan to purchase motorcycles. Every time Chief Kiely goes out of town, now that Captain Frederickson has retired, there are left behind two officers with the rank of sergeant. One of these is Detective Sergeant Flynn, who is also frequently called out of town, and the other is Sergeant Higgins, whose duties are such that he should not have any more work thrust upon him. There should be one superior officer above the sergeant's rank always in Plainfield, as has been the case during Captain Frederickson's occupancy of the position, to avoid the danger of conflict in authority. Flynn is the logical man for the office, both by right of succession and because of ability, and by the same rule Higgins should succeed him. It is hard to understand why there has been any delay in filling the place.

It is gratifying to learn that the Plainfield water supply is satisfactory to the Board of Fire Underwriters. A short time ago we were told that the quality of the water was good, and now the assurance comes that the quantity is great enough for all demands.

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press.—

Will you let me fix public attention upon a verdict that is going to be famous in future centuries and in worlds yet unmapped by Mr. Roosevelt. After a number of burglaries had been brought to a peaceful issue in the town of Plainfield, (where I am temporarily hanging out my shingle), a policeman, bent upon vindicating the efficiency of the law, saw me, an eminently burglarious-looking person, returning from the post-office one night, cross the quiet tree-shaded avenue on which I reside, directly to the house that has the honor of holding me, then saunter up and down in front of my house, (a highly suspicious action to which I am prone)—pause once or twice in the path (in poetic ecstasy) and resume the suspicious exercises again. From the shadows opposite, the vigilant guardian of the law, pounced upon his prey, demanding where the prey lived (if he lived anywhere) and what was his name. The humor of the situation so amused me, that the policeman considered the majesty of the law, represented in his august person, was vilely outraged. I joked my persistent companion up and down the block, his temper got the best of him and he arrested me. For charge, he was able to recall the morning after, that I called him in "loud and profane language" a qualified fool—the profanity being expended on the qualification. The real fact is that I had forgotten to name him so.

His chief, when he found what had happened, in the kindliest and most gentlemanly spirit, and with the most praiseworthy object, tried to have the thing quieted. But, in the interest of justice, I refused, and insisted upon the matter going into open court.

It is fortunate that I did so, for it has resulted in legal history being enriched by a verdict which for acumen and brilliancy, takes precedence of any other pronouncement in the world's history from the days of Dogberry to those of Plainfield Police—Judge DeMeza—a verdict that will outrival and relegate to obscurity even the famous one of the Arkansas Jury, who found the prisoner guilty of murder in the first degree, because, though he hadn't killed the veitim, he had, the year before, stolen the foreman's gray mare. This wonderful verdict which will command the admiration and awe of legal luminaries yet unborn, and which is destined to go down to dim posterity in the bright annals of Jersey jurisprudence, was,—"I find you not guilty of disorderly conduct, as charged, and the case is dismissed. "But," continued the grave gentleman on the bench, "as you should have given your name to the officer, I find you guilty of indiscretion and suspend sentence."

Now where is the fellow who said that fiction was stronger than fact?

Tremblingly sitting under the suspended sword of DeMeza, the Wise and Wonderful, I am,

Yours faithfully,
SEUMAS MACMANUS.

SOMERVILLE COUNCIL ADOPTS ORDINANCES

Cement Sidewalks Will Be Laid on Number of Streets in That Town.

Considerable feeling was aroused at a meeting of the Somerville Council, last night, when a discussion arose over the compulsory laying of concrete sidewalks along the east side of North Bridge street. The body divided into two factions and the proposition was finally defeated.

It was unanimously voted to pass an ordinance requiring the construction of cement sidewalks along the north side of East Main street, and a sidewalk on Washington place. Vanderveer street was accepted at the meeting and an ordinance adopted requiring the laying of sidewalks on that thoroughfare.

William D. Quick, representing a committee from the Somerville Merchants' Association addressed the Council regarding a proposed "Clean up Day" and asked the co-operation of the members of the Council in the matter. Bills to the amount of $4-000 were ordered paid.

TROLLEY PETITIONERS FILED THEIR BRIEFS

The Plainfield Board of Trade and the petitioners in the South Plainfield trolley extension matter filed their briefs today with the Public Utilities Commission in Trenton, in accordance with the ruling made at the conclusion of the hearing on the subject in Newark two weeks ago. A decision in the matter is expected within three days, the commissioners having intimated this at the hearing.

The petitioners ask for a trolley line to South Plainfield over any route suitable to the Public Service Corporation. The latter body contends that such a route would not be a paying proposition and at the hearing introduced evidence to show the cost of construction and for the upkeep of such a line. The petitioners' estimate for the construction work was much lower and testimony offered by those who would be benefitted by such an improvement showed that it could be made to pay.

TAPS FROM THE GAVEL.

E., at the Babcock building.

Anchor Lodge No. 149, F. of A. M., will confer the fellow craft degree upon two candidates at its meeting on June 9, and the master mason degree upon one candidate at the meeting on June 32. At the first named session, an amendment to the by-laws will be considered.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., has completed arrangements for its memorial services to be held at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday evening, June 14. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the church, will preach an appropriate sermon on that occasion.

A rally of the Royal Arcanum councils of this district was held at the Metuchen High School last evening. About six hundred members of the order were in attendance, Metuchen council acting as host of the occasion. Supreme Regent Wickersham was in attendance, and made the address of the evening. Local members of the order made the trip in two auto busses. Delegations were present from this city, Princeton, Perth Amboy, New Brunswick, Cartaret, Elizabeth, Newark and Jersey City.

PROPERTY-OWNERS TO DISCUSS TAX QUESTION

Public Meeting to Be Held in Sebring's Auditorium, June 8.

There being an impression among some people throughout the city that the members of the Board of Assessors are raising the assessments too high, this year, arrangements are being made for a meeting of taxpayers to be held in Sebring's Auditorium, Monday night, June 8, for the purpose of discussing the tax question in general. It is understood that most of the so-called "kick" comes from the business section, and it is chiefly those who own property in that section that have taken the initiative in the present movement.

The Board of Assessors, it is said, in leving assessments this year have laid particular stress on land values more than buildings and the aim is to equalize more than ever assessments throughout the entire city. The assessors will meet tonight to go over some of the work and compare results.

It is said that assessments have been raised in a number of instances in the business section, but only in cases where heretofore they have been considered too low. There are a number of other instances where assessments considered too high have been reduced materially for the one purpose of equalizing the levy as near as possible.

Has Served Forty-three Years in the Choir of Grace Episcopal Church Here.

In recognition of his forty-three years of service as a member of the Grace Episcopal Church choir in this city, William R. Cock was tendered a reception in the parish house last night from 8 to 11 o'clock. Many old acquaintances of the singer attended the affair, some being associates of his in the church choir many years ago. The interior of the parish house was appropriately decorated for the occasion and among those in attendance were the singers who are at present connected with the choir.

During the evening a committee from the church served refreshments to the guests. Mr. Cock came to Plainfield from New York in April, 1871, and shortly afterwards joined the Grace Church choir. Before coming here he was in the chorus choir of St. Thomas' church, New York city. At the time of Mr. Cock's entrance into the local choir Grace church was located on Front street above Richmond street. His second epoch commenced when the church was moved down town in 1876 the choir being at that time a quartet. A large photograph of Mr. Cock has been framed and presented to the church.

ALUMNI ADVOCATES A GRAND OPENING

Plainfield High School Association Met in Annual Session Last Night.

Meeting in their annual session in the Plainfield High School last night, members of the Alumni Association discussed various ways and means to make the association more popular to the graduates and undergraduates. Numerous suggestions were offered to produce this result and will be put into practise during the coming year. A committee was appointed to confer with the Board of Education for the purpose of planning for a grand opening to be held in the High School next fall. The addition to the present structure will be completed at that time and a fitting celebration will probably be arranged for the opening day of the term.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, F. K. Anderson; vice-president, Dr. Sidney R. Titsworth; secretary-treasurer, Miss Margaret V. Leggett. The trustees named were William D. Murray, F. K Anderson, Dr. M. L. Clawson and W. C. Hubbard.

The annual reception to the graduating class of the school will be given in accordance with the custom this year and the members are now preparing plans for this event.

ANCIENT CITY OF MEXICO, ZACATECAS, SLEEPS ON HIGH

Villa's Guns Will Soon Disturb Calm of Ages.

City Has Manners and Customs of Departed Centuries.

THOUGH separated only by a river from the United States, Mexico to us is still largely a foreign land, not only in fact but in spirit. Notwithstanding our geographical nearness, we have in reality always been strangers to the Mexicans—a people whose ideas and ideals are so distinctively different from our own that we cannot judge them by our own standards in the least. Curious customs and strange sights often give convincing evidence of a civilization utterly remote in its origin from ours.

Among the spots out of the beaten track, but which just now is coming more into the limelight of publicity is Zacatecas, which lies in the direct line of advance for the Constitutionalist forces to the City of Mexico. It is the capital and chief city of the state of that name and is situated 439 miles from the City of Mexico. This quiet little city of 40,000, perched high among the mountains, is like nothing so much as a bit of ancient Egypt dropped from out the Biblical ages into the seething unrest of the western world.

Up narrow, rock paved streets wander burros in pairs or dozens, heavily laden with baskets, charcoal, wood, feed, ore, everything cartable, not only goods and chattels, but whole families as well. Sometimes the babies are dividing attention with the chickens, squawking their disapproval on the other side or the pig voicing his from a precarious position across the back.

On either side rise tier upon tier of flat topped adobe houses, for no two streets are upon the same level, and sometimes the little cross streets connecting are made up of steps alone, the whole being dominated by the Bufa, whose peaks appear ready to topple over the city at any moment. The city itself is 8,000 feet high, and the Bufa goes a thousand feet more into the clouds.

Domes and towers galore leave no doubt of the road to the places of worship, even should the tourist be deaf to the continual clangor of the bells. The cathedral is a mass of rich carving of brownstone, in which the life size statues of Christ and the apostles are but a beginning of the beauties that dawn upon the artist's eye, the whole being capped by an immense tiled dome and two great towers.

It is the silver mines surrounding the town that support it, some of them dating back to the time of Cortes and yet still producing. Wonderful stories are told of fabulous wealth found in a night; but, whether good or bad, there is no mine but has its little shrine to the Virgin.

Hours may be spent loitering near an old fountain, where natives travel to and fro, filling large water jars in shape and size the same as Rebecca carried to the well centuries ago. Much of this water is brought in by an old aqueduct—in many ways the counterpart of the one that supplied ancient Rome.

Other water carriers or aquadors, as they are called, use a yoke across the shoulders with a bucket at either side, while the milk wagon is a burro, with the cans balanced in panniers, or else a goat driven to the door and milked while you wait.

Hundreds of patient burros plod the streets or take their way across the mountainous roads to the mines or villages in the vicinity. They are driven or ridden by as picturesque characters as ever stepped from a story book, for the peons still cling to their own distinctive costumes.

They wear sandals upon their feet such as Moses wore. The men wear the largest hats in the world and the women none at all, but a simple rebosa, or scarf, generally tightly wound around a baby. The men have thrown about their shoulders the ever present serape or blanket of the most brilliant colors, even the young boys wearing them with a grace not excelled by any stately dame of fashion's whirl. The men's trousers are generally skin tight and rival in color Joseph's coat from the wealth and variety of their patches.

The adobe houses, which are mostly low, opening directly upon the street, lend themselves to the rarest tints of azure, brown, rose, green and yellow, but outside of this give little idea of the interior. There, around an inner patio, brilliant with blooming plants and vines, open casemented doors and windows into quaint old arched and high ceilinged rooms, with furniture that would make the lover of antiques green with envy.

Street venders uttering weird cries pass constantly, while women and children are squatted along the sidewalk or in doorways with baskets or little stands of dulces, tamales, cakes, fruit or drinks. Their sales for the day or sometimes far into the night seldom amount to more than 12 or 15 cents, for the most frequent purchase is one-piece of candy or cake.

A STREET SCENE IN THE PEACEFUL TOWN.

One place always visited by tourists each Sunday morning is Nuevo street, or, as it is sometimes called, Thieves' market. It is a little, narrow street, on either side of which next to the sidewalk and spread out on the ground is such a conglomeration of articles as can scarcely be enumerated, from mahogany furniture and antique jewelry to wooden legs, fine combs, false teeth, old bottles, dishes, guns, pieces of iron, flowers, toothbrushes, broken lamps and one day a tiny coffin.

Even in the market the provisions are purchased in the smallest of quantities, generally for the day, or, more often, for the meal, and you can buy the leg of a chicken, an eighth of a cabbage, a slice of watermelon, a handful of beans or a spoonful of lard.

A winding horn announces the approach of the street car, which passes once an hour up to 7 o'clock in the evening. The cars are very small and are drawn by three miniature mules, who are pushed downhill by the car and lifted up hill by the adjurations of the driver.

Here is nothing of the strenuous life. Time is never supposed to fly; his wings were clipped hundreds of years ago, and he still lingers by the wayside, taking all things as they come, but never hurrying.

And so they go their way in this little city among the mountains, regardless of the casual stranger within their gates, still clinging to the customs of ages past and gone, with something of a wholesome contempt for other cities where the foreign element has changed and modernized many things.

The continual warfare has fallen heavily upon them, but it has changed very little their habits of life and thought. It is symbolical of their religion to believe that God will take care of tomorrow, and manana to them bears few terrors, regardless of the specters of war and famine.

AEROPLANES WITH FLEET.

Flying Machines Are Now a Necessary Equipment For Warfare.

Aeroplanes are expected to play a prominent part in any trouble with Mexico. Several of the warships blockading the port of Vera Cruz are fitted out with aeroplanes which are equipped both for scout duty and as deadly instruments of warfare. Army and naval authorities are agreed that should land fighting ensue the aero-plane will serve a useful purpose. A fleet of airships will be found a necessary part of the military equipment.

A recent statement by the war department that it possessed only five aeroplanes fit for service is responsible for offers of assistance in the shape of machines and aviators made to the secretary of war. The first provisional aviation corps, Colonel Mortimer Delano acting commander, proposed to enter the service of the federal government. A similar organization exists in the west, formed with the view of serving in case of war with Mexico, with A. B. Lambert of St. Louis, a governor of the Aero Club of America, as its head.

The begum would make an interesting figure in a suffrage day parade such as added so much to the success of the recent first suffrage day celebrated in many states of the Union. It is interesting to note that just recently a resolution proposing an amendment to the federal constitution to extend the right of suffrage to women was ordered reported without recommendation to the United States house of representatives by the judiciary committee. The amendment provides that the right of "citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

"Sanitarians have never made much fuss over ice, and even the newspapers have found in the subject only cold pickings. When the warm light of science is thrown upon the cold facts of truth the alleged dangers are found to melt and run away. Dilution, freezing and storage are among the great natural forces which attenuate and finally destroy bacteria in NATURAL ICE. In fact, the purifying process of freezing and the favorable action of storage eliminate any elements of danger that may have existed in the water from which the ice was cut."

MEDIATORS ARE NOW DEADLOCKED

Carranza Chief Issue at Peace Conference.

PROCEEDINGS REACH CRISIS

South American Envoy to Quit if Rebel Chief Is Let In—Refuse to Yield to Pressure From Bryan—All Progress Is Blocked.

MEDIATION CONFERENCE HAS REACHED CRISIS.

A crisis has been reached in the mediation proceedings that threatens to frustrate all efforts to settle the Mexican affair.

The big question is, Shall the Constitutionalists participate in the Niagara Falls conference?

Senor Cabrera, Carranza's personal representative, in a statement given out at Washington, said that it is for the United States to decide; that the mediators have no voice in the matter of selecting who shall be parties to mediation.

The three South American diplomats take an opposite view. After three conferences with the United States delegates they refuse to recede from their position.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 2.—The crisis in the mediation proceedings between Mexico and the United States is at an acute stage. The three South American diplomats and the American delegates have reached an absolute deadlock, and nothing further will be done on either side before a solution to the latest difficulty has been found.

After conferring two hours on the issue in dispute—namely, the participation of General Carranza in the mediation conference—Justice Lamar and Frederick W. Lehmann have not been able to induce the mediators to view the situation in the light in which the state department at Washington would like to have them see it. Ambassador da Gama of Brazil and Ministers Naon and Suarez of Argentina and Chile are positively determined to yield no more to the Mexican revolt leader than to Mr. Bryan.

Persons who are close to the mediators declared that all three envoys will positively refuse to reverse their position regardless of any pressure which may be brought to bear upon them. It was pointed out that the mediators have adopted this attitude not only for the good of Mexico, but also to protect their personal dignity. All three are of the opinion that Carranza was offered every opportunity to enter the conference on the same footing and at the same time as General Huerta and that he should have availed himself of this opportunity.

Lamar Hopeful.

"We had a conference," said Justice Lamar, "at which we continued the discussion of the point concerning which we have not agreed on. The matter is still under discussion, but we found in our talk that we were not so far apart in our construction of certain phases, and we are still quite hopeful."

Justice Lamar declined to say whether "hopeful" referred to an agreement or to the admission of General Carranza to the conference.

Since Friday all progress has been blocked. Under present conditions the A. B. C mediators believe negotiations should be continued with only the American and Huerta representatives participating.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan do not believe an agreement carrying all assurances of peace can be reached without the concurrence of General Carranza. The extent to which the issue may be carried depends on the administration in Washington.

It is pointed out here that the United States might find itself in an embarrassing position should the mediators ignore General Carranza. With the signing of the protocol responsibility of the mediators ends. Should Carranza capture Mexico City, however, and set up a provisional government of his own the work of the peace conferences might be completely undone.

Fishermen Come on Woman Wandering on Bleak Shore.

Quebec, June 2.—Haggard, hungry, bruised and all but demented, a Norwegian woman was at an early hour found wandering aimlessly about on the bleak shores of the St. Lawrence gulf, some seventeen miles below Father point.

She is undoubtedly one of the survivors of the Empress. Her clothes were sodden and torn, and her mind had begun to wander.

She is reported to have been found by two French-Canadian fishermen and is thought to have drifted for probably two days and nights on some wreckage until carried ashore.

NEEDLEWORK

By

MARGARET LAWRENCE

Hand embroidered tray-cloths make a lovely present for a bride, and one which has been embroidered by the giver is especially appreciated, for it shows that time and loving thoughts have been given to it.

The conventional figures, used in the corners of this tray cloth, combined with hemstitching makes a very attractive cloth. The motifs are from pattern No. 14512, which includes 8 of these sprays, each 8 by 8¼ inches for 15 cents. They should be embroidered on fine white round-thread linen, in heavily padded solid work and eyelets, with white mercerized cotton. These motifs are also appropriate for use on waists, dresses and parasols of white or colored linen, lawn or batiste.—

Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer pattern will be supplied to readers upon receipt of price.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

There is hardly a skirt today that does not show at least one tunic or ruffle over the hips; most of them show several. It is an economical idea, especially now when it is so popular to combine two or more different materials. A somewhat outdate skirt of serge or cloth may be brought up to the minute by adding a tunic of black taffeta or of the same material if preferred. This skirt, number 8284, is a three-gored model having a circular tunic set on at hip depth. This may be omitted, leaving a perfectly plain skirt. Black taffeta, moire, poplin, gabardine and serge are all being used for the more dressy separate skirts, while tweed, homespun and the heavy cottons are favored for outing wear. This skirt may be made in size 24, with 3⅞ yards of 42-inch material. The pattern is cut in five sizes, 22 to 30.

This is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, passing the tape tightly around the smallest part of the waist and loosely around the widest part of the hips, for dimensions. It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

SERVING SPINACH.

EAT spinach for health in the spring, say dietists. This useful green may be served in the following tempting ways:

Wholesome Simplicity.

Spinach and Egg.—Take one peck of spinach, one-half teaspoonful of pepper, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-eighth teaspoonful of nutmeg, one hard boiled egg, salt to taste. Remove roots from the spinach, wash the leaves in four changes of cold water, then scald with very hot water. This sifts any remaining grit to bottom of pan. Place in kettle or steamer top with teaspoonful of salt—don't add any water—and cook until tender, lifting occasionally to prevent burning. Drain, put in chopping tray, add seasonings and chop fine. Reheat, place in mound in serving dish and garnish with hard cooked egg to represent a daisy.

Novel Salad.

Spinach Salad.—Pick over, wash and cook one-half peck of spinach. Drain and chop fine. Season with salt, pepper and lemon juice and add one tablespoonful of melted butter. Butter small tin molds slightly and pack solidly with the mixture. Chill, remove from mold and arrange on thin slices of cold boiled tongue. Garnish at base with parsley and on top of each with tartare sauce.

Vegetable Croquettes.

Spinach Croquettes.—Chop very fine a pint of cooked spinach. Put over the fire a large tablespoonful of butter and half a small onion cut in quarters. When the onion colors remove from pan and put in the spinach, stirring and adding gradually a tablespoonful of flour, same of breadcrumbs, half a cupful of grated cheese, yolks of two eggs, beaten and stirred quickly, one-fourth cupful of milk or sufficient to make right consistency, salt and nutmeg to taste. Turn out on floured board when stiff enough to mold, flour the hands and form into small croquettes. Cook in boiling lard from five to seven minutes. Shake or drain in a sieve. Arrange on serving dish, sprinkle with grated cheese, moisten with melted butter and place in oven to heat through.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How the Little Sister Proved Her Bravery.

She Grabbed the Back of the Cat.

JACK always saw to it that Evelyn should never be frightened. He liked to have her brave and not to be afraid of things. He never tried to frighten her, and that is what probably made her so fearless.

Daddy was very glad to see that Jack was such a good brother in that respect, and he told Jack so one evening.

"Well," said Jack, "Evelyn isn't naturally afraid of things."

"That may be," said daddy, "but you are doing the right thing in not ever frightening her into being brave, for it is the worst thing to do, and there are some people who cannot help being afraid of certain things.

"There was once a little boy who had a sister just about Evelyn's age. He was much disappointed that his sister didn't care more for long walks and boys' games and that animals seemed to frighten her.

"He used to scold her about it instead of helping her to get over her fear.

"The thing she was more afraid of than anything else was a cat.

"Now, it does seem funny to be afraid of a cat, but this little girl couldn't help it. Her brother used to scold her and make fun of her and would always try to suddenly point out a cat to her and then tell her how absurd she was if she got frightened.

"One day these two children were taking a walk. They went into the country along a quiet road. They passed a little house in which lived an old woman who had a great many cats. She was very queer, and her cats seemed to be queer too. Anyway, it was said that they hated strangers.

"The little boy didn't believe this, and when his sister tried to hurry by he laughed at her.

"'Oh, come and see this nice cat!' he said. And he tried to pick the cat up.

"The cat objected to strangers, as all the people had said, and she started to scratch the little boy. With an awful cry his sister rushed to him. She grabbed the back of the cat and got him off. Then she cried 'Shoo!' to the cat, which made him go right home, for he didn't care about hurting the little boy. He only would not be played with.

"Then the little boy realized that his sister, whom he had made such fun of for being a 'fraid cat' and a coward, had saved him, for if she had not pulled the cat off when she did he might have been very badly hurt.

"'I shall never make fun of you again, sister,' he said. 'You saved me by taking off that cat which you were afraid of. I have not been at all a nice brother to you, and I don't deserve such a good sister, for it was love for me that made you forget about your fear. But you may be quite sure I will never make fun of you in the future, for really you are the brave one.'"

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. Montague Glass, Gouverneur Morris and Richard Harding Davis all declare that O. Henry's "A Municipal Report" is one of the world's greatest short stories.

MONTAGUE GLASS

PART I.

EAST is east and west is San Francisco, according to Californians. Californians are a race of people, they are not merely inhabitants of a state. They are the southerners of the west. Now, Chicagoans are no less loyal to their city, but when you ask them why, they stammer and speak of lake fish and the new Odd Fellows building. But Californians go into detail.

Of course they have in the climate an argument that is good for half an hour while you are thawing out your coal bills and heavy underwear. But as soon as they come to mistake your silence for conviction, madness comes upon them and they picture the city of the Golden Gate as the Bagdad of the new world. So far, as a matter of opinion, no refutation is necessary. But, dear cousins all (from Adam and Eve descended), it is a rash one who will lay his finger on the map and say, "In this town there can be no romance—what could happen here?" Yes, it is a bold and a rash deed to challenge in one sentence history, romance and the atlas.

Nashville.—A city, port of delivery and the capital of the state of Tennessee, is on the Cumberland river and on the N. C. and St. L. and the L. and N. railroads. This city is regarded as the most important educational center in the south.

I stepped off the train at 8 p. m. Having searched the thesaurus in vain for adjectives, I must, as a substitution, hie me to comparison in the form of a recipe:

Take of London fog, thirty parts; malaria, ten parts; gas leaks, twenty parts; dewdrops gathered in a brick yard at sunrise, twenty-five parts; odor of honeysuckle, fifteen parts. Mix.

The mixture will give you an approximate conception of a Nashville drizzle. It is not so fragrant as a mothball nor as thick as pea soup, but 'tis enough—'twill serve.

I went to a hotel in a tumbril. It required strong self suppression for me to keep from climbing to the top of it and giving an imitation of Sidney Carton. The vehicle was drawn by beasts of a bygone era and driven by something dark and emancipated.

The hotel was one of the kind described as "renovated." That means $20,000 worth of new marble pillars, tiling, electric lights and brass cuspidors in the lobby and a new L. and N. timetable and a lithograph of Lookout mountain in each one of the great rooms above. The management was without reproach, the attention full of exquisite southern courtesy, the service as slow as the progress of a snail and as good humored as Rip Van Winkle. The food was worth traveling a thousand miles for. There is no other hotel in the world where you can get such chicken livers en brochette.

At dinner I asked a negro waiter if there was anything doing in town. He pondered gravely for a minute and then replied, "Well, boss, I don't really reckon there's anything at all doin' after sundown."

Sundown had been accomplished. It had been drowned in the drizzle long before. So that spectacle was denied me. But I went forth upon the streets in the drizzle to see what might be there.

It is built on undulating grounds, and the streets are lighted by electricity at a cost of $32,470 per annum.

I walked through long streets, all leading uphill. I wondered how those streets ever came down again. Perhaps they didn't until they were "graded." On a few of the "main streets" I saw lights in stores here and there; saw street cars go by conveying worthy burghers hither and yon; saw people pass engaged in the art of conversation and heard a burst of semilively laughter issuing from a soda water and ice cream parlor. There was indeed little "doing." I wished I had come before sundown. So I returned to my hotel.

In November, 1864, the Confederate General Hood advanced against Nashville, where he shut up a national force under General Thomas. The latter then sallied forth and defeated the Confederates in a terrible conflict.

All my life I had heard of, admired and witnessed the fine marksmanship of the south in its peaceful conflicts in the tobacco chewing regions. But in my hotel a surprise awaited me. There were twelve bright, new, imposing, capacious brass cuspidors in the great lobby, tall enough to be called urns and so wide mouthed that the crack pitcher of a lady baseball team should have been able to throw a ball into one of them at five paces distant. But, although a terrible battle had raged and was still raging, the enemy had not suffered. Bright, new, imposing, capacious, untouched, they stood. But, shades of Jefferson Brick—the tile floor, the beautiful tile floor!

Here I first saw Major (by misplaced courtesy) Wentworth Caswell. I knew him for a type the moment my eyes suffered from the sight of him. A rat has no geographical habitat. My old friend A. Tennyson said, as he so well said almost everything:

Prophet, curse me the blabbing lip
And curse me the British vermin, the rat.

Let us regard the word "British" as interchangeable ad lib. A rat is a rat.

This man was hunting about the hotel lobby like a starved dog that had forgotten where he had buried a bone. He had a face of great acreage, red, puffy and with the kind of sleepy aloofness like that of Buddha. He possessed one single virtue—he was very smoothly shaven. The mark of the beast is not indelible upon a man until he goes about with a stubble. I think that if he had not used his razor that day I would have repulsed his advances, and the criminal calendar of the world would have been spared the addition of one murder.

I happened to be standing within five feet of a cuspidor when Major Caswell opened fire upon it. I had been observant enough to perceive that the attacking force was using Gatlings instead of squirrel rifles, so I sidestepped so promptly that the major seized the opportunity to apologize to a noncombatant. He had the blabbing lip. In four minutes he had become my friend and had dragged me to the bar.

I desire to interpolate here that I am a southerner. But I am not one by profession or trade. I eschew the string tie, the slouch hat, the Prince Albert, the number of bales of cotton destroyed by Sherman and plug chewing. When the orchestra plays "Dixie" I do not cheer.

Major Caswell banged the bar with his fist and the first gun at Fort Sumter re-echoed. When he fired the last one at Appomattox I began to hope. But then he began on family trees and demonstrated that Adam was only a third cousin of a collateral branch of the Caswell family. Genealogy disposed of he took up to my distaste his private family matters. He spoke of his wife, traced her descent back to Eve and profanely denied any possible rumor that she may have had relations in the land of Nod.

By this time I began to suspect that he was trying to obscure by noise the fact that he had ordered the drinks on the chance that I would be bewildered into paying for them. But when they were down he crashed a silver dollar upon the bar. Then, of course, another serving was obligatory. And when I had paid for that I took leave of him brusquely, for I wanted no more of him. But before I had obtained my release he had prated loudly of an income that his wife received and showed a handful of silver money.

When I got my key at the desk the clerk said to me courteously: "If that man Caswell has annoyed you and if you would like to make a complaint we will have him ejected. He is a nuisance, a loafer and without any known means of support, although he seems to have money most of the time. But we don't seem to be able to hit upon any means of throwing him out legally."

"Why, no," said I, after some reflection, "I don't see my way clear to making a complaint. But I would like to place myself on record as asserting that I do not care for his company. Your town," I continued, "seems to be a quiet one. What manner of entertainment, adventure, or excitement have you to offer to the stranger within your gates?"

"Well, sir," said the clerk, "there will be a show here next Thursday. It is—I'll look it up and have the announcement sent up to your room with the ice water. Good night."

After I went up to my room I looked out of the window. It was only about 10 o'clock, but I looked upon a silent town. The drizzle continued, spangled with dim lights, as far apart as currants in a cake sold at the Ladies' exchange.

Nashville occupies a foremost place among the manufacturing centers of the country. It is the fifth boot and shoe market in the United States, the largest candy and cracker manufacturing city in the south and does an enormous wholesale dry goods, grocery and drug business.

I must tell you how I came to be in Nashville, and I assure you the digression brings as much tedium to me as it does to you. I was traveling elsewhere on my own business, but I had a commission from a northern literary magazine to stop over there and establish a personal connection between the publication and one of its contributors, Azalea Adair.

Adair (there was no clew to the personality except the handwriting) had sent in some essays (lost art!) and poems that had made the editors swear approvingly over their 1 o'clock luncheon. So they had commissioned me to round up said Adair and corner by contract his or her output at 2 cents a word before some other publisher offered her 10 or 20.

At 9 o'clock the next morning, after my chicken livers en brochette (try them if you can find that hotel), I strayed out into the drizzle, which was still on for an unlimited run. At the first corner I came upon Uncle Caesar. He was a stalwart negro, older than the pyramids, with gray wool and a face that reminded me of Brutus and a second afterward of the late King Cetewayo. He wore the most remarkable coat that I ever had seen or expect to see. It reached to his ankles and had once been a Confederate gray in colors. But rain and sun and age had so variegated it that Joseph's coat beside it would have faded to a pale monochrome.

Once it must have been the military coat of an officer. The cape of it had vanished, but all adown its front it had been frogged and tasseled magnificently. But now the frogs and tassels were gone. In their stead had been patiently stitched (I surmised by some surviving "black mammy") new frogs made of cunningly twisted common hempen twine. This twine was frayed and disheveled. It must have been added to the coat as a substitute for vanished splendors, with tasteless but painstaking devotion, for it followed faithfully the curves of the long missing frogs. And to complete the comedy and pathos of the garment all its buttons were gone save one. The second button from the top alone remained. The coat was fastened by other twine strings tied through the buttonholes and other holes rudely pierced in the opposite side. There was never such a weird garment so fantastically bedecked and of so many mottled hues. The one button was the size of a half dollar, made of yellow horn and sewed on with coarse twine.

This negro stood by a carriage so old that Ham himself might have started a hack line with it after he left the ark with the two animals hitched to it. As I approached he threw open the door, drew out a feather duster, waved it without using it and said in deep, rumbling tones:

"Step right in, suh; ain't a speck of dust in it—jus' got back from a funeral, suh."

"I want to go to 861 Jessamine street," I said and was about to step into the hack. But for an instant the thick, long, gorilla-like arm of the old negro barred me. On his massive and saturnine face a look of sudden suspicion and enmity flashed for a moment. Then, with quickly returning conviction, he asked blandishingly, "What are you gwine there for, boss?"

"What is that to you?" I asked, a little sharply.

"Nothin', suh, jus' nothin'. Only it's a lonesome kind of part of town, and few folks ever has business out there. Step right in. The seats is clean—jes' got back from a funeral, suh."

A mile and a half it must have been to our journey's end. I could hear nothing but the fearful rattle of the ancient hack over the uneven brick paving; I could smell nothing but the drizzle, now further flavored with coal smoke and something like a mixture of tar and oleander blossoms. All I could see through the streaming windows were two rows of dim houses.

The city has an area of ten square miles, 181 miles of streets, of which 135 miles are paved; a system of waterworks that cost $2,000,000, with seventy-seven miles of mains.

Eight-sixty-one Jessamine street was a decayed mansion. Thirty yards back from the street it stood, outmerged in a splendid grove of trees and untrimmed shrubbery. A row of box bushes overflowed and almost hid the paling fence from sight; the gate was kept closed by a rope noose that encircled the gate post and the first paling of the gate. But when you got inside you saw that 861 was a shell, a shadow, a ghost of former grandeur and excellence. But in the story I have not yet got inside.

When the hack had ceased from rattling and the weary quadrupeds came to a rest I handed my jehu his 50 cents with an additional quarter, feeling a glow of conscious generosity as I did so. He refused it.

"It's $2, suh," he said.

"How's that?" I asked. "I plainly heard you call out at the hotel, 'Fifty cents to any part of the town.'"

"It's $2, suh," he repeated obstinately. "It's a long ways from the hotel."

"It is within the city limits and well within them," I argued. "Don't think that you have picked up a greenhorn Yankee. Do you see those hills over there?" I went on, pointing toward the east (I could not see them myself for the drizzle), "well, I was born and raised on their other side. You old fool nigger, can't you tell people from other people when you see 'em?"

The grim face of King Cetewayo softened. "Is you from the south, suh? I reckon it was them shoes of yourn fooled me. They is somethin' sharp in the toes for a southern gen'l'man to wear."

"Then the charge is 50 cents, I suppose?" said I inexorably.

"Boss," he said, "50 cents is right, but I needs $2, suh. I'm obleeged to have $2. I ain't demandin' it now, suh, after I knows whar you's from. I'm jus' sayin' that I has to have $2 tonight, and business is mighty po'."

Peace and confidence settled upon his heavy features. He had been luckier than he had hoped. Instead of having picked up a greenhorn, ignorant of rates, he had come upon an inheritance.

"You confounded old rascal," I said, reaching down into my pocket, "you ought to be turned over to the police."

For the first time I saw him smile. He knew, he knew, HE KNEW.

I gave him two one-dollar bills. As I handed them over I noticed that one of them had seen parlous times. Its upper right hand corner was missing, and it had been torn through in the middle, but joined again. A strip of blue tissue paper pasted over the split preserved its negotiability.

The house, as I said, was a shell. A paint brush had not touched it in twenty years. I could not see why a strong wind should not have bowled it over like a house of cards until I looked again at the trees that hugged it close—the trees that saw the battle of Nashville and still drew their protecting branches around it against storm and enemy and cold.

KILLS SELF SOON AFTER WEDDING

Bridegroom Suicide After Quarrel With Relative.

SHOT THROUGH THE HEART

Half Brother of Bride Upbraids Bridegroom Upon Learning of Marriage, Declaring Girl Was Too Young—Angry Words Follow, Which Led to Suicide—To Hold Inquest.

Woodbury, N. J., June 2.—When the half brother of the girl with whom he slipped off and was quietly married remonstrated with him for marrying the girl, Charles Miller, twenty-two years old, employed on the farm of John B. Pedrick of Mickleton, N. J., his father-in-law, went into the barn and shot himself through the heart.

Miller had been employed on the farm of John Wolforth, adjoining the Pedrick farm. About a year ago he met Sarah Pedrick, who was then sixteen years old. The two were constantly together.

To be nearer the girl, Miller asked her father to allow him to work on his farm, and Pedrick consented. Two weeks ago Miller moved his belongings to the Pedrick farm.

Miller and the girl became engaged, but kept the fact a secret for fear the girl's parents would object owing to her youth. They decided to be married, and they left the house together, stating that they were going for a short walk. They went to a nearby town, and when they returned they were man and wife.

They walked into the parlor of the farmhouse and told the girl's parents. John Hancock, a half brother of the bride, arose and upbraided Miller. He declared she was entirely too young to marry. More angry words followed between the two, and Miller went to his room.

When he arose his bride was standing in the kitchen of the farmhouse. Her eyes were filled with tears. Miller walked over to his bride and held her in his arms and kissed her on each cheek.

"I am going out to feed the horses," he said. "Goodby."

The young wife saw her husband go to the barn. A few seconds later she heard a pistol shot and, rushing to the barn, found him lying inside the doorway on a pile of hay with the revolver in his hand.

KUEHNLE AGAIN AT LIBERTY

Former Atlantic City Boss Is Set Free by Board of Pardons.

Trenton, N. J., June 2.—Met by four friends in a big touring car, Louis Kuehnle, former Republican leader of Atlantic City, who was convicted of grafting in connection with a half million dollar water main contract while president of the Atlantic City water board, left the state prison a free man.

As he stepped through the big steel gates he had no word to say as to his future plans. His friends were likewise silent. It is supposed the party left for Atlantic City.

Kuehnle had paid a fine of $1,000 and served nearly half a year's sentence, which was commuted by the state board of pardons.

Four other men, also convicted of participation in the Atlantic City frauds, whose sentences were commuted, gained their freedom.

They are Estel D. Rightmire, former engineer of Atlantic county; John Unsworth and Frank Enderlin of the Atlantic county board of freeholders, and John Zeller, a former sheriff of Hudson county.

HOLD MAN FOR MURDER.

Coroner's Jury Decides Evidence Is Against William J. Boyd.

Point Pleasant, N. J., June 2.—Circumstantial evidence, it is said, will enter largely into the trial of William J. Bond of Philadelphia, who was held responsible by a coroner's jury for the murder of John R. Hafer of Reading on the river front last Wednesday.

Walter Havens, a storekeeper at Lanelton, near here, testified that on the day preceding the murder Bond and Hafer entered his store to buy groceries. He said Bond offered to sell him two hatchets and several other tools. He told Havens that he was a carpenter out of work. Havens bought a hatchet.

He began the practice of law in 1874 and was appointed a justice of the supreme court by Governor Fort in 1908.

WHITMAN SAYS HE SEEKS GOVERNORSHIP

Announces Candidncy For the Republican Nomination.

New York, June 2.—Charles S. Whitman, district attorney, in his home in Madison avenue, dictated a statement for the newspapers announcing his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor.

Coincident with it came information that Whitman's friends are starting a movement to obtain his indorsement by the Progressives as well. Whitman took care to say that he had entered into no "deal" with any one.

To further the plan for obtaining Progressive indorsement for Whitman it is planned to hold a nonpartisan mass meeting in Syracuse in the last week of July to name a ticket headed by the district attorney and seconded by men in sympathy with his views for presentation at the Republican and Progressive primaries.

The movement has been inaugurated without the knowledge of many Progressive leaders and in spite of their opposition to any such project.

Whitman's announcement of his candidacy came when this project was laid before him last night. Here is his statement:

"I have nothing to say except that I expect to be a candidate for the nomination for governor in the Republican primaries and that I have entered into no deal or arrangement with anybody as to my nominaton and that I shall not make any such arrangement to enter into any such deal with anybody."

Suffragettes Fire Church.

Henley, England, June 2.—An arson squad of militant suffragettes destroyed by fire the historic parish church of St. Mary's, Wargrave, three miles from here, on the Thames. All that remains of the church, which was built in 1538, is a portion of the tower and the scorched stone walls.

LOCAL BOYS WILL ENTER STATE MEET

Thirty-seven Youths at Lake Wawayanda Expect to Land Trophy.

Out of the thirty-seven Y. M. C. A. boys scheduled to spend from two to six weeks at the State Camp on Lake Wawayanda this summer a large percentage are crack athletes and the Plainfield association will probably duplicate its remarkable record of last season in track and field endeavor. Since the summer of 1910 the Plainfielders have led the fight for the point trophy, but in each case have failed by small margins to cap the cup.

This year promises to produce a banner record, the calibre of performers enlisted being capable of establishing some fine records in the many events carded. A field and aquatic day will be conducted with each section this summer and the classification recommended by the physical directors of the State will be followed. There will have to be at least four participants in each of the many events programed and certificates, watch fobs and trophies will be offered to the winners.

Each boy will be credited with points according to time and distance he makes and the boy making the highest number of individual tallies will be awarded the silver camp fob and the ten boys from a local delegation scoring the most points for the season will secure the custody of the silve cups during the ensuing year and if won three consecutive years, they become the permanent property of the Association the competitors represent.

Prior to the departure of the Plainfielders for the State site Boys' Secretary C William Bingeman, of the local Y. M. C. A. who is the assistant camp director, will conduct several trials in the local gymnasium. The Plainfielders will at that time be put through preliminary tests and be given pointers that will improve their work in the competitive events at the Lake. Running, jumping and swimming constitute the program of events and the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. will be represented in each competition this year.

WITH THE BOXERS

The boxing game is to be opened at Covington, Ky., June 8, when Jack Britton and Eddie Meizer meet at the baseball park in that city.

Jim Jeffries is taking a deep interest in the work of Johny Coulon and will train the Chicago bantam for his bout with "Kid" Williams.

Gunboat Smith has engaged Bob Armstrong, the colored heavyweight, as sparring partner. Bob will prepare Smith for the latter's bout with Carpenter.

Writing from Australia, Manager Al Lippe says all the American boxers now in that country are cleaning up in the ring and making bales of money.

PLAINFIELD POLICEMEN TO HAVE FAST BALL NINE

Manager Connie McCarthy's policemen's baseball nine is gradually rounding into shape, several hard practises having been conducted since the project was first broached by the bluecoats. Since baseball was taken up in the police department a number of brand new stars have made their appearance in baseball togs and it would not be a surprise to those interested to see a nine of semi-professional calibre turned out.

Martin Flatley, an old time slab artist, will do the hurling for the coppers and Connie McCarthy will receive the slants behind a catcher's mask. Arthur McGinley, Mernagh, O'Keefe, Craig, Kelley, Martin, Sweeney, Welsh, Wicht and Nolan are other shining lights expected to be on hand for the opening game.

Although other police departments in the State will be played, the management of the aggregation is planning to book several fast semi-professional combinations for mid-week attractions, including the New York firemen and other big city teams. In past years trouble has been experienced in playing other police nines because of the tendency rival forces have to bring in "ringers" of the professional calibre. The Plainfield club will be confined solely to the police department and no outsider will be taken on for any of the games.

BASEBALL NOTES

The Lynn, New England League team, dropped seven games in a row, after winning the first ten games of the season.

Larry Lajoie, for years one of our leading sluggers, is now finding it some struggle to break into the .300 class of clouters.

Captain Jake Daubert, the Superbas' first sacker, is up there with the big beads in the National League batting averages.

Besides leading the Cincinnati Reds in stick work, Moran is doing brilliant service in the outfield for the speedy gents from Ohio.

Pitcher Otto Hess, of the Braves, didnt appear on the mound until May 22 this year, but made good when he did start by folding up the Cubs.

There is not a performer in the big show doing better all around work than Hal Chase. The White Sox star is fairly eating 'em alive around the first station.

Alcock, who has been playing third base for the White Sox since Harry Lord left the team, is putting up a rattling good game at the hot corner.

Steve Evans, of the Brooklyn Feds, must have found a magic bat, for he is displaying the highest batting average of any player in the three big leagues.

In winning fourteen of the first fifteen games, the Burlington Central Association team has produced about the classiest performance in minor league society.

The champion Newark team is finding the going pretty tough in the International League. Baltimore, Buffalo, Rochester, Toronto and Providence all look strong enough to scalp the Indians.

"Handsome Nunny" Nunamaker, the former Boston backstop, is getting into the fray more regularly now that he is with the Yankees. "Nunny" was wearing out uniforms polishing the Red Sox bench before he was shipped to New York.

Walter Johnson's remarkable success seems to have inbued the whole Johnson clan with the idea that they are there with the ball and bat. North Dakota is the latest to come through with an entire Johnson outfit, nine Johnsons on one team.

CANOE REGATTA AT SOUTH PLAINFIELD POND JULY 4

A civic committee, composed largely of those interested in sports, is planning a demonstration for South Plainfield to take place July 4. During the past three years a minor exhibition of water sports and land events has been programed at that place but this year's affair promises to be a record breaker inasmuch as outside talent will be catered to in the main. Heretofore the meet has been made attractive to South Plainfielders alone but the program of events this year and the calibre of prizes to be offered will serve to attract big men in the sporting line in this State.

South Plainfield pond will be the scene of a canoe regetta in which clubs from this city, Cranford, Elizabeth and Newark will compete. Local paddle wielders are planning to get into line for the many awards to be made and inasmuch as the South Plainfield pond offers a good place for practice work will probably take advantage of the rendezvous for conditioning. The State championships are not far distant and many are planning to get into trim for these events.

Road racing and field events will be arranged as a side attraction. Two years ago the athletic events attracted a big field and the village workers anticipate an even better and bigger showing this year. Many Plainfielders have been aproached in a quiet way with the proposition and it goes without saying that the suggestion has met with popular approval on all sides.

FRESH WATER NOTES

The American outdoor swimming season of 1914 was launched on Decoration Day with a number of meets, the most important of which was staged by the exposition people in San Francisco. Watermen from all over California took part in the various events, and among them "Bab" Small, the youth who defeated Duke Kahanamoku in Honolulu last February, and who now is anxious to break the 50 yard world's record he then equalled. Small, incidentally, has decided to compete for the Olympic Club and not for the Pittsburg A. A., as we had been given to understand he would.

The Olympic Club has gatherd together a strong team for the big water carnival to be staged in the Sutro Baths early in July, and its members confidently look forward to seeing their relay team defeat both the Illinois A. C. quartet, our national champions, and the Hui Nalue four of Honolulu, open water world's recholders at 400 yards. On the Olympic team will swim "Bab" Small, Marcus Nixon, Ernest Smith and Randolph Flood, recently credited with averaging 25 1-10 seconds for fifty yards straightaway and completing the 200 yards in 1 minute 40 2-5 seconds. This time has never been touched under similar conditions, and if the native sons can repeat it against their rivals they should win.

News comes from Pittsburg that Raymond Boyle, the Smoketown long distance champion, asked to be admitted to the Richards-Durborow match on June 27, which is to be held over the thirty-four mile Chester-Philadelphia and return course, but was refused, owing to the objections on the part of the Bostonian. There is, of course, no reason why outsiders should be let into a dual race of this kind, and Richards' contention that too many entries might handicap him is warranted, for the river is unknown to him and if he stuck to one of his rivals the others might find better conditions and beat him. At the same time the excluding of Boyle makes the race void as a test of supremacy.

American swimmers may soon have an official organ to cover the sport of their choice. Aquatic enthusiasts of the Pacific Coast plan a venture into the field of journalism with a publication devoted exclusively to water sports and from all accounts the new sheet is likely to be started in the near future.

Rose Pitnnoff, of Boston, is the latest American to swim who threatens to go abroad next summer and tackle the crossing of the English channel. Already Alfred Brown, Samuel Richards and G. Schlomberg have announced themselves in line for the great feat.

ROD AND REEL

Striped bass are running in their usual haunts along the Staten Island shore fronting on Raritan bay. Fishermen from Perth Amboy, who seem to know just where to anchor, are picking up quite a few. They don't say much, as they are not looking for company, but Sea Breeze Point is one spot and the mouth of Lemon creek another. If the bass are along that shore they should be in Creesequake creek, Whale creek and Marquis creek, points of the Jersey side of the bay.

One of the handiest places for flounders and eels is Sewaren. A number of Newark folks fished there Saturday and Sunday, and some caught as high as fifteen pounds of eels and a dozen flounders.

Boyd Fullerton, Alfred Detuse, Warren and Lorenzo Townley formed a fishing party that spent Saturday and Sunday at Lake Hopatcong. They captured a total of 18 fine pickerel and perch, some of the former weighing as high as 3 pounds. The quartet made Camp Ramshorn their headquarters during their stay.

The Sea bass are in. Several of the Shepshead Bay boats ran into the first school of this tribe off the Jersey coast yesterday.

A local angler fished from the Dreamland pier at Coney Island last night ,and caught a big mess of ling and whiting. He also had half a dozen small blackfish, which began biting toward morning.

Greenwood lake continues to be a mecca for pickerel fishermen. Many excellent catches have been reported during the past week.

An occasional weakfish is being picked up by those who fish for ling off the Long Branch pier.

Fourteen nice pickerel were caught by a Plainfielder in Split Rock pond, near Boonton, yesterday. The same fisherman has also made several trouting trips and on three of them he caught a total of fifty-three trout. Most of the takes were made in streams at the lower end of Greenwood lake.

Eels are plentiful in the Shrewsbury and many fine hauls have been reported.

Quite a few flounders are being caught off the Red Bank light in Raritan bay. Twenty-three and a fluke were caught by one man Saturday.

CAPTAIN ANDERSON.

Commander of the Storstad, That Rammed the Empress.

© 1914, by American Press Association.

Captain Anderson of the Storstad wept many times after his ship sank the Empress of Ireland. Pilot Nault, who brought the collier to Montreal from Quebec, said: "There were three on the bridge of the Storstad at the time of the collision—Captain Anderson, the first officer and Pilot Lechance. On the way up the river an examination was made of the damage to the Storstad. We found that twenty of the forward plates had been sprung, but that aft of these plates the ship was undamaged. At Quebec the Storstad took in so much water that we were obliged to flood the aft compartments in order to keep the bow up. There had been no water in the collier's head. Captain Anderson was deeply grieved over the disaster. I came upon him several times while we were on the way from Quebec to Montreal, and each time I found him crying, with his face buried in his arms."

99 OF VICTIMS AT QUEBEC IDENTIFIED

Five Persons Claim the Body of Baby.

Quebec, June 2.—Grief stricken relatives of victims of the Empress of Ireland thronging the temporary morgue in Louise basin added greatly to the confusion of identification by their inability to decide definitely on the characteristic physical traits of the ones for whom they were looking.

Identifications were made, unmade and remade in the course of the day. There were many instances of two and three persons claiming the same body as that of a relative. Five persons insisted that the body of a baby was that of a relative. It is quite probable that bereaved relatives have picked out bodies of persons who are not their relatives, and, consoled in the belief that they have the right body, have shipped it away for burial.

The officials of the Canadian Pacific and of the Canadian government, however, refused to hand over the body of the baby to any one of the five claimants and have insisted on thorough proof of identification before yielding it.

The solicitous officials who were inclined to accept the assertion of any relative as to the identification of a body became more strict. The result was that only fifty-one more bodies had been named, making ninety-nine all told and leaving eighty-nine bearing numbered tags.

The most striking instance of the confusion came over the body that was claimed yesterday by Miss Tiria Townshend of New Zealand as that of her aunt, Mrs. Wynne Price. It seems that after Miss Townshend, consoled in having found the body, had returned to the Chateau Frontenac, sixteen sailors of the Empress of Ireland insisted that the body was that of Mrs T. H. Leader, chief stewardess of the ill fated ship. Her name was substituted on the tag for that of Mrs. Price. Miss Townshend was then confronted by representatives of the sailors, who insisted on the identification. The officials of the Canadian Pacific were called in as arbiters, and when Miss Townshend pointed to the rings which had been removed from the body after her identification she received final possession of it.

REPORT AMERICAN EXECUTED

Mexican Government "Urgently Investigating" Case of William Sims.

Washington, June 2.—William Sims, an American, was executed by Mexican federals at Salina Cruz on May 16, according to apparently authentic reports to the state department.

The state department has made representations in the case of the Huerta government. As a result of this the Brazilian minister is "urgently investigating" the case, but is having difficulty in establishing telegraphic communication with Salina Cruz.

There is likewise difficulty in communicating with Guiterrez, where J. Smith is imprisoned.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.—Adv.

Hupmobile

The car of The American Family

Economy

The net average repair cost of the Hup owner is less than 2 mills per mile.

That's one striking instance of Hup economy.

But Hup economy also includes low gasoline cost, low oil cost, low tire cost.

It includes, too, low depreciation.

Hup owners figure the latter at one cent a mile.

Prove these facts for yourself. Ask any Hup owner.

Then give us a chance to tell you—

Why the Hupmobile costs less to run—

Why the Hupmobile commands a higher second-hand price—

Why the Hupmobile is "The Car of the American Family."

These Hup reasons are important—let us give them to you.

'CLEAN-UP' WEEK WAS SUCCESSFUL

Reports Submitted at Monthly Meeting of Health Board Indicates This.

ORDINANCE ADOPTED

Numbers Desiring Licenses Will Have to Appear Before a Board of Examiners in the Future—Suggest New Drinking Fountains.

The regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Board of Health was held in the office of the Board last night. Representatives of the Union County Mosquito Extermination Commission were present to confer with the Board on a certain phase of the work which it seemed might prove both interesting and valuable to the community.

The special work undertaken during the month was an inspection of all places where food stuffs were sold. In the majority of cases, the law was being complied with, but where violations were found, notices were sent to the ones concerned to make the necessary changes. It is the intention o. the Board to see that the food stuffs supplied to city residents are as wholesome as possible. There were 158 inspections made in connection with this work.

"Clean up" week was productive of some good results, in that it awakened interest in the subject and made the general public understand that each one had a part to perform if they wanted the entire city to be clean and present a good appearance. There are still some packages of vegetable and flower seeds at the office of the Board of Health which will be given away to those who will use them and do not feel able to buy them.

The new plumbing ordinance, adopted by the Board at the previous meeting will go into effect on June 18. The ordinance provides for an examining Board before which all applicants for plumbers' licenses must appear. Owing to the fact that the full membership of the Board of Health was not present at the meeting last night, the matter of appointing the Examining Board was laid over to an adjourned meeting.

A proposition was received by the Board from one of the citizens in regard to the collection and disposal of the city's garbage, and the matter was referred to the special garbage committee for further consideration.

A special inspection of the public drinking fountains was made during the month and found to be of very unsanitary type. This resulted in the Board adopting a resolution to the effect that the Common Council be requested to have the fountains put in a thoroughly sanitary condition. At the present time they are used only for horses and dogs, and the Board recommends that they be provided with drinking facilities for people as well; and in addition, that other sanitary fountains be placed throughout the city.

During the month, samples of the regular milk supply were collected and analyzed, and with one or two exceptions, found to be of good quality. In the course of the dairy inspections, conditions were found to be improving in most cases.

FIRE IN CITY DUMP KEPT MEN AT WORK MANY HOURS

A detachment of men from fire headquarters worked for five hours today at the dump on Randolph road in an effort to put out a stubborn fire that started in the debris at the place at 2 o'clock this morning. Fire headquarters was notified when the fire started and Chief Doane sent his men to the scene at that time.

The worst of the fire was put out with chemicals and the men returned to headquarters only to be called out again at 6 o'clock this morning. Residents of that section declare that the nuisance is beginning to get intolerable in that section. Smoke and dust from the dump are blown into the rooms and those living in that vicinity find it impossible to sleep with the windows open.

The blaze was a hard one to get at, the place being filled with litter that burns with a stench that makes it impossible for firemen to stand.

MISS ST. IVES A JUNE BRIDE

Becomes Wife of William A. Coddington in New York Today.

DR. EATON OFFICIATES

Ceremony is Followed by Luncheon at Waldorf-Astoria—Couple to Reside in the Borough Temporarily.

Miss Elizabeth St. Ives, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Ives, of Wallingford, Conn., and former City Judge William A. Coddington, of this city, were married at noon today at the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, the pastor, and personal friend of the bridegroom. There was only a few guests present, including Mrs. Charles A. Eaton, wife of the officiating minister; Miss Bernice McClintock and Charles W. McCutchen.

Following the ceremony a luncheon was served at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel for the bridal party and a few friends. Mr. and Mrs. Coddington will return here in a day or so and temporarily reside at 10 Mountair avenue, the borough, and a little later will remove to this city.

The bride's gown was a white hand embroidered suit, embroidered chiffon gloves with a hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. Neither she nor the bridegroom were attended.

Mrs. Coddington for the past two years has been the soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, prior to which time she sang at Temple Bethel, New York city; Calvary M. E. church, East Orange, and was also engaged in concert and oratorio work. She refused several flattering offers to go on the stage, prefering to devote her time to the concert and church work in which she has been so successful.

Mr. Coddington has been a resident of Plainfield for many years, where he has been engaged in the practice of law. For sixteen years he was a law partner of Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, and today he enjoys a lucrative practice. He has been a prominent figure in the Democratic party. He is a member of the Union County Board of Taxation, being appointed by Governor Fielder a few months ago. Both the judge and his wife are popular and enjoy the acquaintance of a large number of friends.

The bride and groom were met at the Jersey City terminal of the New Jersey Central after the ceremony by a large delegation of local friends, and were showered with congratulations.

Attractive Program Given Under Direction of Martin A. Korff.

The last of a series of concerts given by the Municipal Orchestra under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee was held last evening at the Washington School auditorium, Martin A. Only the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony and attended the informal reception which followed, during which supper was served.

TRADE BOARD FAVORS COMMISSION GOV'T

Will Wage Campaign of Education on Advantages to Be Gained by Change.

Determination to wage a campaign in favor of Commission Government was made last night at a meeting of the Board of Trade, held in the rooms of the organization in the Coward building. About a dozen members were present, nearly all being well known business men, and with two exceptions they declared themselves in favor of the commission, the general feeling being that nothing could be worse than the present condition of affairs in the city, and any change would be welcome. Only eleven voted when the question of supporting the plan was put up, but nine of them favored the new change. Throughout the entire discussion all who spoke made it plain that they meant no criticism of the present Mayor and Council, but that the system was obsolete, and ineffective.

The discussion started when the tax rate was mentioned, and President Jeffery declared that the people are silently awaiting for an organized expression to be made in favor of the commission. A. E. Force moved that the Board of Trade begin a campaign of education for the Commission Form of Government, and following that he presented a resolution which was also passed committing the Board of Trade as being in favor of it.

During the discussion Herman Schwed and Jacob Sachar backed up what Mr. Force said. John A. Gaffney said that he was opposed to the change because he could not see how conditions could be bettered in the city by making it, and he asked for reasons. Plenty of them were given by other speakers, while Mr. Gaffney presented no arguments against the

P. J. FAHY WEDS MRS. THORA MORRIS

Father B. M. Bogan Officiates in the Presence of Many Guests.

In the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends, Patrick J. Fahy, of East Fifth street, and Mrs. Thora Morris, of West Front street, were married in St. Mary's church at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Father B. M. Bogan. Edward Moraller, of East Fifth street, was best man and Miss Anna Lauritzen, sister of the bride, was the latter's attendant.

Following the nuptial ceremony, the marriage party adjourned to the couple's new home in the Stillman building, where a reception was held. Bride and bridegroom were the recipients of numerous appropriate gifts.

As told in yesterday's Daily Press, Mr. Fahy is one of the oldest and best known trolley conductors in the local street railway service, having been employed for the past seventeen years. He is at present on the Netherwood line. Both he and his bride have a host of friends who extended their congratulations.

Albert Walpole, of Scotch Plains, was arrested last night following an order issued by Judge DeMeza from the bench yesterday morning at the arraignment of Edward Demarest for disorderly conduct. MUSIC ON KEYS A CENTURY OLD Relic of the Long Ago is a Spinet Owned by Mrs. Anna Zimmer.

WAS MADE IN ENGLAND

Owner Will Receive Costly Hardman, Peck and Co. Player Piano in Exchange for Ancient Instrument.

Desirous of securing the oldest piano in the State of New Jersey, no matter what make or style, on May 11, Hardman, Peck & &Co., piano manufacturers, authorized Hahne & Company, of Newark, their agents, to offer, in exchange for the oldest piano in New Jersey, one of their player-pianos, absolutely free. There was no obligation in any way, shape, manner or form, the purpose simply being to get possession of the oldest piano in the State for exhibition at the Panama Exposition next year.

The oldest piano was found to be in the possession of Mrs. Anna Zimmer, of Watchung avenue, and she will receive the Hardman, Peck & Co. $460 player-piano. The old piano, or properly a spinet, owned by Mrs. Zimmer is among the relics of the past of which there are a number of inestimable value in Plainfield. While out of tune, some of the notes still respond to the touch as they did a century ago. This instrument was made in 1800 in England and therefore is 114 years old. It bears the inscription of "John Broadwood & Sons, makers to His Majesty King Gerge, Great Pultney street, Golden Square."

It is of rosewood with legs of elaborately carved mahogany. The keys are yellow with age. The whole resembles the spinet, which is carefully preserved in Washington's headquarters in Newburgh.

The instrument was brought from London in the early part of the last century by an Englishman who came to New Jersey to live, and was bought by Mrs. Zimmer's great grandmother, Mrs. John Clark, of Westfield, whose husband was one of the State law makers in his day. It was handed down to her granddaughter, Mrs. James Searing, the sister of John M. C. Marsh, and by her to her daughter.

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES MAN'S LIFE

U. B. Crane Has a Narrow Escape From Being Killed.

Presence of mind on the part of William Hummer, a Metuchen automobilist, is possibly all that saved U. B. Crane, of East Second street, from being run down on Park avenue, near Sixth street. Mr. Crane was on a bicycle and became involved in a jam of two cars and a lumber wagon. Hummer was proceeding south at a good speed when the wheelman suddenly appeared in front of him. The former was prevented from going ahead by the swinging of a car out Sixth street, driven by a woman, and the close proximity of the empty wagon, the property of the Loizeaux Lumber Company.

Hummer took in the situation at a glance and swung his car over the sidewalk and into a hedge fence surrounding the Clawson property on the northeast corner. The lumber wagon was sideswiped in the shift and somewhat damaged. The car was also damaged but Mr. Crane was unscratched. He realized the closeness of his danger and profusely thanked Mr. Hummer for the action which saved him from injury or death.

MAY TAKE ACTION TO GET LICENSES

Manager R. W. Campbell, of Plainfield Transit Company, Has Paid Fees.

INCENSED AT ATTACKS

Head of Concern Declares That Mayor's Statements Regarding Driver's Discourtesy Are Unwarranted.

Sterenuous opposition from different sources has been aroused since the presentation by Councilman Juan A. Babcock of an ordinance to the Common Council, Monday night, planning to designate the thoroughfares through which auto buses may be run in this city. In the event of this ordinance receiving favorable consideration by the councilmen, many protests will be filed by local merchants and those interested in the Plainfield Transit Co. The latter concern is at present operating vehicles for the transportation of persons between this city and South Plainfield and carries 2,500 patrons a month between these points.

Local merchants contend that placing a restriction of this nature on the transit company would eventually result in the abandonment of the enterprise and this would deprive Plainfield business houses of suburbanites' trade. Those active in the matter claim that each of the 2,500 passengers catered to by the transit company represent at least one dollar in trade, that amount being the average expended in this city by those conveyed here.

Representatives of the concern have also taken exception to the proposed ordinance and it was stated today, on good authority, that legal action would be taken in the matter if the proposition is passed. In an interview with Manager R. W. Campbell, of the Plainfield Transit Company, this morning, it was learned that a feeling of animosity has existed between the company and certain city officials here for sometime past and the manager is at a loss to account for it. Commenting on the Mayor's statement accusing a driver employed by the concern of being impudent, he said that he had investigated the allegations and found them to be groundless. The alleged act of impudence is said to have been committed when one of the drivers was requested to adhere to certain police regulations and he refused. Manager Campbell stated that he had personally investigated the charge and believed it to be untrue.

Queried concerning the present routes being taken by the buses, Manager Campbell said that he was trying to divide the travel up as much as possible, alternating on Seventh street rather than making all of his trips through that thoroughfare. There is an average of eight trips a day made through Seventh street by the present auto bus company and the remainder are taken through Fourth street and Plainfield avenue.

The proposed ordinance was read once for information, Monday night, to the Council and allows the Mayor to grant or refuse the licenses, restrict and designate the streets through which the auto buses and vehicles of similar character shall run. It provides for a license fee of $15 for each vehicle and a fine of $15 for each violation.

According to Mr. Campbell the company he represents has not as yet received the license for operating its buses in this city, although the money was turned over to the city clerk's office some time ago. He says that he cannot understand why the licenses are not issued, and intimated that the company would probably take legal steps to secure the same.

ORIGINAL NUMBERS WILL BE GIVEN AT CONCERT

Among the musical numbers to be presented at the ensemble concert at the First Presbyterian church, Friday evening, is the beautiful "Ave Maria," by Bach-Gounod, for voice, violin, 'cello, piano and organ. The "Grand Polonaise in E flat" of Chopin and the first movement of the Grieg "Concerto" for piano, both accompanied with organ and second piano are also on the program as well as a song entitled "You," by Miss May Vincent Whitney.

"O Land We Love, America," words by Rev. William C. O'Donnell, of this city, with music by Miss Whitney, will be sung by William N. Searles, Jr., the well-known basso contante. The opening number of the program will be a well-known overture for pianos, organ, violin, 'cello, cymbals, tambourine and voice. No cards of admission are necessary and the public is invited.

The Borough Council will meet at the Fanwood Firehouse tonight at 8 o'clock.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the All Saints' Episcopal church, are holding their weekly meeting at the home of Mrs. Albert Ribblet, on Farley avenue, this afternoon.

Although the New Jersey Central notified the Borough Council at the May meeting that the roadways leading to the Martine avenue bridge would be fixed at the expense of the company nothing has been done as yet. The constant traffic has worn two ruts in the road and vehicles coming down the hill from the bridge swerve all over and have narrowly escaped going off the road. The street committee made a recent inspection and will probably call the attention of the railroad to it.

The Lend-a-Hand Society is holding a meeting in the parlors of the Baptist church this afternoon.

The funeral of Mrs. Juliet M. Terry, wife of the late William H. Terry, who died at her home on Terril road Monday morning in her fifty-fourth year, was held at her late residence this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was in charge of the Rev. W. I. Steans, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Westfield, of which she was a member. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, Plainfield.

Miss Ethel Clyde has returned to her home in Brooklyn, after visiting Miss Theisa Lewis, of Montague avenue, for a number of days.

There is but one change in the summer schedule of the New Jersey Central that effects this place and that is the changing of the morning mail train from the east from 7:58 to 8:12. The time of the arrival of this particular train has been changed often and every time it is done the school children that go to Plainfield protest. When it was changed last fall from 8:10 to 7:58 one school girl wrote a short poem on the prospect of getting up early enough to catch the train It was called to the attention of an official of the road who took it in good part and explained why the change was made.

Local residents are awaiting with interest the action of the government in case there is no applicant for postmaster. Miss Carrie Bettman is not likely to become postmistress again unless by special appointment as she is kept from taking the examination owing to the age limit. It is hardly probable that the local office will be closed and rural free delivery established as Fanwood is on a railroad line and it is through that office that the Scotch Plains postoffice receives its mail. Although the postmastership at the Plains is open also as Mrs. Dunn is beyond the age limit, it is understood that the assistant, Miss Rita DeMott will take the office.

A meeting of the Fanwood Field Club is scheduled for Friday evening at the home of Maurice Hall on South avenue.

Miss Claire Hall, a student at Mt. Saint Mary College, has returned home to spend the summer with her parents.

There is a rumor in circulation to the effect that the Philadelphia offices of the Central railroad are to be moved to New York city. It will be remembered that when the Philadelphia and Reading railroad acquired control of the Central and George F. Baer, president of the Reading was also elected president of the Central, that two hundred of the Central's clerks were transferred from New York to Philadelphia. Now that Mr. Baer is dead and W. G. Besler has been elected president of the Central with offices in New York city, it would appear that the rumor is not unfounded upon the ground that Mr. Besler will naturally want all the main offices of his company to be in close proximity to him. Dunellen hopes the rumor is true because when the transfer was made there was lost a number of citizens.

The illustrated lecture on the "Battle of Gettysburg" which was to have been given in the Presbyterian chapel on Thursday evening has been postponed on account of its conflicting with the manual training exhibit in our schools on that date.

The members of the Board of Education transacted no business at the regular monthly meeting, called in the Whittier School last evening. They merely assembled and adjourned until June 23rd.

Money to Loan on Bond and Mortgage

An electric pole standing in front of the residence of Edward Maurer at the corner of Madison avenue and Mountainview Terrace fell down last night pulling the wires which it was upholding across Madison avenue. The pole must have fallen down sometime around nine o'clock as an automobile ran amuck of these wires at 9:15 doing about $60.00 worth of damage to it. The only injury sustained by the occupants who are unknown was a cut hand sustained by the driver. Most of the damage done was to the top of the machine. A little fixing of the vital parts of the auto was all that was necessary to enable it to proceed.

COMMENDED FOR GRIT AND LOYALTY

Benjamin Corrigan Among the First Detachments in Battle of Vera Cruz.

HONOR BRAVE MATES

Interesting Letter and Mexican Bill Received From Plainfielder Aboard Battleship Arkansas—Copy of Commander's Order.

M. and Mrs. John Corrigan, of Stebbins place, are in receipt of an interesting letter from their son, Benjamin Corrigan, who is a bluejacket, attached to the battleship "Arkansas," stationed at Vera Cruz. The young Plainfielder was one of the first detachments landed in the seaport city on April 18, to sieze the custom house and which was fired upon by "Snipers," causing the death of fifteen Americans. In his letter he incloses a commendatory epistle given to each participant in the battle of Vera Cruz, by A. B. Keating, Lieutenant Commander of the United States navy, which reads as follows:

Arkansas Headquarters
1st Regiment, Naval Brigade,
Veracruz, Mexico,
April 30, 1914.

General Order No. 1.

The Battalion Commander feels that in breaking camp to return aboard ship, he cannot miss the opportunity to express to the Battalion his pride and gratification in the splendid support and co-operation of every officer and man of his command.

From the moment of landing last Wednesday morning your grit and loyalty have been unsurpassed and your attention to duty is something that can never be forgotten.

With such a spirit in the Battalion, nothing would ever be too much for it to accomplish and the Battalion Commander knows that all hands have formed a bond that will last throughout their entire lives.

In conclusion all honor to our brave mates who gave their lives in upholding the honor of their Country. They now head the honor list of the Arkansas,—a list that will always be an example for the rest of us to try to follow.

A. B. KEATING,
Lieutenant-Commander, U. S. Navy,
Battalion Commander.

Corrigan also encloses in his letter a Mexican bill worth two pesos, or forty cents in American valuation, which he secured from a "Sniper." The latter was captured by Corrigan in the act of firing from a house top. The Mexican howled for mercy and shoved a handful of peso notes at the American as an offering for his freedom. The bluejacket kept the bills as souvenirs but their owner went to the prison pen. Corrigan states that the Americans are in complete possession of the city, and as a rule have nothing much to vary the routine. He says there are fifteen Plainfield boys in all in and about the town.

THE DAY NURSERY.

Every year, just before many Plainfielders go away for their summer vacations appeals are made for funds to carry on the work of the Day Nursery, conducted by the King's Daughters on West Front street. There is no more worthy local charity, or one that does a nobler and better work than this institution, maintained largely by the efforts of the women of the city. All winter long, in one way or another, they go about raising funds for the work, but it is always necessary to appeal at last to generous hearted residents of the city, who are more fortunate than some of their neighbors.

The appeal for money is made annually through the columns of the Daily Press and we take pleasure in offering our services for this work again this year. The demands upon the nursery annually grow greater. Scores of babies, sick and well, are taken care of during the season which is so trying for the little tots, and untold good is done every day in the summer. The baby camp on the mountain is no longer in use, all the activity now being carried on at the West Front street building.

It is sincerely to be hoped that this summer will find those who travel to the seashore and mountains thinking of the little ones at home, and doing their bit to add to the comfort of the less fortunate in town. Subscriptions to the cause may be sent to the Daily Press office. They will be acknowledged through our columns and promptly forwarded to those in charge of the home.

ATTACK WEEDS NOW.

In a few weeks there will be declared a general war upon weeds of the city. Gardeners and farmers have sent forth their ultimatum ere this while lovers of beautiful lawns started their work with the first days of spring. Why wait for the sound of alarm from health officials notifying the public that the weeds are going to seed and that a belated campaign must be waged? Do it NOW.

Dandelions already have scattered their light and abundant seed pods everywhere lest there be danger of a shortage in the crop of greens in the front yards next spring. Other noxious plant outcasts, while less enterprising, will soon present their ever luxurious offering of descendants. Before we are aware, there will be blooms and then seed pods and then—trouble and tribulation.

Strike a blow in time for health, beauty and pleasure. It is better to strike now and have to strike again, than to strike too late in a few days more. No need to wait for the annual official call to duty; what need of police threats when there are so many other reasons why the weeds should go! Now they are young and tender; tomorrow they will be stubborn and vie with you to overcome your strength. Put in a good lick for a healthy and a beautiful community today.

The general impression about town is that the representatives of the Board of Fire Underwriters have done a gratuitous and unnecessary act in coming to Plainfield to tell what they think should be done in the way of fire protection. Analysis of the report leads to the belief that nothing of importance that was not already known has developed as a result of the four examiners being in town a month. The work of these men is good salesmanship for the dealers in automobile and other kinds of fire apparatus. If they could find some method of putting good conscience into the human structure, instead of telling what to do with the building code, more could be accomplished than by having a group of busybodies from out of town tackle Plainfield's problems, which have been well handled by the city officials. It might be well to ask ourselves, in view of the fact that the fire department has on the whole proven efficient, what is the object of all this unsolicited prying into Plainfield's affairs? Certianly there has been nothing recently except the lamentable fire in Netherwood, that has warranted all this expensive investigation. Why so anxious to have more paid men in the Plainfield fire department? There has been trouble enough to get candidates for the fire and police departments. What's it all about, anyway?

Councilman Cose has not hesitated to say that he is opposed to the ordinance which has been presented to the city Council to regulate the auto busses which run through some of the streets of the city. He intends to back up the merchants who want the busses left alone, and says that he will make a fight against the passage of any such legislation. If the other councilmen follow his lead they will work for the better interests of the city, and not for the few who are stirring up the protest against the very beneficial transportation line which has been developed by the running of the busses from this city to South Plainfield.

Some automobile owners say that the speed limit is being exceeded by about twice the lawful mileage, through the main streets of the city. Twenty-five miles an hour is said to be nothing unusual. Cautious autoists are apparently in the way. Motorcycle policemen are not needed to stop the practice. An ordinary cop on the street can get the number.

A new use for vacant lots has been discovered in Pittsburgh. The public safety director has asked all owners of such property to convert the lots into ball grounds for the boys and young men.

There is nothing that compares with plenty of pure, fresh and cool water in the summer time. That city is wise which supplies it.

Save a life this summer. Every individual can do this by demanding pure milk, pure water and pure, clean foodstuffs.

The one way to keep every day holy is to clean up every day.

Charles E. Spier, of Watchung, has composed the following song which will be sung at the legend in honor of Princess Wetumpka:

WETUMPKA.

Wetumpka, pretty little maid of an Indian reddish shade,
With heart so good and true,
Bright and charming as the sky, so blue
Cheerily singing, ever singing all the whole day through,
Beside the sparkling brooks and rills
Thro the woods and Watchung hills,
This Indian maid would roam,
And laugh and play, day by day with Indian friends round her wigwam home.

Chorus.

Pretty, sweet, Wetumpka fair
With long black waving hair
For you my life I dare
No one with you can compare
By your side I'll always stay
Your wishes to obey
And we'll be happy from the month of June until the month of May.

Among her playmates she liked best
Better far than all the rest
A bright young Indian boy,
As they played with hearts so full of joy
Always happy not a frown nor trouble to annoy,
One Feather loved Wetumpka, too,
When at last they older grew and left their childish play,
And walked and talked while the moonlight brightly shown
All along their way.
Chorus —

Wetumpka was an Indian Princess when but a little child,
So gentle, meek and mild,
And One Feather now becomes the chief
Of the redskins with their bows and arrows rough and wild.
And now the princess and the chief
Are content beyond belief,
Thro sunshine and through trial
As on they go hand to hand
In Indian land, with a happy smile.

FIRM FOUNDATION.

Nothing Can Undermine It in Plainfield.

People are sometimes slow to recognize true merit, and they cannot be blamed, for so many have been humbugged in the past. The experience of hundreds of Plainfield residents, expressed publicly through newspapers and other sources, places Doan's Kidney Pills on a firm foundation here.

A. K. Mattis, 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was troubled for years by a dull backache and pains in my head. I believe that it was due in a great measure to a bad fall I had. Nothing seemed to help me and when I read of the good work Doan's Kidney Pills were doing in similar cases, I got a supply at Randolph's drug store. They drove away the aches and pains and gave proof of their merit. I confirm the endorsement I gave Doan's Kidney Pills when they cured me a few years ago. The cure has been permanent."

AN ORDINANCE

A further supplement to an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance to license Inns and Taverns and to Regulate and Prohibit the Sale of Spirituous and Fermented Liquors," approved February 10, 1892, as amended.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That, in order to enable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield more effectively to regulate the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors within said City as they deem most conducive to the public good, the number of licenses to sell spirituous or fermented liquors in quantities less than one quart to be granted under Section 4 and Section 5, of the ordinance to which this ordinance is a further supplement and to be in force at the same time within said city, shall hereafter be limited to one such license for each two thousand five hundred of population of said city; and the number of licenses to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors in quantities of one quart or more to be granted under Section 7 of the ordinance to which this ordinance is a further supplement and to be in force at the same time within said City, shall hereafter be limited to one such license for each six thousand of population of said city. In ascertaining the population of said city from time to time for the purposes of this ordinance, the population of the city stated in the report of the then last census, National or State, as the case may be, shall be taken as conclusive.

Section 2. That this ordinance shall take effect immediately.

Adopted by the Common Council, June 1, 1914; approved by the Mayor, June 1, 1914.

FAVORS COMMISSION GOVT.

commission plan.

The trolley committee through Mr. Force, and the consolidation committee through Mr. Schwed made reports. The question of regulating the auto buses came up, and Mr. Force declared that he could not understand "why the silk-stockinged population of Seventh and Eighth street should be permitted to bar day laborers or anyone else from the public streets in their section." He said that in his opinion a much greater risk was run by forcing the auto buses to travel on Third or Fourth street, because they are thickly settled sections. He said that the city Council should not pass class legislation.

For the board of trustees a report on the year's work was made, which was in part as follows:

"The extension of the trolley to South Plainfield was taken up with President McCarter, July, 1913, and Mr. McCarter wrote to our chairman, A. E. Force, of the trolley extension committee, on July 22, 1913, that he had carefully considered and discussed with his people the subject of the proposed Plainfield extension, after visiting the route, but that he could not advocate the extension now, owing to business conditions making it difficult to obtain new capital; hoped that the day would come when he would be able to take a different view of the situation. Mrs. Smith, of South Plainfield, petitioned the Public Utility Commission for the extension of the trolley to South Plainfield, and our Board of Trade voted unanimously to support Mrs. Smith and the South Plainfield Board of Trade at the hearing before the Public Utility Commission. Judge Newcorn, one of the attorney's for the Board of Trade of Plainfield, and the only one of them who appeared in the interests of the Board of Trade at the two hearings before the Public Utility Commission, did a great deal of work in handling the case and the witnesses and prepared the briefs to be submitted to the Public Utility Commission by June 1. We have proved conclusively that this extension of the trolley is an absolute necessity and our expert testified that he could build the extension for sixty thousand ($60,000) dollars, forty per cent. less than the amount figured by the Public Service Corporation. The other witnesses testified of the amount of business being done by the motor buses and that if a five cent fare would not pay the Public Service Corporation, that there should be a ten cent fare until such time as a five cent fare would pay. Of course, the Public Service to issue transfers from South Plainfield to any of the other lines. That the matter has gone so far, that we await with interest the decision of the Public Utility Commission, and if the Public Service Corporation does not understand that this extension is a real necessity, and that they ought to build the line, they will probably come to sense of realization before we are through with the case, as we propose to see it through to the end.

"We have been unable to get very far in the matter of having Tier's pond and the brook cleaned up, because the local Board of Health does not seem to understand that it is its duty to compel the owners of abutting property to refrain from throwing stuff into the pond and the brook. We would suggest to the Board of Health, that they go further than the putting up of notices, which was done after we complained, and that is to prosecute some of those persons who are wilfully violating the health code of the city.

"The Borough Board of Health seem to have been on the job right along and has co-operated with the Board of Trade in every way.

"Our annual banquet was most successful in every way. In fact, it was the most successful that the Board of Trade, and for that matter any other civic organization of the city, has ever held.

"The Board had a special meeting devoted to the subject of the collection and disposal of garbage and ashes. Since then the Council of the city has, through a committee, taken up this subject.

"Our Board of Trade opposed the small Board of Freeholder plan, except they ought to be elected from districts.

"Our Board, after discussing the consolidation of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield, resolved unanimously that the early consolidation of these two municipalities is desirable and the committee on consolidation, after a series of meetings, submitted to the Mayor and Council of the borough, a resolution, asking those gentlemen to call a special election and give the people of the borough an opportunity to decide this matter for themselves.

"The Board of Trade submitted a series of questions to the Board of Education and Dr. Maxson, replied to them on behalf of the Board of Education. We advise this method against newspaper controversy, assuring the public that we are ready to serve it at any time on any subject, but we must insist that those who desire the services of the Board of Trade must be willing to reveal identity and to stand shoulder to shoulder with it, in the fight for improvement."

Walter Debele, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Debele, has returned home from Muhlenberg Hospital, where he underwent an operation.

BLUE AND GRAY TO JOIN IN EXERCISES

Washington, D. C., June 3—The blue and the gray will join in the notable program of exercises that is to be carried out at the Arlington National cemetery tomorrow on the occasion of the unveiling of the imposing monument which has been erected to the Confederate dead who are buried there. The final details of the unveiling program were arranged today. Col. Hilary A. Herbert, former secretary of the navy and chairman of the monument committee, will preside at the exercises. President Wilson will be the principal speaker. As guests of honor will be Gen. Bennett Young, of Kentucky, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, and Washington Gardner, of Michigan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. The national heads of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Sons of Confederate Veterans also will be present. Hundreds of Civil War veterans from Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina and other States will attend the unveiling.

The monument to the Confederate dead was erected through the efforts of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, which raised a fund of $50,000 for the purpose. It was designed and executed by the American sculptor, Sir Moses Ezekiel, himself a Southerner who served in the Confederate army in his early youth and was graduated the year after the close of the war from the Virginia Military Institute. The Arlington memorial has received the unanimous praise of the art critics and others who have been permitted to view it.

AMERICAN SCHOOL IS DEDICATED IN TURKEY

Constantinople, June 3—The American College for Girls, which has been removed to a site on the European Bosphorus after having existed for a number of years at Scutari, was dedicated today with an interesting program of exercises. Three of the American trustees of the institution, Charles R. Crane, of Chicago, and Walter B. Walker and George A. Plimpton, of New York, participated in the dedication exercises. A number of officials of the Ottoman government and several of the foreign diplomats resident in Constantinople were present.

The institution dedicated today is to be known in future as Constantinople College. The institution dates from 1871, in which year it began its career as a girls' High School. Six years ago a charter was secured from the Massachusetts Legislature and the school was reorganized as the American College for Girls. Dr. Charles Cuthbert Hall, president of Union Theological Seminary, New York, became president of the board of trustees.

The new site of the college embraces fifty-four acres of land on the heights of Annaoutkewy overlooking Bosphorus, and five miles from the city of Constantinople. Four of the seven buildings embraced in the architects' plans are completed and were dedicated today. Among those who have contributed liberally to the building fund are Mrs. Russell Sage, Mrs. Finley Shepard and John D. Rockefeller.

Query—What is the distance by water from New York to San Francisco via the Panama Canal? What was the distance over the route before the opening of the Panama Canal?—F. T.

Answer—The old route was about 13,400 miles, via the Panama Canal it is 5,300.

Sporting Editor:

Query—When was the standard of time established and how is the United States divided in the standard time map?—Zowie.

Answer—Primarily, for the convenience of the railroads, a standard of time was established by mutual agreement in 1883, by which trains are run and local time regulated. According to this system, the United States, extending from 65 degrees to 125 degrees west longitude, is divided into four time sections, each of 15 degrees longtitude, exactly equivalent to one hour, commencing with the 75th meridian. The first (Eastern) section includes all territory between the Atlantic coast and an irregular line drawn from Detroit to Charleston, S. C., the latter being its most southern point. The second (central) section includes all the territory between the last named line and an irregular line from Bismarck, N. D., to the mouth of the Rio Grande. The third (mountain) section includes all territory between the last named line and nearly the western borders of Idaho, Utah and Arizona. The fourth (Pacific) section covers the rest of the country to the Pacific coast. Standard time is uniform inside each of these sections, and the time of each section differs from that next to it by exactly one hour. Thus at 12 noon in New York city (eastern time), the time at Chicago (central time) is 11 o'clock a. m.; at Denver (mountain time), 1 o'clock a. m., and at San Francisco (Pacific time), 9 o'clock a. m. Standard time is 16 minutes slower at Boston than true local time, 4 minutes slower at New York, 8 minutes faster at Washington, 19 minutes faster at Charleston, 28 minutes slower at Detroit, 18 minutes faster at Kansas City, 10 minutes slower at Chicago, 1 minute faster at St. Louis, 28 minutes faster at Salt Lake City and 10 minutes faster at San Francisco.

Stout Quintet Came Back With a Rush in the Series With the Laing Team.

After dropping the first verdict by a margin of four pins the Stout bowlers in the Elks' bowling tourney came back strong and copped the remaining pair on the club's alleys last night at the expense of the Laing contingent. Twenty-four pins separated the rivals in the mid session and forty counts was the final advantage.

Both of the anchor men set up high scores in the third contest, Stout hitting the boards for 234, the high water mark of the series, and Laing turning a 223.

FIRST CALL FOR THE LAWYERS' BALL NINE

All Out for Practise Tomorrow Afternoon on the Parker Field Diamond.

Manager William G. DeMeza, of the lawyers' baseball team, announced this morning that the first regular practice of the deciples of Blackstone, would be held on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon. A big squad of the legal lights are expected to be on hand for the first limbering up session and the manager expects to be confronted with a full team at the initial call.

Several of the most ambitious have been holding private sessions of ball tossing during the past two weeks and have passed the period of soreness so well known to the would-be come-back. The preliminary work will consist of batting, fielding and practise in circling the bases.

Nothing has been heard from the doctors' camp in sometime past but the pill dispensers are expected to turn out for their first drill during the next few days.

GIRARD MAY TWIRL FOR MULLIN'S TEAM

High Bridge Youth Favorite for Job Formerly Held Down by Slocum.

Captain Mullin, of the South Plainfield baseball team, is scouting around the central portion of the garden State for some material with which to bolster his aggregation for the contest against Jimmy Montross' Dunellen corn-huskers on the South Plainfield diamond next Sunday afternoon. Girard, the former High Bridge High School twirling phenom who has been making a great record at Lafayette College this season, is Mullin's choice for the mound berth and it is not unlikely that he will be signed prior to the Dunellen contest.

The college schedule ends Saturday afternoon and Girard will probably return to his home in High Bridge at that time. Mullin is making extra efforts to get the High Bridge boy in line before the next game and his appearance on the South Plainfield park would greatly bolster the lineup.

PLAINFIELD GOLFERS ENTER STATE GOLF TITLE EVENT

Plainfield, Westfield and Somerville will be well represented in the enormous entry list for the annual New Jersey golf championship opening tomorrow on the links of the Morris County Club. William T. Glenney, R. S. Rowland and T. W. Wheeler, of the Plainfield Country Club, will compete for this city.

One of the most prominent names on the list comes from the Somerville Club, J. N. Stearns, 3d., being the entrant. A. B. Maillefert and C. B. Wilcox are the Westfield Golf Club players in the running.

MATTY WILL TWIRL FOR PLAINFIELDERS

Brother of "Big Six" Will Make His Debut in Pets' Uniform Next Saturday.

"Hank" Mathewson, brother of the world renowned "Big Six" of the New York Giants, has been signed by Manager Ernest Dorfinger, of the Plainfield team, to occupy the box for the locals in the remainder of the team's contests this season. He will make his debut in Queen City regalia Saturday afternoon when the Plainfielders line up against Manager McDonald's Westfield ball tossers. The latter was originally scheduled to be played in Westfield but Dorflinger has entered into negotiations with the Mt. Ararat pilot which may result in the shifting of the contest to this city.

Matty's kid brother is a recognized star in metropolitan circles both in the field and at the bat. He demonstrated his all around ability here last Saturday afternoon while playing center field against the Pets in a Bronx club uniform. His feature contribution to the box score was a four cushion clout to deep centre field, a stunt that has seldom been equalled on Parker Field. His appearance in a local uniform will add greatly to the strength of the Plainfield team and will make it all the more formidable when it takes the field against Westfield Saturday. In facing the latter combination the Pets will have to bat against the slants of Cowperwaite, one of the shining lights on the pitching mound in this section. He has established a record for himself as a strikeout artist and attention in the week-end game will be centered around the rifle pit.

AMERICAN PLAYERS NAMED TO DEFEND POLO TROPHY

Hemstead, L. I., June 3.—After seeing the Big Four maul the second team all over the international field at Meadow Brook yesterday afternoon, the Selection Committee of the Polo Association went into session and officially approved the line-up that is to face the British team on the same campus a week from yesterday. Henry L. Herbert, chairman of the association; William A. Hazard, the secretary-treasurer, and Harry Payne Whitney, coach, went into session with Monty Waterbury, captain of the defenders.

Mr. Herbert announced that he would give out the make-up of the team this morning, but on information obtained from an equally reliable source it can be said with certainty that the lineup will be as follows:

No. 1—Rene La Montagne.
No. 2—Monty Waterbury.
No. 3—Devereux Milburn.
Back—Larry Waterbury.
Substitutes—Charles C. Rumsey and Hal Phipps, forward line; Malcolm Stevenson, back and No. 3.

A small field of women golfers turned out for the eighteen hole medal play competition on the links of the Plainfield Country Club yesterday, the event being won by Mrs. R. S. Rowland, who returned a card of 122, 25-97.

Only three of those starting in the competition finished. For her victory Mrs. Rowland receives the trophy presented by R. B. Corey.

WON EASTERN TITLE.

Greenwich, Conn., June 3—Increasing by two strokes the seven stroke lead on the field which she gained Monday, Mrs. H. A. Jackson, of Boston, won the women's Eastern golf championship over the links of the Greenwich Country Club yesterday. Mrs. Jackson supplemented her remarkable 83 of Monday with a well played 89 yesterday, and her total of 172 made the title hers by an ample margin.

MISS WILDEY AND PARTNER FAVORITES FOR DOUBLES

The big attraction in yesterday's play in the women's Pennsylvania and Eastern States Tennis Championship Tournament, was the doubles match. The first pair to record a victory was Mrs. Edward Raymond, of New York, and Miss Edna Wildey, of this city, 1913 title holder, in this event. They defeated Miss Pierce and Miss E. Meehan, 6-1, 6-2.

Miss Wildey was also a contender for the singles title when the tournament opened, but was eliminated from play Monday afternoon.

ROD AND REEL

Trout fishing is picking up, according to reports that are being turned in by the anglers. There was a big crowd out for the double holiday, and some fairly good catches were made. The fish are beginning to take to the fly, and we may expect to see better fishing right along until the end of the season. Many of the smaller streams that were stocked only last fall, and that for the first time in years have been thoroughly fished out, and there is very little use trying there for fish. The old standbys, however, will yield their usual results. There are very few streams necessary for the angler to spend more than one day in order to study the best places.

The salt water anglers were out strong for the holidays. Ling, sea bass and blackfish made up the most of the catches. A local angler fished both days, going out on one of the Sheepshead Bay boats on Saturday, and on Sunday he fished from the Taurus. His biggest take was a nine pound hake, caught off the bell buoy.

Shark river, about two miles inland from the ocean, is a very fine stream for trout. One good place in particular is about a quarter mile east of the Central Railroad depot of Shark river. An easy way to locate this stream is to follow the road at the depot to the left a quarter of a mile, but a branch of the river is crossed by the railroad tracks south of the depot.

The bass fishermen are overhauling their tackle in anticipation of the opening of the season the middle of the month.

BABY GIRL WANDERED NEARLY A MILE FROM PARENT'S HOME

After being missing from home for four hours this morning, two-year-old Helen Dacey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dacey, of 724 Wallace place, was located by her parents at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Peacock, at Seventh street and Clinton avenue. The lost girl was found crying in the road on Clinton avenue by Mrs. Peacock, who took her home and got into communcation with the child's mother.

Several searching parties were organized in the west end of town after the discovery that the girl had disappeared and the mother was nearly distracted when the good news was sent her shortly after 11 o'clock.

CRAZY WOMEN STILL AT IT.

London, June 3, (Central News Cable).—Two valuable drawings were attacked today at the Dore Art Gallery by a woman who slashed at them with a hatchet.

Not content with damaging the pictures, the excited woman fiercely resisted the attempt to arrest her and seriously wounded the attendant who seized her.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS GUESTS AT MEETING

Annual Entertainment Given for Them by College Club of Plainfield.

The final meeting of the year for the College Club was held at the home of Miss Ellen Burke Tuesday afternoon. It is the custom of the club at the June meetnig to give an entertainment for the seniors of the High Schools of Plainfield and North Plainfield, the Hartridge School and the Semniary. This year the entertainment took the form of a tennis tournament in which the seniors were the competitors. The finals between Miss Phillips, of the Plainfield High School, and Miss Eaton, of the Seminary, were played at the meeting yesterday. Miss Phillips won the match and was presented with a silver loving cup by the club.

The principal item of business to come before the club was the report of Miss Ball, chairman of the Civics Committee, in regard to the work that has been done in persuading Plainfield merchants to close their stores on Saturday afternoons during August. A petition has been circulated for this purpose throughout the city and has been signed by more than 2,000 representative citizens.

The following agreement has been signed by the merchants:

"In response to the petitions of our patrons we the undersigned merchants do agree under the below named conditions, to close our stores during August, 1914, at 1 o'clock on Saturdays, with the privilege of keeping open on Friday evening instead of Saturday.

1. That practically all of the merchants in our special line of business consent to this agreement.

2. That the agreement shall be binding during the single month of August, 1914.

3. That we make no promise that shall bind us for another season.

We look for the hearty cooperation of the citizens of Plainfield in this movement for civic welfare:

H. A. Bonn Co., A. E. Force & Co., Woodhull & Martin Co., M. C. VanArsdale, M. & M. Rodgers Co., M. & A. Tepper, J. A. Smith & Bro., Schwed Bros., W. L. Smalley Co., Samuel Rothberg, M. R. Giles, F. E. Vail, Geo. W. Pope Co., H. L. Viebrock, Roth & Co., Gustave Hoffman, Swain's Fine Art Store, J. L. Bennett, Harry Dreier, M. Rosenthal, Shirley & Johnston, Fred H. Firstbrook, Leo Zeisel.

These stores already maintain the practice of the Saturday half-holiday: Kirch Co., H. E. Gayle C., A. M. Grien, J. C. Hansen, J. W. Gavett, Peck, Powlison & Jones, Rogers Co.

Vigilant and effective results have been produced by Miss Skillman, who was engaged by the club to further this work.

Members of the College Club were keenly interested in Miss Ball's report, and several declared their intention of dealing at those stores which maintain the Saturday half-holiday.

NEEDLEWORK

AN ATTRACTIVE DESIGN FOR A COLLAR AND CUFF SET

Dainty collar and cuff sets are worn with various kinds of dresses, waists and coats all the year round, but more especially are they used on coats in the Spring and Summer, when the furs have been laid aside. They may be made of fine round-thread linen, handkerchief linen, lawn, batiste or organdie, and embroidered with fine white or colored mercerized cotton.

This simple design should be developed in heavily padded solid work and outline-stitch, with a row of couching along the outer edge, and, if desired, narrow Valenciennes or Cluny lace may be used for finishing the edge. There are, contained in this pattern, two different designs for collars and cuffs which are cut in medium size only. They may, however, be made to fit a larger neck by cutting the neckline a ve little deeper into the collar, or the reverse for a smaller neck. If a less elaborate design is desired, some of the sprays and bars may be omitted.

The other collar, contained in pattern No. 14643, is narrow in the back and broad on the shoulders, with a scalloped edge and a very simple conventional design in the points at the sides.

Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer pattern will be supplied to readers for 15 cents.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

A plain, practical housedress is shown in this No. 7434, suitable for linen, one of the heavier cottons, madras or gingham. The neck may be finished with an embroidered white collar, and if desired, small white cuffs may be used to finish the sleeves. The dress buttons down the center front, has a wide plait over either shoulder, to give the required fullness, and a narrow stitched belt. While it is an extremely plain little dress, if developed in serge, with collar and cuffs of white organdy and finished with one of the new wide patent leather or suede belts, it would make an excellent dress for street wear, shopping, etc.

If the dress is fashioned of wash material, it is a practical idea, instead of sewing the buttons to the dress, to buy pearl or bone buttons having shanks, fasten them to the dress by pinning them on the under side with tiny safety pins. This will be found a great convenience in washing or ironing.

This dress may be made in size 36, with 5 yards of 36-inch material. Pattern comes in sizes, 34 to 44.

This is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

CHERRY ICES.

DINNER MENU.
Clear Soup.
Roast Loin of Pork, Apple Sauce.
Browned Potatoes. Creamed Onions.
Lettuce Salad.
Cherry Water Ice.
Coffee.

THE flavor and tartness of cherries are qualities that make them especially useful in the preparation of ices. A variety of ways of thus using them are here suggested:

Using Cherry Juice.

Cherry Water Ice.—Take two quarts of ripe red cherries, mash them, breaking some of the pits and chopping the seeds fine, adding to the cherry pulp. About twenty will give a good flavor. Let stand and chill for an hour; then press through a jelly bag or cheese cloth. Boil three cupfuls of sugar with three cupfuls of water and let cool; then add the cherry juice and freeze.

Cherry Mousse.—Mix together one pint of very sweet, thick cream; three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, one drop of almond extract and a cupful of cherry juice. Chill and then whip, putting the bowl in a pan of ice water. As the froth whips to surface skim it off and lay on a fine sieve or piece of cheesecloth placed over a colander. When no more froth arises put the whip carefully into a mold, place a piece of oiled paper on top and then the cover. Embed the mold in cracked ice and coarse salt. Let it stand in a cool place for two hours before serving.

With or Without Gelatin.

Frozen Cherries.—Make a sirup of one pint of water and one cupful of sugar, cooking it about ten minutes. Do not make a sirup too heavy and rich, for it will take too long to freeze. Add a quart of pitted cherries and cook about ten minutes, but not until soft. Let them stand until cold and then put into the freezer and turn the crank slowly but steadily until frozen. It should be the consistency of sherbet. Some add gelatin, two tablespoonfuls to the amount given, but when the ice is to be served as soon as frozen and in only a small quantity it is not worth while.

White Cherry Ice Cream.—Put a pint of sugar and half a pint of water in a saucepan over the fire. Stir until the sugar dissolves and then let the sirup boil up clear. Drop in carefully a quart of white cherries and simmer for fifteen minutes; then strain and let the sirup chill. Then add a quart of cream or rich milk and cream together. Turn into freezer, and when the dasher is hard to turn remove it and beat the cream well with a paddle, mixing the harder part on the outside with the cream in the center. Then stir the fruit in carefully, but thoroughly, and repack and put away to harden for two or three hours.

The Elephants Played Ball.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Elephants Celebrate The Holiday.

OF course it was very natural that Jack and Evelyn should enjoy every holiday that came along. But daddy wanted to tell them how the elephants in the zoo were planning to spend Decoration day.

"They are going to have a real holiday," commenced daddy, "and they have been practicing for it for weeks. You have no idea the trouble they have taken to make themselves ready for the big event."

"Daddy," chimed in Jack, "you haven't told us what the big event is to be."

"No; that is true," said daddy. "But I will tell you right away. The big event is to be a baseball game. The elephants heard all the different little boys who came to look at them in the zoo talking about the fun of playing baseball in the spring. The elephants thought it would be just as much fun for them to play baseball in the spring too.

"Now, the keeper knew at once somthing was wrong with those elephants. He knew it was something they wanted in the way of amusement, too, for they were not the least bit ill and showed, in fact, how well they were by their splendid appetites.

"So the keeper thought and thought, and finally he discovered what it was. He was just about to give the elephants their supper one day as a group of boys were standing near by.

"The boys were talking of the fine game they would surely have the next afternoon. At the word ball the elephants hung their heads way down and threw their trunks around in a very unhappy manner.

"'I know what is the matter with them,' said the keeper to himself. 'They have the spring fever, baseball. Well, if that is all that is making them unhappy I will see to it that they have all the baseball they want.'

"The very next day, much to the surprise and delight of the elephants, a mask, a glove and a bat and ball were presented to the elephant which was always considered the leader by the others.

"You can imagine how excited they were, and you should have seen how queerly they did play at first. But they had such fun that their happiness was a perfect delight to the keeper.

"Then they heard that there was to be a holiday on the 30th day of May.

"'We'll have a holiday, too,' said they. 'We will have a ball game, and any one who wants to see us play may come with pleasure.'

"And this is what they have been practicing for, so that tomorrow they will have their holiday game.

"And the keeper, who has a secret idea that they are preparing for a special game tomorrow, has in turn prepared a special supper for them and for all the animals because it is a holiday."

MONTAGUE GLASS

PART II.

AZALEA ADAIR, fifty years old, white haired, a descendant of the cavaliers, as thin and frail as the house she lived in, robed in the cheapest and cleanest dress I ever saw, with an air as simple as a queen's, received me.

The reception room seemed a mile square, because there was nothing in it except some rows of books, on unpainted white pine bookshelves, a cracked marble top table, a rag rug, a hairless horsehair sofa and two or three chairs. Yes, there was a picture on the wall, a colored crayon drawing of a cluster of pansies. I looked around for the portrait of Andrew Jackson and the pine cone hanging basket, but they were not there.

Azalea Adair and I had conversation, a little of which will be repeated to you. She was a product of the old south, gently nurtured in the sheltered life. Her learning was not broad, but was deep and of splendid originality in its somewhat narrow scope. She had been educated at home and her knowledge of the world was derived from inference and by inspiration. Of such is the precious, small group of essayists made. While she talked to me I kept brushing my fingers, trying unconsciously to rid them guiltily of the absent dust from the half calf backs of Lamb, Chaucer, Hazlitt, Marcus Aurelius, Montaigne and Hood. She was exquisite, she was a valuable discovery. Nearly everybody nowadays knows too much—oh, so much too much—of real life.

I could perceive clearly that Azalea Adair was very poor. A house and a dress she had, not much else, I fancied. So, divided between my duty to the magazine and my loyalty to the poets and essayists who fought Thomas in the valley of the Cumberland, I listened to her voice, which was like a harpsichord's, and found I could not speak of contracts. In the presence of the nine muses and the three graces one hesitated to lower the topic to 2 cents. There would have to be another colloquy after I had regained my commercialism. But I spoke of my mission and 3 o'clock of the next afternoon was set for the discussion of the business proposition.

"Your town," I said, as I began to make ready to depart (which is the time for smooth generalities), "seems to be a quiet, sedate place. A home town, I should say, where few things out of the ordinary ever happen."

It carries on an extensive trade in stoves and hollow ware with the west and south, and its flouring mills have a daily capacity of more than 2,000 barrels.

Azalea Adair seemed to reflect.

"I have never thought of it that way," she said, with a kind of sincere intensity that seemed to belong to her. "Isn't it in the still, quiet places that things do happen? I fancy that when God began to create the earth on the first Monday morning one could have leaned out one's window and heard the drops of mud splashing from his trowel as he built up the everlasting hills. What did the noisiest project in the world—I mean the building of the tower of Babel—result in finally? A page and a half of Esperanto in the North American Review."

"Of course," said I platitudinously, "human nature is the same everywhere, but there is more color—er—more drama and movement and—er—romadee in some cities than in others."

"On the surface," said Azalea Adair. "I have traveled many times around the world in a golden airship wafted on two wings—print and dreams. I have seen (on one of my imaginary tours) the sultan of Turkey bowstring with his own hands one of his wives who had uncovered her face in public. I have seen a man in Nashville tear up his theater tickets because his wife was going out with her face covered—with rice powder. In San Francisco's Chinatown I saw the slave girl Sing Yee dipped slowly, inch by inch, in boiling almond oil to make her swear she would never see her American lover again. She gave in when the boiling oil had reached three inches above her knee. At a euchre party in East Nashville the other night I saw Kitty Morgan cut dead by seven of her schoolmates and lifelong friends because she had married a house painter. The boiling oil was sizzling as high as her heart, but I wish you could have seen the fine little smile that she carried from table to table. Oh, yes, it is a humdrum town, just a few miles of red brick houses and mud and stores and lumber yards."

Some one knocked hollowly at the back of the house. Azalea Adair breathed a soft apology and went to investigate the sound. She came back in three minutes with brightened eye, a faint flush on her cheeks and ten years lifted from her shoulders.

"You must have a cup of tea before you go," she said, "and a sugar cake."

She rang and shook a little iron bell. In shuffled a small negro girl about twelve, barefoot, not very tidy, glowering at me with thumb in mouth and bulging eyes.

Azalea Adair opened a tiny, worn purse and drew out a dollar bill, a dollar bill with the upper right hand corner missing, torn in two pieces and pasted together again with a strip of blue tissue paper. It was one of the bills I had given the piratical negro—there was no doubt of it.

"Go up to Mr. Baker's store on the corner, Impy," she said, handing the girl the dollar bill, "and get a quarter of a pound of tea—the kind he always sends me—and 10 cents' worth of sugar cakes. Now, hurry. The supply of tea in the house happens to be exhausted," she explained to me.

Impy left by the back way. Before the scrape of her hard, bare feet had died away on the back porch a wild shriek—I was sure it was hers—filled the hollow house. Then the deep, gruff tones of an angry man's voice mingled with the girl's further squeals and unintelligible words.

Azalea Adair rose without surprise or emotion and disappeared. For two minutes I heard the hoarse rumble of the man's voice, then something like an oath and a slight scuffle, and she returned calmly to her chair.

"This is a roomy house," she said, "and I have a tenant for part of it. I am sorry to have to rescind my invitation to tea. It was impossible to get the kind I always use at the store. Perhaps tomorrow Mr. Baker will be able to supply me."

I was sure that Impy had not had time to leave the house. I inquired concerning street car lines and took my leave. After I was well on my way I remembered that I had not learned Azalea Adair's name. But tomorrow would do.

That same day I started in on the course of iniquity that this uneventful city forced upon me. I was in the town only two days, but in that time I managed to lie shamelessly by telegraph and to be an accomplice—after the fact, if that is the correct legal term—to a murder.

As I rounded the corner nearest my hotel the Afrite coachman of the polychromatic, nonpariel coat seized me, swung open the dungeony door of his peripatetic sarcophagus, flirted his feather duster and began his ritual: "Step right in, boss. Carriage is clean—jus' got back from a funeral. Fifty cents to any"—

And then he knew me and grinned broadly. "'Scuse me, boss; you is de gen'l'man what rid out with me dis mawnin'. Thank you kindly, suh."

"I am going out to 861 again tomorrow afternoon at 3," said I, "and if you will be here I'll let you drive me. So you know Miss Adair?" I concluded, thinking of my dollar bill.

"I belonged to her father, Judge Adair, suh," he replied.

"I judge that she is pretty poor," I said. "She hasn't much money to speak of, has she?"

For an instant I looked again at the fierce countenance of King Cetewayo, and then he changed back to an extortionate old negro hack driver.

"She ain't gwine to starve, suh," he said slowly. "She has reso'ces, suh; she has reso'ces."

"I shall pay you 50 cents for the trip," said I.

"Dat is puffeckly correct, suh," he answered humbly. "I jus' had to have dat $2 dis mawnin', boss."

I went to the hotel and lied by electricity. I wired the magazine: "A. Adair holds out for 8 cents a word."

The answer that came back was, "Give it to her quick, you duffer."

Just before dinner Major Wentworth Caswell bore down upon me with the greetings of a long lost friend. I have seen few men whom I have so instantaneously hated and of whom it was so difficult to be rid. I was standing at the bar when he invaded me. Therefore I could not wave the white ribbon in his face. I would have paid gladly for the drinks, hoping thereby to escape another, but he was one of those despicable, roaring, advertising bibbers who must have brass bands and fireworks attend upon every cent that they waste in their follies.

With an air of producing millions he drew two one-dollar bills from a pocket and dashed one of them upon the bar. I looked once more at the dollar bill with the upper right hand corner missing, torn through the middle, and patched with a strip of blue tissue paper. It was my dollar bill again. It could have been no other.

I went up to my room. The drizzle and the monotony of a dreary, eventless southern town had made me tired and listless.

King Cetewayo was at his post the next day and rattled my bones over the stones out to 861. He was to wait and rattle me back again when I was ready.

Azalea Adair looked paler and cleaner and frailer than she had looked on the day before. After she had signed the contract at 8 cents per word she grew still paler and began to slip out of her chair. Without much trouble I managed to get her up on the antediluvian horsehair sofa and then I ran out to the sidewalk and yelled to the coffee colored pirate to bring a doctor. With a wisdom that I had not suspected in him he abandoned his team and struck off up the street afoot, realizing the value of speed. In ten minutes he returned with a grave, gray haired and capable man of medicine. In a few words (worth much less than 8 cents each) I explained to him my presence in the hollow house of mystery. He bowed with stately understanding and turned to the old negro.

"Uncle Caesar," he said calmly, "run up to my house and ask Miss Lucy to give you a cream pitcher full of fresh milk and half a tumbler of port wine. And hurry back. Don't drive—run. I want you to get back some time this week."

The doctor looked me over with great politeness and as much careful calculation until he had decided that I might do.

"It is only a case of insufficient nutrition," he said—"in other words, the result of poverty, pride and starvation. Mrs. Caswell has many devoted friends who would be glad to aid her, but she will accept nothing except from that old negro, Uncle Caesar, who was once owned by her family."

"Mrs. Caswell!" said I in surprise. And then I looked at the contract and saw that she had signed it "Azalea Adair Caswell."

"I thought she was Miss Adair," I said.

"Married to a drunken, worthless loafer, sir," said the doctor. "It is said that he robs her even of the small sums that her old servant contributes toward her support."

When the milk and wine had been brought the doctor soon revived Azalea Adair. She sat up and talked of the beauty of the autumn leaves that were then in season and their height of color. She referred lightly to her fainting seizure as the outcome of an old palpitation of the heart. Impy fanned her as she lay on the sofa. The doctor was due elsewhere, and I followed him to the door. I told him that it was within my power and intentions to make a reasonable advance of money to Azalea Adair on future contributions to the magazine, and he seemed pleased.

"By the way," he said, "perhaps you would like to know that you have had royalty for a coachman. Old Caesar's grandfather was a king in Kongo. Caesar himself has royal ways, as you may have observed."

As the doctor was moving off I heard Uncle Caesar's voice inside, "Did he git bofe of dem $2 from you, Mis' Zalea?"

"Yes, Caesar," I heard Azalea Adair answer weakly. And then I went in and concluded business negotiations with our contributor. I assumed the responsibility of advancing $50, putting it as a necessary formality in binding our bargain. And then Uncle Caesar drove me back to the hotel.

Here ends all of the story as far as I can testify as a witness. The rest must be only bare statements of facts.

At about 6 o'clock I went out for a stroll. Uncle Caesar was at his corner. He threw open the door of his carriage, flourished his duster and began his depressing formula: "Step right in, suh. Fifty cents to anywhere in the city. Hack's puffickly clean, suh. Jus' got back from a funeral"—

And then he recognized me. I think his eyesight was getting bad. His coat had taken on a few more faded shades of color, the twine strings were more frayed and ragged, the last remaining button—the button of yellow horn—was gone. A motley descendant of kings was Uncle Caesar!

About two hours later I saw an excited crowd besieging the front of a drug store. In a desert where nothing happens this was manna, so I edged my way inside. On an extemporized couch of empty boxes and chairs was stretched the mortal corporeality of Major Wentworth Caswell. A doctor was testing him for the immortal ingredient. His decision was that it was conspicuous by its absence.

The erstwhile major had been found dead on a dark street and brought by curious and ennuied citizens to the drug store. The late human being had been engaged in terrific battle—the details showed that. Loafer and reprobate though he had been, he had been also a warrior. But he had lost. His hands were yet clinched so tightly that his fingers would not be opened. The gentle citizens who had known him stood about and searched their vocabularies to find some good words, if it were possible, to speak of him. One kind looking man said after much thought, "When Cas was about fo'teen he was one of the best spellers in school."

While I stood there the fingers of the right hand of "the man that was," which hung down the side of a white pine box, relaxed and dropped something at my feet. I covered it with one foot quietly and a little later on I picked it up and pocketed it. I reasoned that in his last struggle his hand must have seized that object unwittingly and held it in a death grip.

At the hotel that night the main topic of conversation, with the possible exceptions of politics and prohibition, was the demise of Major Caswell. I heard one man say to a group of listeners:

"In my opinion, gentlemen, Caswell was murdered by some of these no account niggers for his money. He had $50 this afternoon, which he showed to several gentlemen in the hotel When he was found the money was not on his person."

I left the city the next morning at 8 and as the train was crossing the bridge over the Cumberland river I took out of my pocket a yellow horn overcoat button the size of a 50 cent piece, with frayed ends of coarse twine hanging from it, and cast it out of the window into the slow, muddy waters below.

I wonder what's doing in Buffalo!

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

In an article in the Anti-suffrage supplement to the Daily Press, written by Mrs. Marie M. Joost, the writer says that suffrage is not a natural right, but a privilege and that the State may give or withhold that privilege to whomsoever the State sees fit, furthermore, that women now have more "tender regard" from men by virtue of their disfranchisement, that if women possessed the privilege of the ballot they might expect to be deprived of the other privileges which men now bestow upon them "perforce of her femininity and the chivalry that goes out to it." Suffrage may be a privilege or a right; it matters very little which we call it. The importan. fact is that a great many women are asking for suffrage for themselves and that a great many men are asking for it for them. In States where women do vote on the same terms as men, it is not proved that women have lost the chivalrous attention of men. In woman suffrage States, the men are polite to women, and the West, for instance, is considered a place of golden opportunity for them. What a puny, pitiful kind of chivalry a man would have, indeed, if he would lose it toward a woman merely because she can vote! Men are not considerate of women because the women cannot vote, nor yet again because the men can vote. Chivalry was in the world long before any man voted.

Dr. T. P. Thomas, Professor of Sociology at Goucher College, defines chivalry as "The respect due to the sex which has made the greater moral and physiological sacrifices for the sake of the race." According to that, men try, by various acts of considerate behavior, to express to women their appreciation of the fact that they, as a whole, have suffered more and will suffer more for the coming generations in bearing and rearing the children. Surely that has nothing to do with voting. Surely, then, chivalry must needs increase with every increase in respect in which motherhood is regarded.

There are repeated stories told by women who have been to the polls to vote, women who were mothers and who found it necessary to wheel the baby carriage down to the polling place with them. Invariably some man, outside the polling place, some friend, or acquaintance of the woman voter, some gentleman neighbor, has offered to stand outside and roll the baby carriage while the woman has gone in to vote. There is even one story of a mother with a whimpering baby in her arms, standing in line waiting to vote. (Terrible thought,—a baby never cries in a non-suffrage State and a woman never has to wait in line for anything here in the east. Every woman, each and every separate individual woman, here in the east would be given the first place). But, upon this occasion, out in the west, the mother stood a few minutes in line with her baby in her arms. The baby was a little impatient, the man voter who stood in line just in front of the mother, said: "Lady, let me hold the little one a minute while you just step inside now and vote. Take my turn." Can our voteless sisters in the east match that with an instance of chivalry, or, can they beat it?

Let us call the ballot a privilege, and then let us ask for equal privilege, not equal rights, with the men. If we already have greater privileges than the men accord to themselves, let us realize that chivalry is paid to womanhood, not to disfranchisement. Men are not chivalrous to newly-landed immigrants, yet immigrants do not vote In many of our southern States, the Negro is not permitted to vote through various amendments to and interpretations of their State constitutions. I have lived in the south all my life, yet I have never seen great respect and chivalry paid to the Negro because he is disfranchised. The possession of the privilege of suffrage and inconsiderate behavior from others have nothing to do with each other, nor have the lack of this privilege of voting and chivalry anything to do with each other. Does any man truly think that when women become voters in his State he will cease to open doors for the ladies of his acquaintance, to pick up articles which they may drop, bow politely to them on the streets, and all such other little acts of polite attention which gentlemen everywhere pay to ladies?

If men were polite to women because women have no part in politics, then all men should be very considerate to all women. But all men are not polite. Some men have never been taught at home to be polite to their own mothers and sisters. Some boys have grown up seeing their fathers knock about their mothers almost at will. Such poor boys when they grow to be young men cannot possibly have an chivalrous regard for womanhood, with or without votes. Respect for womanhood is a sentiment which is instilled into boys in their growing up. Those boys who are not taught respect for womanhood and motherhood simply do not know this sentiment. Their lack of respect for women has nothing to do with the fact whether women can or cannot vote. It depends upon their early training. Mrs. Joost, I think, considers the tender regard which men have for women a sentiment. But sentiment, it must be remembered is developed in us all in our early years, not at the age of twenty-one. Chivalry is indeed a sentiment, and one of those sentiments so firmly imbedded in the very fiber of our civilization that woman suffrage cannot destroy it. A noble sentiment, when once it becomes a possession of mankind as a moral being, is not easily lost to us.

"Can she unsex herself in the sex equality of equal suffrage?" asks Mrs. Joost. No, frankly, she cannot. At least, equal suffrage has not been known to unsex (whatever that may mean) the woman of the west, nor the woman of Australia, nor of New Zeland, nor of Sweden, nor of Iceland nor of Alaska.

One very significant fact is that equal suffrage, generally speaking, has been granted so far in those sections of the world where women are scarce, that is, where women are most valuable because of their rarity. In New Zealand, for instance, when votes for women were being urged by men, it was considered a measure of practical importance to the development of the country as the extension of this equal privilege to women might help attract women to that newly settled country. This does not seem to bear out the opinion that disfranchisement and a more tender regard for women from men are necessarily united.

Mark Well!

Every Hup owner you meet is a Hup "Booster." Isn't that fact significant—to you, we mean?

It signifies, you know, that the Hup gives good service—and gives that service at a lesser cost.

For that's the story thousands of Hup owners are telling, all over the country.

It's built so well it's sure to go well—and keep on going well.

It's built so well it's worth more after long service, for Hups are known to command a higher second-hand price.

Get the Facts

Don't take our word for it—prove the thing for yourself.

Ask any Hup owner. If you don't know one, we'll gladly refer you to a number.

Then give us a chance to point out in the Hup the mechanical reasons for long and continous service, for lower upkeep cost, for higher second-hand value.

We'd like to tell you, too, how we enhance Hup ownership by the kind of service we render the Hup owners.

Get all these facts before you buy a car—they're almighty important.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

King's Daughters Discuss Plans for Carrying on its Summer Work.

The executive board of the City Union of the King's Daughters at its meeting at the Day Nursery, this morning, discussed plans for the formal opening of the playgrounds in the rear of the nursery which were given to the organization by T. J. Mumford, of this city. It was decided to have the opening on Friday afternoon, June 26, from 3 to 6 o'clock, and the public will be invited to attend.

The grounds are especially well adapted for the use of the children. Already several swings and sandboxes have been given to equip the grounds and it is hoped that other friends of the work will contribute something. It was also decided to engage a regular nurse to look after the diet kitchen and visit the children and mothers during the summer months.

In order to carry on this work a considerable sum of money will be needed and an urgent appeal is made for funds. All contributions sent to The Daily Press will be acknowledged and forwarded to the King's Daughters. Last month 459 children were cared for at the nursery and the work is increasing rapidly.

Representatives from all of the circles comprising The City Union of King's Daughters will act as a reception committee at the opening of the playgrounds on June 26 and it is hoped that all who are interested will try and be present.

REPORT TRANSFER OF BANK STOCK

Fanwood Borough Council Learns It Will Lose $200 by Change.

HEALTH BOARD CHANGE

S. Dana Townsend and A. H. Ribblet Appointed to Fill Vacancies—Council Passes on the Monthly Bills.

The June meeting of the Borough Council was held in the Fanwood firehouse last evening and was presided over by Mayor Hoar. A letter was read from C. W. Foster, of the Leboit Safe Company, offering to sell the borough a safe. Secretary S. G. Van Hoesen in a communication in behalf of the Fanwood Fire Company, thanked the Council for the new hose recently purchased. A pamphlet was read advertising several new books on assessment, etc., but as Collector Charles Sheelen does not need them nothing was done about the matter.

The committee on audit and finance reported a balance on hand of $2,229.79. Chairman Augustus Sheelen of the committee on streets and sidewalks, stated that the work of oiling all of the roads in the borough had been finished. A communication from Councilman Erner was read saying that he had notified the Plainfield-Union Water Company of a leak in the main on Martine avenue near Midway, and they had promised to attend to it. Mr. Erner also advised that instead of having the two lights on the old section of South avenue moved over to the new part it would be better to discontinue them and put two additional ones in the center of the borough. He also said that he had visited the following places and favored the placing of street lights at the intersection of Midway and Willoughby avenues, Midway avenue and Tilliston road and Farley and North avenues. The letter was referred to the committee on lights, water and fire.

The following bills were ordered paid: Public Service Electric Company, $109.65 for light during April; J. W. Kelly, $6.00 for two warning signs; George Reiner, overseer of the poor, $10 for expenses from January to May; Ritter, $5 for cleaning dump and 50 cents for hauling hose to firehouse; Anthony Albert, $40 for repairs on borough hall; William Linden, $58.52 for labor on streets from May 4 to 16; Fanwood Fire Company, $45 for rent of firehouse to Council; Eureka Fire Hose Company, $127.50 for one hundred and fifty feet of new hose; Chief Logan, $75 for marshal's salary for month of May.

E. B. Samis has informed the Council that his official residence is not in the borough and so he can not serve on the Board of Health or Board of Trustees of the Public Library. S Dana Townsend, Supervising Principal of the local schools, was appointed to fill his place on the Library Board and Albert H. Ribblet was named to fill his place on the Board of Health. The matter of an additional night marshal was brought up for discussion, and although it was agreed that another was seriously needed nothing can be done until fall as the appropriation has been expended. It was decided to have two special marshals subject to call at any time to be paid only for actual service and the committee on poor and police was instructed to look into the matter and report at the next meeting.

Borough Collector Sheelen here informed the Council that the sum of $200 would be lost to the borough yearly as the result of the transferring of certain bank stock to another town. The committee on streets and sidewalks was instructed to ascertain the cost of placing signs at all street corners with the name of the street and the town to which that road leads on them. The committee will report at the next meeting. The meeting adjourned at 9:30 to meet again the first Wednesday in July.

FIRST EXCURSION TO ASBURY PARK JULY 2

REPRESENTATIVE JONES.

To Introduce Bill For Freedom of Philippine Islands.

Representative Jones of Virginia, chairman of the house committee on insular affairs, was with President Wilson for an hour, and at the end of the conference gave out a copy of a bill for the independence of the Philippine Islands which he had drafted. Mr. Jones announced when he left the White House that he would introduce the measure in a few days and would strive to have it passed by the house at this session. It is not expected, however, that the administration will make an effort to bring about the passage of a Philippine bill at this session. The president has not read the Jones measure and is not committed to it in any way.

RUMOR SAYS REVILLE IS NOT OUT OF FIGHT

Story in Circulation That He Has Interested Congressman Hamill in Contest.

Congressman James A. Hamill, of Jersey City, is taking a hand in the Plainfield post office fight, according to rumors being circulated about the city. It is said that Patrick J. Reville has been in communication with the Hudson county representative, and is using his influence to have the appointment of Alvin E. Hoagland, Senator Martine's choice, held up. It has been expected that Hoagland's name would go to the Senate every day this week, as it became known last Friday that Senator Martine had submitted it to the post office department, as his choice for the place.

Hamill and Reville are said to be close friends, which accounts for the former's rumored interest in a post office outside of his district. It is said that Hamill has rallied other influential politicians to his support, in an effort to see that Reville gets a "square deal," which his friends claim has not been the case. It is not believed that there will be any change in the plan to name Hoagland, as Senator Martine has a reputation for sticking to things until he gets what he starts for, his bulldog tenacity being well known to his thousands of friends in the city and State.

Mr. Hoagland, who was first advised by the Daily Press last Friday that he was to be appointed, says that the matter is one for the Senator to decide, and he is ready to leave it to him without any further action.

CONTRACT FOR TRUNK LINE HELD UP BY COMMISSION

Representatives of the Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen Councils, composing the Joint Sewerage Commission, met in the Common Council chambers in the city building, last night, to discuss the details of the contract for the construction of the proposed trunk line. Pending the adjustment of certain legal technicalities that have been brought to light the contract is being held up.

The matter was considered for two hours last night in a closed session, but no information concerning the conclusions arrived at was given out by members of the commission after the adjournment. It was expected that the contract would be awarded, last night, but a further setback has apparently developed.

CASE IS POSTPONED.

Peter Mueller, of Elizabethport, who was arrested in the borough a few days ago on a serious charge preferred against him by Overseer of the Poor, Fred Becker, was not tried this morning. The case has been postponed until tomorrow evening, when it will be heard before Recorder Hand.

COLORED BOY MADE DEPOT HIS BOUDOIR

Ten Year Old Runaway's Dreams Rudely Shattered by Patrolman Nolan.

Rudely awakened from his dreams by a surprised patrolman in the Clinton Avenue depot of the Central Railroad, Tuesday night, ten-year-old William Henry Hall, of New Brunswick, rubbed his eyes, and sizing up the situation in an instant, made a dash for the open door. His wide scramble for freedom was brought to a sudden halt, however, when Patrolman Tobias Nolan caught the little fellow in an iron grip and asked him what he was doing away from the parental firseside in the wee small hours of the morning. Under the bluecoat's quizzing the boy finally broke down and admitted that he had run away from his home in New Brunswick and had spent two nights in this hobo style.

Nolan had just finished eating his midnight meal in the depot and was placing his lunch box in its accustomed place behind a bulletin board when his hand fell upon a soft object curled up in a heap. Startled by the discovery, Nolan pulled the obstruction out and found to his amazement that it was a small colored youth. The boy was sleeping soundly and the officer experienced considerable difficulty in arousing him from his slumbers.

After relating his tale the wanderlust victim was escorted to police headquarters where he remained a prisoner in a cell until yesterday morning, his parents coming here to bring him back to New Brunswick at that time. He said he had been away from home for two days and intended to make his way by foot to the "Great White Way," of which he was dreaming when the officer appeared in his boudoir.

LAWN FETE A SUCCESS.

A successful lawn fete was held on the lawn of Dr. and Mrs. Frank S. Wells, of 517 Central avenue yesterday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh Day Baptist church. The lawn was tastefully decorated while an informal musical program was presented by the High School orchestra under the direction of Mrs. J. C. Evans. The proceeds of the sale of ice cream and cake is to be used for the general funrs of the society.

TO CONFER DEGREE.

Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., will confer the royal arch degree upon two candidates at their regular session of June 11. Refreshments will be served.

PLAINFIELD TRUST CO. TWELVE YEARS OLD

Well Known Financial Institution Has Had a Remarkable Growth.

Twelve years ago today there was introduced to the people of Plainfield a new financial institution which was to be known as The Plainfield Trust Company. All it had to commend it to the public was a modest banking room, a capital of $100,000, and a list of directors, but that was enough. Those who were familiar with the names of the men who stood sponsor for the enterprise realized that Plainfield was to have something in the way of a banking institution that would be both conservative and progressive and they immediately prophesied success

Now at the end of twelve years, it is apparent that the prophesy has been fulfilled and that The Plainfield Trust Company has taken its place among the large financial institutions of New Jersey. Its deposits today have passed the five million mark and it has on its books over 7500 accounts, aside from those in the Christmas Savings Club. In addition it has built up its surplus and profit account to over $270,000. These figures are evidence of the fact that The Plainfield Trust Company has never missed an opportunity to be of real service to the people of Plainfield and that its liberal and at the same time, absolutely safe policy has been productive of most gratifying results

FREE LIGHTING QUESTION ARGUED

Supreme Court Listens to Pleas of P. S. C. vs. City on Appeal.

DECISION IS RESERVED

Corporation Seeks to Set Aside Verdict of Public Utilities Commission Which Sustained the Present Agreement.

Trenton, June 4.—After hearing argument today, part two of the Supreme Court reserved decision in the suits of the Public Service Electric Company against the city of Plainfield and the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, brought on certiorari to set aside an order of the Utility Board directing the Public Service Electric Company to furnish free lighting in the city buildings.

The Public Service Company decided that it could not longer furnish this free service under the Public Utility Act of 1911, and Plainfield carried the case to the Utility Board which after a hearing made the order directing that the free service be continued.

The Public Service Electric Company then obtained a writ of certiorari to review the order. Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, argued the case for the public service company and he claimed today that the board was entirely without authority to make the order brought up for review. Former Senator Charles A. Reed appeared for Plainfield. He argued that there was a covenant between the Public Service Electric Company and the City of Plainfield to furnish this free service as a part of the consideration in granting the franchise for the use of the Plainfield streets and that the Legislature by passing the Utilities Act could not void the covenant.

WASHINGTON EXCURSION ON NEXT SUNDAY, JUNE 7

Through an error in setting the reading notice of the Central Railroad Washington excursion, which appeared on the front page of yesterday's Daily Press, it was stated that the special one-day excursion to the capital would be run on July 7, leaving Plainfield at an early hour in the morning. This should have read June 7, and is correctly printed in today's Press. Last year a similar excursion proved most successful, thousands of people going from points along the line of the the railroad, including several hundred from Plainfield. It affords an opportunity to see the national capital at the minimum of expense.

RAIN SAVES BERRY CROPS.

Farmers from over the mountains who came into this city this morning, with their fruits and vegetables expressed their gratification of the rain that began about six o'clock this morning. It was declared that the rain would doubtless save the strawberry, as well as various other crops. The recent dry spell had just gone far enough to make the farmers feel uneasy concerning the gardens.

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

HORSE SHOW OPENS IN LONDON

London, June 4.—The eighth International Horse Show opened at Olympia today. It will continue until June 16. The exhibition promises to be as successful as any of its predecessors, from the viewpoint alike of society and the lovers of horses. The United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina are represented, as well as the leading countries of continental Europe. The military competitions, as usual, are to figure conspicuously on the program and the famous coaching Marathon from Hampton Court to Olympia, which was won last year by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, will again be a feature of the exhibition. King George and Queen Mary have signified their intention to attend the show next Monday, when the program will include the competition for the King Edward VII. Gold Cup.

TO GIVE NAVY DIPLOMAS.

Annapolis, Md., June 4—Annapolis is gay with decorations and filled with the customary large crowd for the "June Week" festivities at the Naval Academy. Today the visitors witnessed infantry drills, flag competitions, torpedo and gun drills, and practical engineering exercises, the program concluding in the afternoon with a dress parade and presentation of colors. Tomorow will be graduation day, when the members of the senior class will receive their diplomas from the hands of President Wilson.

GERMAN STATESMAN COMING.

Berlin, June 4—Dr. Hermann Paasche, first deputy speaker of the German Imperial Parliament, departed today for the United States. The purpose of the trip is to fulfill a professional mission at the University of California, where he will deliver a series of political and sociological lectures. Dr. Paasche plans to spend the greater part of the summer on the Pacific coast, studying the economic and racial situation in that section.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PENNY LUNCHES.

Report from the Plainfield Association of Mothers.

In May, 1913, the Plainfield Association of Mothers after a three months investigation and inspection of penny lunches in other public schools, decided to serve penny lunches in at least one of the Plainfield schools during 1913-1914. In our investigation we found that in one school of four hundred children there were about twenty (20) children locked out of their home from 7 o'clock in the morning until 7 at night; some were given a penny or two to spend on their lunch at noon, while the others were thrown on their own resources. The mothers of these children worked away from home during the day, some in New York, others in local shops or houses. The parents getting a good warm meal in the middle of the day, relied on the grocery store or delicatessen shop for their evening meal, hence the mother usually returned home from work with, we will say four bags, in one was a little prepared meat, in another some potato salad, the third a loaf of bread and in the last one, perhaps, a few sweet cakes or a little pound cake. This with some quickly made coffee constituted the evening meal and really the only meal for the children; so in many cases breakfast consisted of more coffee and what was left from the meal the night before or a little prepared cereal.

Thirty (30) children coming from a distance brought their lunch, while a few without lunch entirely—as statistics show that retardation is due as much to ural nutrition as to any other cause. Medical reports show that of the 20,000,000 children in our public schools who are suffering from one kind of disease or another, 5,000,000 suffering from ural nutrition.

Where and How Served.

The lunches are served in the manual training rooms in the basement of Bryant School. We cover the manual training tables with white oilcloth and long benches have been supplied and eighty children can be served at once. The kitchen was made by partitioning off the corridor and is a small room 8 ft. by 12 ft., in which is placed all the stationary equipment as sink, stores and closets.

In this kitchen are two competent, conscientious women, who make the first nourishment, which is always soup, also cocoa and desserts.

Equipment.

The Plainfield Board of Education furnished us with all our stationary equipment which consists of a large porcelain sink with double draining boards, two gas plates with two large burners each, two working tables, one six feet and the other thirty inches; the dish closets and foods supply closets.

The Plainfield Association of Mothers bought ten dozen round nickel trays, ten dozen aluminum teaspoons, ten dozen blue and white enamel half pint bowls, ten dozen blue and white enamel cups for cocoa, ten dozen blue and white enamel saucers for dessert and all necessary cooking utensils all first-class goods (no seconds), white enamel and steel, the cost of aforesaid equipment being about $100.

What We Serve.

First nourishment, which every child must try first, is always soup or mashed potato with meat, or codfish gravy. Second nourishment, which is optional, consists of baked potatoes, stewed beans and cocoa. We serve sandwiches each day; jelly, peanut butter, apple butter, or date sandwiches, using just the filling and no butter. We sell two sandwiches wrapped in parafine paper for one cent, two slices of bread and filling cut and wrapper.

Desserts—Apple sauce, fruit gelatines, baked apples, apple tapioca, brown bettey, chocolate pudding, raisins and rice, stewed prunes, apricots and peaches.

Crackers—All National Biscuit goods: Plain crackers, baronets, 4 for 1c; seafoam, 2 for 1c; graham crackers, 2 for 1c; social teas, 4 for 1c; 1c; animal crackers, 10 for 1c; fancy cracker chocolate bars, 3 for 1c; peanut cakes, 2 for 1c; M & M fruits, 2 for 1c; fluted cocoanut, 2 for 1c; denoras, 2 for 1c; and vanilla jumbles, 2 for 1c.

Candy—We use all Mirror hard candy: Assorted dainties, 6 for 1c; old-fashioned sticks, 4 for 1c; broken candy, 4 for 1c; lemon sticks, 4 for 1c; also Brewster & Sons, of Newark, make us a peanut chocolate bar and a milk chocolate bar at 1c each.

Menus and Recipes.

Through the kindness of Miss Mabelle Kittridge, of the N. Y. school lunches, we obtained our first menus of American and Italian soups. We try to repeat the menus every three weeks.

Assistants.

Besides the two cooks in the kitchen we have four needy girls who clear the tables and help wash the dishes for their noonday meal. These girls, sometime boys, are chosen by the school principal. The soup is made and served by the cook from the door of the kitchen, each child paying one cent for the bowl of soup with a piece of bread. The penny table is placed inside the door of the large room, on which is placed cocoa kettle and empty cups, sandwiches, dessert, various kinds of crackers and candy. At one end of this table is a lady (a volunteer helper for the day), at the back of the table is another volunteer helper and at the end is the supervisor of the day, also a volunteer, who checks up the child's tray and takes all money except penny paid for soup.

How Served.

The children go downstairs, form in line, help themselves to a tray and spoon and place their money on the tray; stop at kitchen door for soup, pass into large room and choose what their finances will permit from the penny table; stop at side of supervisor, who checks up the tray and receives money for same, then the child passes on and takes his seat and eats his lunch.

Cost of Lunch.

The food sold will pay for itself. On the one cent lunch which consists only of soup there is a loss.

While on the five cent lunch, such as a bowl of soup, a package of sandwiches, a dish of dessert, a package of crackers or cookies, and a package of candy there is a slight profit.

There are between thirty and fifty 1c lunches served every day, twenty 3c lunches and fifty 5c lunches; fifteen to twenty-five 6c to 8c lunches. A 10c lunch is more than an adult can eat.

We serve from 115 to 146 lunches to the same number of children a day. The first eight weeks there were about 4,500 lunches served. The supervisor of the day receives between $4 and $6 a day, and the receipts for the week average about $20 to $30 if there are no holidays. We have served about 14,000 during this school year.

Comments.

Expenses such as paying cook, garbage collector, equipment, etc.

The Chicago reports tell us that there is $1,500,000 spent by High School students on noonday lunches. If this $1,500,000 is spent in outside lunch rooms, it purchases 88,000,000 calories, but if it is spent in school lunch rooms, $1,500,000 will purchase 178,000,000 calories.

Our lunches are patronized by three-fourths of the teachers in the building, two teachers who pride themselves on having never missed a lunch since they were inaugurated. We also have two teachers and some pupils who come from a school six blocks away.

Our lunches have been patronized and highly praised by the supervising principal superintendent of schools, principals and the school nurse. The teachers claim that there is a marked improvement in attendance, less illness and a decided increase in activity during the afternoon session.

The success of our enterprise lies not in the fact that we make the food pay for itself, but in the class of children we are serving.

We have been assisted by seventy-five ladies who have given volunteer help; we are indebted to our riends who have contributed jams and jellies. This good work was made possible by the Plainfield Board of Education and a large number of contributers, who assisted us in raising the $500 needed for cooks, equipment, garbage collection, etc.

At the close of the year we feel that the lunches have yielded our contributers a fine dividend on their investment and we invite the hearty support and co-operation of every one who is interested in having this good work carried on for the coming school year.

WHY NOT ALL HEAVY AUTOS?

If an ordinance is to be passed regulating the auto busses, why not go further and keep all kinds of heavy automobiles off of the streets? To stop the big machines delivering goods from New York department stores would be logical, in view of the action which it is proposed the City Council take. If an auto bus is objectionable, certainly a truck carrying four or five tons of merchandise is more harmful, and yet no protest is made to the Council against such vehicles using the streets.

If the people of West Seventh street want a boulevard on that thoroughfare, why go half way? Keep every big vehicle off the street. The contention of the merchants that nothing should be permitted to interfere with the busses using any street they want to use is a good one, and it is hard to believe that any court would sustain an ordinance which makes fish of one kind of a heavy vehicle, and flesh of another, regardless of the nature of its load.

The Madison Borough Council had a similar dispute with a motor car line, who refused to pay a license fee or keep off the streets, because they claimed that they did not carry passengers between points within the borough limits. The auto busses are still running there, and it is safe to predict that unless the Legislature can be persuaded to pass some class legislation the auto busses will continue to run wherever they feel like in Plainfield.

Certainly the management of the line has the backing of every merchant in the city in its stand, and the interest of the merchants should come before all others. Whatever civic pride there is in Plainfield comes from the people who are in business here, and whose success depends upon the business brought to the city.

MONKEY WALK HARMFUL?

Whether or not the "debutante slouch," which so many young girls and women are adopting in their walk, and which is the best imitation of a monkey in action that has been offered recently, is healthy, is now agitating the medical men. Some say the ungainly gait is all right, and does no harm, while other eminent physicians say that it is fortunate for the race that it is only a passing fad, and will change as rapidly as the styles in dancing are changing.

Dr. Charming, of Chicago, started the argument by saying that the position is nearer normal than the upright attitude assumed by most people. His opinion is coincided in by Dr. Anthony Edward Spitka, head of the Daniel Baugh Institute of Anatomy, who says that the erect attitude has disadvantages, which cause some of the afflictions of humans, as is proven by the fact that many of our troubles never happen to animals.

The opinion of Dr. R. Tait MacKenzie, of the University of Pennsylvania, sounds more rational than that of either of the other men, and should be a warning to those women who are seeking to imitate monkeys. "There is no doubt that the slouch compresses the lungs, thrusts the abdomen forward and is bad," says he. "We haven't been standing on our hind legs long and perhaps we find the position a little difficult. But like everything correct it is hard to do. The upright position supports the internal organs and is essential to health. I shouldn't advocate returning to crawling on all fours."

There are always some people who go to extremes in matters of this kind, but it is a cause for thanksgiving to know that the large majority of the women of the country prefer not to imitate the lower animals.

In maintaining that Detective Sergeant John J. Flynn should be elevated to the captaincy in the police department, the Daily Press has no intention of disparaging Sergeant Maurice Higgins, also mentioned for the place. His record is creditable, but it is our belief that the civil service theory should be observed, and length of service should give preference when other things are equal. Both Flynn and Higgins have been valuable men in the department, but Flynn has been a member longer. Logically and according to practise in many cities, the rank of detective sergeant is higher than that of a sergeant in the uniformed force, although there is some question about this in the city of Plainfield because of the way the salary ordinance reads. Both get the same pay, but the sergeant is mentioned first in the list.

The editorial for Saturday has been contributed by a comparative newcomer in Plainfield. It is a personal one, and tells about some of the experiences of an unusual citizen, who has made a large number of friends and done some remarkably clever work since arriving in town. The article is personal, yet at the same time is impersonal, and it has a lot to say about the way the city impressed a stranger.

"If the Republican party wishes to return to power it must abandon its standpat policy," former Governor Hadley was quoted yesterday as saying. Most people knew that two years ago when 4,000,000 voters protested against the conduct of the party.

"First call for lawyers ball nine," says a headline, about the practice scheduled for this afternoon, preparatory to the doctors-lawyers match on June 20. Tomorrow night the heading will probably be "First call for arnica, salve and the doctors."

Beginning on Saturday of this week the Daily Press will be published at one p. m. on Saturdays until the middle of September, following the custom established in 1912.

SHAMROCK IV. PLEASES.

Portsmouth, Eng., June 4.—Sir Thomas Lipton's new yatch, Shamrock the fourth, went out today on its first trial and was accompanied by her sister yacht, Shamrock the third. Both yachts had considerable tacking in the vicinity of Spithead with a light fluky wind. It was the opinion of Sir Thomas and his friends that the test was insufficient to guage the capabilities of the challenger, but they were very pleased with her easy manoeuvering and quick manner in which she picked up her way after tacking.

STORSTAD CLAIMS DAMAGES FOR $50,000

Counter Suit Started Against Owners of Empress of Ireland.

Montreal, June 4.—An unexpected development came in the Empress of Ireland disaster when the Storstad's owners entered a counter claim against the Canadian Pacific railway for $50,000 damages due to the collision, contending that the Empress was at fault and alleging negligent navigation on her part. This will make the case still more complicated, and counsel on both sides are busy searching for precedents in Canadian courts. There is a case, heard in Prince Edward Island in 1892, when the liability was limited to $38.92 for each ton of gross tonnage. On this basis the total liability of the Empress of Ireland would be $552,313 and of the Storstad $234,609.

The controversy continues unabated. Captain Lange, agent for the Storstad, has issued a statement that the Storstad saved 255 and cared for 350 survivors and that her boats were used in the rescue work in addition to one Empress boat manned by Storstad men.

Inquiries at the Storstad brought the statement that Captain Anderson himself was in command when the collision occurred He had ordered the collier to slow down in the fog when the Empress loomed across her bow coming out from the shore after dropping her pilot. The collier struck the Empress square, and the stern of the collier was swung round in line with the liner, so that the stem, sticking in the hole, was twisted like a crook. As soon as Captain Anderson saw the Empress he rang full speed astern, and when the collision occurred he rang full speed ahead. The Empress' way carried her beyond the collier, however This is the statement of the officers of the Storstad.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

August 4 is the date for the Kansas primary election.

The field of congressional aspirants in North Carolina this year is unusually large.

Senator Thomas, of Colorado, whose term will expire next March, is a candidate for reelection.

Judge William H. Wallace, of Kansas City, is out for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate in Missouri.

Lieutenant Governor Morris, of Wisconsin, will open his campaign for the United States Senate with an address at Racine June 9.

Oscar S. Straus denies the report that he might accept the Progressive nomination for United States Senator to succeed Senator Root.

Colonel Roosevelt's formal campaign for the Progressive party this year probably will be opened with an address in Pittsburgh on June 30.

Siever Serumgard, of Devils Lake, is the choice of the North Dakota Progressives for the seat of Asle J. Gronna in the United States Senate.

Connecticut has eight living former governors, which is believed to be a larger number than is possessed by any other State of the Union.

Harry E. Sackett, a resident of Beatrice and a former State Senator, has been named as the Progressive party choice for governor of Nebraska.

The ballots in the August primaries in Kansas will contain the names of more than 100 candidates for congressional and State offices.

George L. Wellington is being urged by his political followers to become a candidate for the Progressive nomination for United States Senator from Maryland.

W. J. Harris has resigned his position as director of the census in order to enter the contest for the Democratic nomination for governor of Georgia.

As has been the case of so many men who have risen to prominence in American public life, William S. West, the new United States Senator from Georgia, began his career as a school teacher.

Politte Elvins, former member of Congress and until recently chairman of the Republican State Committee, has filed his declaration as a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator from Missouri.

In addition to Colonel Roosevelt the Progressive party leaders who are expected to speak in the interest of the Washington party nominees in Pennsylvania this fall include ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana; Senator Moses E. Clapp, of Minnesota; ex-Governor George C. Pardee, of California; Congressman Victor Murdock, of Kansas; Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of Denver, and Prof. Charles E. Merriam, of the University of Chicago.

Because of the act passed at the recent session of the legislature to make the State law conform to the Seventeenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution providing the manner and form of electing United States Senators, will not become effective until June 16, not having an emergency clause, Kentucky will have one vacant seat in the United States Senate until that date, the Governor being powerless to appoint Senator Bradley's successor until the new enabling act becomes effective.

"UP LADDER TO FREEDOM."

Local Bronze Works Has Completed Unique Canopy

One of the most unique departures in cemetery memorials which has been erected hereabouts in some time has just been completed by the Hinman Bronze Works of this city, and erected in Rosedale Cemetery, in Orange. It is in the form of a graceful bronze and stained glass dome, constructed over a monument covering a grave. The latter is a beautiful carved marble statue, which is an excellent reproduction of "La Douleur" which attracted great notice in the Paris Solon some years ago.

The canopy rises to a total height of twelve feet, the bronze work supporting amber glass, and the whole canopy is supported by columns, which are 5 1-2 inches in diameter. Mr. Hinman has given his personal attention to the work, and this is but another of the many splendid examples of his art which have recently been completed.

GENERAL BLANQUET.

Mexican Minister of War, Who Dominates President Huerta.

Colonel Antonio Perez, who recently escaped from Mexico City, arrived at Torreon and brought reports that General Blanquet, Huerta's minister of war, has gained almost absolute control of Huerta's government. He said many Mexicans believe Blanquet will get rid of Huerta by deportation and make himself dictator.

TOLLS ARBITRATION WINS IN COMMITTEE

President Wilson's Views Are Now Disregarded.

Washington, June 4.—For the first time since he entered the White House President Wilson's views were disregarded by the formal vote of a congress committee on an important subject when the senate committee on foreign relations ordered a favorable report on Senator Sutherland's amendment to the tolls repeal bill referring the whole controversy to arbitration.

Except for the president's known opposition to the amendment, the committee's action was not particularly significant, as several opponents of repeal voted with the minority, not because they favored the president's contention, but because they thought even arbitration involved a surrender of American international rights.

Senator O'Gorman of New York, chairman of the committee on interoceanic canals and leader of the fight against repeal, was one of these. He said afterward that he did not believe the committee's action would change the course of the bill through the senate, though it was probable that extended debate on the amendment would be encouraged by the favorable vote of what was regarded as one of the most important committees of the senate.

Those voting against the Sutherland amendments were Senators Stone of Missouri, O'Gorman of New York, Pomerene of Ohio, Swanson of Virginia and Smith of Arizona, Democrats, and Smith of Michigan, Republican. Senator Borah of Idaho was not present, but later notified Senator Stone, chairman of the committee, that he wished to be recorded as voting against the resolution.

Those voting for the amendment were Senators Hitchcock of Nebraska, Williams of Mississippi and Saulsbury of Delaware, Democrats, and Lodge of Massachusetts, Root of New York, McCumber of South Dakota, Sutherland of Utah and Burton of Ohio, Republicans.

Paris, June 4.—In addition to receiving the white pass, such as is issued to rulers and former rulers, Colonel Roosevelt will ride in the president's private car when he passes through France on the way to Madrid to attend the marriage of his son Kermit. President Poincare issued an order to have his car in readiness at Cherbourg when Colonel Roosevelt arrives there and to attach it to the special boat train for Paris.

REBELS DEFIANT; NO COMPROMISE

No Intervention by Outsiders, Their Position.

MEDIATORS DEADLOCKED.

Despite Persistent Denials, Conferees Cannot Agree—Not Even Informal "Conversations," Which Have Been Chief Feature of Negotiations, Held.

EXPORTATION OF ARMS FORBIDDEN.

Secretary Bryan admitted that the exportation of arms from the United States to Mexico has been prohibited by an order of the state department.

The order, it was announced, is not a formal proclamation of an embargo, but it is expected that it will prevent any more arms from American ports reaching either Huerta or the rebels.

Washington, June 4.—No compromise, no mediation and no intervention. This, in a nutshell, is the attitude of General Carranza as supreme chief of the Constitutionalist cause toward the reply he has now received from the A, B, C mediators to his letter dealing with the right of the Mexican Constitutionalists to representation at the Niagara peace conference.

The mediators' reply was received by the Constitutionalist junta in Washington. It arrived by mail, being addressed to Senor Rafael Zubaran, acting minister of the interior of General Carranza's unofficial cabinet.

Senor Zubaran, Senor Urquidi and Senor Jose Vasconcelos at once undertook the task of setting the answer of the mediators into cipher for transmission to General Carranza at Durango. Arrangements were at the same time made for putting a wire through from Washington to Durango both for the purpose of transmitting the cipher message and of affording Senor Zubaran the opportunity of holding telegraphic conversation with General Carranza concerning the latest developments in the situation. After the receipt of the mediators' reply John Lind, the intermediary for Secretary Bryan in the latter's dealings with the junta here, had a conference with the secretary of state. Last night Mr. Lind participated in a conference with the Constitutionalists in the office of Charles A. Douglas, the spokesman for the Constitutionalists in their communications with the state department. Senors Zubaran and Urquidi were participants in the night conference.

The Constitutionalists declined to give out the text of the original Zubaran letter to the mediators and the reply of the latter. They also refused to say anything respecting the character of the reply from the mediators.

Mediators Are Deadlocked.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 4.—Despite the mild denial given out by the mediators, there is no doubt that the mediation proceedings are at an absolute standstill. This deadlock will not be broken before the question of Carranza's participation in the conference here is definitely settled.

Not even the informal "conversations" which have been the chief feature of the negotiations were continued. The American delegates remained at the Prospect House, over on the New York side, and the Mexican delegates devoted most of the day to their private affairs.

The mediators' reply to the message brought here by Juan Arquido is probably now in the hands of Rafel Zubaran Capmany, the Constitutionalist agent at Washington. From the capital the message will be transmitted by telegraph to General Carranza, and not before it has arrived there will the mediators consent to reveal its contents. Meanwhile it was stated on the very best authority here that the story printed in one of the morning papers to the effect that the mediators' reply did not contain any invitation to Carranza to participate in the proceedings is without foundation. The mediators in their reply state, according to those who are close to the three South American diplomats, that they will be willing to accept representatives of the rebel chieftain under certain conditions. These conditions, it is known here, include a formal demand for a complete suspension of hostilities during the progress of the negotiations.

No one here, however, believes that the conference is about to be brought to a sudden close as a result of the present deadlock.

BASEBALL NOTES

The Boston Red Sox have signed Fred Ostergren, the crack first baseman of the Holy Cross College nine.

Infielder Kopf, of the Athletics, is one of the few players in the major league who can bat from either side of the plate.

A sure enough bear cub, captured in Alaska, has arrived in Chicago and is now mascot in chief for Hank O'Day's Cubs.

Not much danger of Jack Dalton being sent back to the minors if he continues to do such brilliant clouting for the Brooklyn Superbas.

Dave Robertson, leading batter of the Southern League, who was with the Giants two or three years ago, has returned to the McGraw outfit.

The poor showing of the Naps this season doesn't seem to affect Joe Jackson's batting, for the great slugger continues to lead the American League hitsmiths.

"Jimmy Kelley," of the Pittsburg Pirates, has been discovered. His real name is Robert J. Taggart and he hails from Newark, N. J.

Vincent Campbell looks to be a real "comeback." After laying off a year, the former Pittsburg-Boston outfielder is playing fine ball for the Indianapolis Federals.

"Dutch" Leonard, the Red Sox flinger, pitched 41 runless innings, and then the Cleveland Naps tallied one and busted up what promised to be a record shut-out performance.

Pitcher Howard Camnitz, of the Pittsburg Feds, is out of the game nursing a pair of clacked ribs. Howard's slats were injured by a pitched ball in a recent game.

Frank Baker, home-run king and third sacker of the world's champions, has got the proper range on that right field fence again, and American League teams appear to be uneasy.

The Kansas City Federals have signed a promising pitcher in Jabez Adams. The youngster won eight straight games earlier in the season while with the St. Joseph Western League team.

The swell battles put up by the St. Louis Browns were a great surprise to the Eastern fans. Branch Rickey has his crew up on their toes at all times and playing until the last man is out.

BEST ROUTE FOR JERSEY MOTORISTS TO THE INTERNATIONAL POLO GAMES

Hundeds of New Jersey motorists who are contemplating trips to the scene of the International Polo Challenge Cup matches, will find that the roads on Long Island to the Meadowbrook Hunt Club, where the series between the Englishmen and the Americans will be played, are in the best of condition.

For South Jersey motorists, the ferry which is now operated from Staten Island to Brooklyn will be found a great convenience. In addition to the saving of at least an hour's time, it avoids the run through New York city. At the present time the ferry leaves St. George every hour on the half hour, beginning at 7:30 a. m., and leaves Brooklyn every hour on the hour. The direction from the Fifty-ninth Street ferry in Brooklyn to Jamaica are as follows:

Start mileage at zero and from the ferry go straight out Sixty-ninth street to Third avenue, here turn left 0.6, turn right into Sixtieth street 1.2, turn left into Eighteenth avenue 3.4, bear left into Ocean Parkway 4.5, then continue to the entrance of Prospect Park 5.8. Bear right between Prospect Park and Parade Grounds on Parkside avenue, turn left into Bedford avenue 6.6, turn right into Eastern Parkway 7.6, bear left, cross Fulton street 10.5, under "L" at Broadway 10.6. Cross the railroad and at once turn right into Bushwick avenue 10.7, pass Highland Boulevard on left 10.9, straight on down hill, turn left into Jamaica avenue 11.1, pass Ridgewood avenue, cross Dresden street 12.1, under railroad 14.1, at station turn left (do not cross railroad) in Park street, Richmond Hill 15.0. Cross railroad and bear right into Hillside avenue, cross railroad 15.1, cross Queens Boulevard 15.9, straight on pass Peace Monument in Jamaica 17.0.

Leaving New York city, go east on Fifty-fourth street to Broadway, turn left and run north three blocks, then turn right and go through Fifty-seventh sereet across Fifth avenue, then turn left into Second avenue which affords access to the Queensborough Bridge at Fifty-ninth street. Cross over the East River into Long Island City, then go straight on into Queens Boulevard, formerly called Thompson avenue at this point.

Go straight ahead and cross the railroad five miles from the clubhouse, then at Winfield Station take the road which forks to the right and continue on Queens Boulevard. Pass the Forest Hill Station and go on to a cafe 10.3 miles from the clubhouse. Here turn left into Hillside avenue and go straight on, passing the Peace Monument in Jamaica 11.4.

One-tenth of a mile farther, at the next crossroads, turn right and go straight on over the railroad. At the Fair Grounds turn left into the Old Country road 20.3. Seven-tenths of a mile farther, turn right into Merrick avenue, again turn right 24.9 to the entrance of the Meadowbrook Hunt Club 25.2.

The other road from Jamaica goes by way of Hempstead and will probably avoid some of the heavy traffic which will be found on the Jericho Turnpike. This alternate route from Jamaica goes east from the Peace Monument on Hillside avenue and then makes a right turn into Queens road two and one-tenth miles from the monument. Turn left upon reaching Jamaica Turnpike and one-tenth of a mile farther take the road forkin to the right, called the Hempstead Pike.

Pass Belmont Park on the left and follow on bearing into Bethpage Turnpike at mileage 2.05 from the clubhouse.

Continue on the main road, pass the Long Island Railroad station in Hempstead and turn left into Merrick avenue at mileage 24.9. One mile farther, turn left and run to the Meadowbrook Hunt Club 26.2.

One route to the polo field that avoids the dust and congestion of the main thoroughfare is by way of the Long Island Motor Parkway. Another advantage of this route is that late comers may speed up to forty-five miles an hour on the Parkway.

To reach the entrance of the Parkway, follow the directions given above the Peace Monument in Hillside avenue then continue on to the greenhouses. Here turn left into Rocky Hill road; continue for seven-tenths of a mile to the Hillside avenue lodge, the entrance to the Parkway. Follow this Parway to the Meadowbrook lodge from which the polo field is easily reached. Motorists who use the College Point ferries and up-town Manhattan ferries to Astoria will go by way of Flushing; they will find the Rocky Hill road in good condition to the Hilside lodge of the Long Island Motor Parkway. An excellent surface and speed limit of forty-five miles per hour is quite attractive. Leave the Parkway at Meadowbrook lodge from which it is only a short distance to the polo field.

The Rocky Hill road also connects with the Mineola route to Meadowbrook at the greenhouses on Rocky Hill road.

The Queens road will connect with the Hempstead route at the crossing of Hillside avenue.

LEALS WALLOPED THE CARTARET SCHOOLBOYS

Visitors Sent Home With One of the Worst Beatings of the Season.

Leal School representatives administered a severe trouncing to the Carteret Academy baseball nine on Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon, ringing up a tally of 10-3 at the expense of the invading herd. Clouting the ball to all corners of the lot and circling the bases almost at will the private school boys of Plainfield rang up a lead of a half dozen runs in the first trio of rounds while the visitors were held to a lone tally until the eighth sojourn at the rubber when a brace leaked over.

Eleven bingles, two of the extra cushion variety, were chalked up to the credit of the Queen City youngsters while the best the Cartaret youths could do with the delivery of the trio of Plainfielders was to snatch a quartet of the safe species. With two exceptions the locals all managed to garne at least one of the hits that were floating around in the atmosphere near Crescent Oval and as a result of the slaughter the Front street clan has a considerable fattened batting average today. The respective teams both displayed some good fielding but the visitors inability to check the hitting fusilade being conducted by the Leal nine left the verdict on local soil. But three errors were made during the afternoon and one of those was the game spilling variety. Fifteen Cartaret batters whiffed the atmosphere three times in succession while few of the locals failed to connect with the hurling of Gillathy.

JACK MARTIN AGAIN WARMS BOSTON BENCH

Charlie Deal Returns to Third But Fails to Wake up the Fans.

Jack Martin resumed his seat on the Boston Braves' bench yesterday afternoon on the Brooklyn lot, Charlie Deal going back to his old position at third which Martin has been filling so creditably for several weeks. Although back in the game Deal failed to set the pace that Jack has maintained during the substitution period. The regular guardian of the difficult corner had a clean bill of ciphers chalked up opposite his name yesterday.

Girard, of High Bridge, the youth who has been burning up the collegiate limelight paths, was benched yesterday in favor of Hammer, who beat Seton Hall by a score of 5 to 2. Lafayette coaches evidently thought that Hammer was plenty strong enough for the Setonians and apparently had the right dope. There is little chance of Girard losing his job as first string man, however, as he has been the real sensation this year.

The enforced rest will give Girard a chance to rest up for his appearance in a Plainfield uniform Sunday afternoon against the Dunellen clan on the South Plainfield diamond. Tommy Mullin is making a big effort to bring Girard to terms and the fans expect to see the clever little college hurler on the mound.

Louis Slocum, the South Plainfield twirler, will be replaced by Girard on Sunday, according to Captain Mullin. Louis has not been working in the best of form lately and he will probably be kept on the bench for a while.

Cliff Randolph won his game for the Perty Amboy Leaguers yesterday afternoon, defeating Poughkeepsie by a score of 8 to 3. Cliff allowed seven hits while his teammiates garnered ten of the safe species.

Something was wrong with Eugene Lidgate yesterday afternoon. The Fanwood boy failed to come across with his usual brace of hits and his team was beaten by the Allentown team, of the Tri-State League, by a score of 7 to 3. Liddy has been hitting the ball hard and a blank seldom follows his name in the hit column. He scored four putouts and two assists, however, behind the bat.

Playing against the Strawbridge & Clothier baseball team, of Philadelphia, yesterday afternoon, in a Swarthmore College uniform, Jack Riffert, the former Plainfield High School all around athlete, cracked out a single and double and scored one putout from his position in right field. His team was beaten 12 to 7.

HARD HITTING WON FROM WOODBRIDGE

N. P. H. S. Ball Tossers do Some Timely Sticking and Bring Home the Bacon.

The borough High School baseball team went to Woodbridge yesterday, and took the High School team of that place into camp by the score of 7 to 2. The local boys played good, steady ball, and Stahl and Denny held the home team to five hits. The boroughites touched Drummond for ten safeties, two of which were doubles. Dilts played a star game at short and made eight fine throws to first for outs.

Both teams were blanked in the opening inning, but the "Canadians" found the home slabman in the second. Townley was thrown out at first and on the first ball pitched to him, Burner connected for a two-bagger into deep right. Conroy hit to the shortstop and he threw it a mile over the first baseman's head, Burner scoring and Conroy taking second. Smalley hit to the shrtstop and he repeated his little act of wildness and Conroy scored while Smalley trotted to second. He crossed the plate with the third run when Stahl doubled to center.

In their half of this inning Woodbridge scored twice on a pass, an error, a double and a single. This was their total score for the whole game.

The visitors made three more in the fifth by clean hitting and their last count came in the eighth.

Dilts, Conroy and Burner figured in two double plays For the home team Wand and Ryder each played a fine game.

BIG Y. M. H. A. MEET MAY BE HELD HERE

Parker Field One of the Places Mentioned for Annual State Track Meet.

Agitation has been started for the holding of a State Y. M. H. A. athletic meet in the near future and Parker Field has been named as a possible field on which to hold the field and track events proposed. Plainfield is centrally located and a better place to stage the events on would be difficult to single out. Elizabeth has also been mentioned as a possible meeting place with Pingry Oval as the field, or possibly the T. T. A. B. S. Park.

The tentative date set is Labor Day and all of the Y. M. H. A. athletic associations now engaged in competition in the State baseball league will probably be represented in the athletic festival. A meeting will be held Friday, July 12, at the Bayonne Y. M. H. A. and Plainfield will be represented at that session.

TESTIFY MELLEN DOMINATED BOARD

Directors Assert Ambition Caused His Downfall.

LOST HIS HEAD, SAYS ELTON

Testified Former President of New Haven Road Headed Special Board In Charge of the Westchester Deal. Cromwell After Mellen.

Washington, June 4.—James S. Elton of Waterbury, Conn., and William Skinner of Holyoke, Mass., directors of the New Haven railroad, were examined before Interstate Commerce Commissioner McChord in the investigation of the system's financial operations authorized by congress. The questions put to them were mainly for the purpose of testing the accuracy of the statements made by former President Charles S. Mellen two weeks ago.

The appearance of these directors in the witness chair was the first opportunity the committee had had to check up on Mr. Mellen's statements and developments tended to deface the picture of martyrdom which Mr. Mellen had drawn of himself.

Instead of complete domination by the late J. P. Morgan, as Mr. Mellen asserted, testimony showed that the former president of the New Haven road himself was in many instances the commanding figure.

Mr. Elton described Mr. Mellen as the "dominating figure in the board of directors." He acknowledged, too, that he had placed great dependence upon Mr. Mellen's statements in the matter of the purchase of the Westchester, the responsibility for which Mr. Mellen had laid on the shoulders of the late Mr. Morgan and William Rockefeller.

"Mellen was ambitious and lost his head," was Mr. Elton's comment on the troubles of the New Haven.

Cromwell After Mellen.

William Nelson Cromwell appeared at the hearing as counsel for Mr. Elton and Mr. Skinner and announced that he would show Mr. Mellen presided at meetings of the New Haven board's special committee, which had charge of the acquiring of the Westchester road. Mr. Mellen has complained that he could not obtain the details of this transaction from the late Mr. Morgan.

"It was to obtain a foothold forever in the metropolitan district, to obtain great and important terminal facilities that you were acquiring subsidiary properties like the Westchester, was it not?" asked Mr. Cromwell.

"It was," said Mr. Elton.

In reply to further questions along the same line Mr. Elton asserted that while he regarded the price of the Westchester control as exorbitant time promised to justify the purchase.

"Head Too Thick."

Previous to testimony in this connection inspired by Mr. Cromwell, Mr. Elton had testified that his "head was too thick" to follow much of the business of the New Haven directors while Mr. Mellen was presiding. He asserted that Mr. Mellen dominated the meetings and that the "whirl of high finance" often made him "dizzy." Throughout his testimony, however, he indicated that Mr. Morgan had inspired practically all the involved schemes which Mr. Mellen had put through.

"Mr. Mellen's ambition ran away with him," said Mr. Elton, who explained how after Mr. Mellen had been ousted as president the directors voted $30,000 a year for five years to him and then rescinded their action at the next meeting.

Mr. Elton testified that while Mr. Mellen was president of the New Haven the directors depended much upon him and upon Mr. Morgan, but that "the directors now direct."

As one evidence of the unquestioned influence of Mr. Morgan's suggestions Joseph W. Folk, chief counsel for the commission, brought from Mr. Elton an admission that the witness had voted for the Rhode Island trolleys, worth $8,000,000, even though he (Mr. Elton) had believed the price exorbitant.

The witness insisted, however, that the New Haven was not operated as "a speculative enterprise" or "an adjunct of Wall street," but that "Mr. Morgan's heart and soul were in it."

The witness insisted that he knew nothing of the payment of money to Thomas F. Byrnes, formerly a New York police inspector, in connection with Westchester railroad franchise changes, as testified by Mr. Mellen.

MRS. BROWN FOR CONGRESS.

Denver Woman Selected to Make Fight In Denver District.

Newport, R. I., June 4.—Mrs. James J. Brown of Denver, who is at her Bellevue avenue home here, may become a candidate for congress this fall from Colorado. That state, it is understood, is being urged by several woman suffrage associations in the east to send a woman to the national legislature.

The Progressives and Democrats in the Denver district have combined in the movement and have selected Mrs. Brown as their candidate in the primaries that will be held in September.

Mrs. Brown has not made up her mind whether or not to accept the offer.

NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

EYELET DESIGN FOR EMBROIDERING A LINGERIE PILLOW-COVER

Lingerie pillow-covers are very useful where there are babies or invalids in the house. They may be used constantly and yet, if one has plenty of them, they may always look fresh and clean. Pillows of this kind are far more sanitary than those which have their covers made of materials which can not be frequently laundered. These lingerie pillow-covers should be made to fasten on the underside by means of small buttons and buttonholes or loops.

The attractive eyelet design, illustrated on a pillow-cover, is from pattern 14575, which contains 3 yards of this 3½-inch wide border. The squares should be done in ladder-work which is a very simple stitch to do.

For Venetian ladder-work, buttonhole the parallel edges, then connect them with crosbars, made by taking four or five stitches across from side to side, then binding these with buttonhole-stitches or over-and over stitches. The material is then cut away from under the bars.

This design is also suitable for use on tray-cloths, bureau-scarfs, curtains and sideboard-covers.

Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer pattern will be supplied upon receipt of price, 15 cents.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

8371

A most convenient little top coat for girl of from 4 to 14 is shown in No. 8371. It has a raglan shoulder and the flare at the bottom, which is seen on the coat of her grown-up sister; it may be appropriately fashioned of any of the reversible or cotton coatings that big sisters uses for her coats, too. Since it is such a practical idea to use a water-proof material for these coats, an excellent suggestion for this design would be a water proof tweed in a tan, brown or blue mixture. For a child of 8, this coat requires 1¾ yards of 42-inch material.

The reversible coatings and tweed average 40 to 42 inches in width and are priced from about $1.50 a yard and up.

This pattern cuts in six sizes 4 to 14 years.

This is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, passing the tape around the fullest part of the breast, well up under the arms.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

RHUBARB DESSERTS.

RHUBARB desserts that are simple and wholesome are suggested here. Combined with whipped cream they are also very tempting in appearance.

A Combination Jelly.

Rhubarb and Banana Jelly.—Stew about three bundles of rhubarb in a little sirup made with a gill of water and three ounces of loaf sugar. When soft rub through a fine sieve.

Decorate a jelly mold with slices of banana and pistachio nuts. Dissolve three-quarters of an ounce of gelatin in half a gill of water and add to the rhubarb, stir well and add a drop of liquid carmine or cochineal to improve the color. When cool the mixture may be poured into the prepared mold and allowed to set. When firm dip the mold quickly into hot water and turn out on to a dish. Serve plain or with cream.

Rhubarb Fool.—Take a quart of rhubarb, stew it, sweeten and rub through a sieve; return to the pan, place over fire and stir for ten minutes. When cold stir in either three-quarters of a pint of custard or half a pint of cream. Beat and serve in a glass dish.

Made With Cake.

Rhubarb Trifle.—Crumble up stale sponge cake and put a layer of this in a glass dish. Now put in a layer of raspberry jam and then a layer of stewed rhubarb. Repeat the process till the dish is full, using as top layer sliced sponge cake. Pour over it a pint of custard, leave to set, then whip up a gill of cream and add glace cherries.

Rhubarb Sponge.—Take an individual sponge cake, cut off the top, scoop out the center and fill with stewed rhubarb. Replace the top, cover the whole with custard and leave to set. A few crystallized cherries stuck about the cake make the dish look very pretty.

Rhubarb Mold.—Dissolve an ounce of isinglass in the usual way, using a gill of water. Add to the liquid obtained a gill of new milk and a gill of stewed rhubarb, sweetened to taste. Mix well, pour into a mold previously wet, set in a cool place and turn out when stiff.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its apppearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.—Adv.

Guessing Whose Face the Mirror Reflected.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Children's Game on The Roof.

DADDY had seen some little children playing on the roof of a city house, and he told Jack and Evelyn about it as soon as he got home.

"What were they playing?" asked Evelyn.

"They were playing 'afternoon tea.' You know it really was a very hot afternoon, especially in the city, and I suppose those children went up on the roof to get cool, for it was pretty hot on the pavements for playing.

"And now I must tell you what they had to eat. They had cambric tea, which one of the mothers had given them. They waited until it got quite cool so they could drink it, and then they poured it out into little cups. They also had patty cakes and chocolate creams.

"But they had a great many make believe dishes. With cotton wool they made some of the most delicious looking ice cream. Of course it was too beautiful to try, but it made their tea table look most attractive.

"They made chocolate cake out of some mud they had found in one of the back yards near by, and to make it look very rich—as if a great deal of chocolate had been put into it—they kept putting an extra supply of water on it.

"After they had had a most delicious tea, with real things to eat, and 'pretend' things for decorations they decided they would play some games.

"Now, the roof was not large enough for any very lively games or any games with much running to them, but they thought up a fine one right away.

"They played a game called the 'mirror game.'"

"How do you play it, daddy?" inquired Evelyn.

"First of all," said daddy, "you put a mirror in the center of a ring around which are sitting all the children with the exception of one and the ones who are waiting for their turn.

"This one must hide somewhere. Then one child inside the ring is decided upon to imitate the actions of the child who has been hiding. The one who has been hiding is supposed to guess whose face the mirror reflects as she looks into it.

"It is a very old, old game, and I was quite surprised to see these children playing it. They can have a lot of fun, for the ones who are left out to guess have no idea of the secret, and the one who hides before her turn never gives the secret away as she is admitted into the circle afterward.

"Years ago little children used to play this game. Way back in the days of our great-great-grandmothers they knew this game, and I suppose the children enjoyed it especially today, because it was such a hot afternoon, and they didn't have to exert themselves at all to play it."

THE FALL OF THE HOUSE OF USHER

By Edgar Allan Poe

EDGAR ALLAN POE

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. The choice of Gouverneur Morris was "The Fall of the House of Usher," by Edgar Allan Poe, who won world renown as a short story writer.

GOUVERNEUR MORRIS

PART I.

DURING the whole of a dull, dark and soundless day in the autumn of the year, when the clouds hung oppressively low in the heavens, I had been passing alone on horseback, through a singularly dreary tract of country, and at length found myself, as the shades of evening grew on, within view of the melancholy House of Usher. I know not how it was, but, with the first glimpse of the building, a sense of insufferable gloom pervaded my spirit. I looked upon the scene before me—upon the mere house and the simple landscape features of the domain, upon the bleak walls, upon the vacant eyelike windows, upon a few rank sedges and upon a few white trunks of decayed trees, with an utter depression of soul which I can compare to no earthly sensation more properly than to the after dream of the reveler upon opium, the bitter lapse into every day life, the hideous dropping of the veil. There was an icliness, a sinking, a sickening of the heart, an unredeemed dreariness of thought which no goading of the imagination could torture into aught of the sublime. I reined my horse to the precipitous brink of a black and lurid tarn that lay in unruffled luster by the dwelling and gazed down, but with a shudder even more thrilling than before, upon the remodeled and inverted images of the gray sedge and the ghastly tree stems and the vacant and eyelike windows.

Nevertheless in this mansion of gloom I now proposed to myself a sojourn of some weeks. Its proprietor, Roderick Usher, had been one of my boon companions in boyhood, but many years had elapsed since our last meeting. A letter, however, had lately reached me in a distant part of the country—a letter from him—which, in its wildly importunate nature, had admitted of no other than a personal reply. The manuscript gave evidence of nervous agitation. The writer spoke of acute bodily illness, of a mental disorder which oppressed him and of an earnest desire to see me as his best and, indeed, his only personal friend, with a view of attempting by the cheerfulness of my society some alleviation of his malady.

Although as boys we had been even intimate associates, yet I really knew little of my friend. His reserve had been always excessive and habitual. I was aware, however, that his very ancient family had been noted, time out of mind, for a peculiar sensibility of temperament, displaying itself through long ages in many works of exalted art and manifested of late in repeated deeds of munificent yet unobtrusive charity as well as in a passionate devotion to the intricacies, perhaps even more than to the orthodox and easily recognizable beauties, of musical science. I had learned, too, the very remarkable fact that the stem of the Usher race, all time honored as it was, had put forth at no period any enduring branch—in other words, that the entire family lay in the direct line of descent and had always, with very trifling and very temporary variation, so lain. It was this deficiency, perhaps, of collateral issue and the consequent undeviating transmission from sire to son of the patrimony with the name which had at length so identified the two as to merge the original title of the estate in the quaint and equivocal appellation of the "House of Usher"—an appellation which seemed to include in the minds of the peasantry who used it both the family and the mansion.

When I again uplifted my eyes to the house itself from its image in the pool there grew in my mind a strange fancy. I had so worked upon my imagination as really to believe that about the whole mansion and domain there hung an atmosphere peculiar to themselves and their immediate vicinity—an atmosphere which had no affinity with the air of heaven, but which had reeked up from the decayed trees and the gray wall and the silent tarn—a pestilent and mystic vapor, dull, sluggish, faintly discernible and leaden hued.

Shaking off from my spirit what must have been a dream, I scanned more narrowly the real aspect of the building. Its principal feature seemed to be that of an excessive antiquity. The discoloration of ages had been great. Minute fungi overspread the whole exterior, hanging in a fine tangled webwork from the eaves. Yet all this was apart from any extraordinary dilapidation. Perhaps the eye of a scrutinizing observer might have discovered a barely perceptible fissure which, extending from the roof of the building in front, made its way down the wall in a zigzag direction until it became lost in the sullen waters of the tarn.

Noticing these things, I rode over a short causeway to the house. A servant in waiting took my horse, and I entered the Gothic archway of the hall. A valet of stealthy step thence conducted me in silence through many dark and intricate passages in my progress to the studio of his master.

On a staircase I met the physician of the family. His countenance, I thought, wore a mingled expression of low cunning and perplexity. He accosted me with trepidation and passed on. The valet now threw open a door and ushered me into the presence of his master.

The room in which I found myself was very large and lofty. The windows were long, narrow and pointed and at so vast a distance from the black oaken floor as to be altogether inaccessible from within. Feeble gleams of encrimsoned light made their way through the trellised panes and served to render sufficiently distinct the more prominent objects around. I felt that I breathed an atmosphere of sorrow. An air of stern, deep and irredeemable gloom hung over and pervaded all.

Upon my entrance Usher arose from a sofa on which he had been lying at full length and greeted me with a vivacious warmth which had much in it, I at first thought, of an overdone cordiality—of the constrained effort of the ennuye man of the world. A glance, however, at his countenance convinced me of his perfect sincerity. We sat down, and for some moments, while he spoke not, I gazed upon him with a feeling half of pity, half of awe. Surely man had never before so terribly altered in so brief a period as had Roderick Usher. It was with difficulty that I could bring myself to admit the identity of the one being before me with the companion of my early boyhood. Yet the character of his face had been at all times remarkable. A cadaverousness of complexion; an eye large, liquid and luminous beyond comparison; lips somewhat thin and very pallid, but of a surpassingly beautiful curve; a nose of a delicate Hebrew model, but with a breadth of nostril unusual in similar formations; a finely molded chin, speaking in its want of prominence, of a want of moral energy; hair of a more than weblike softness and tenuity—these features, with an inordinate expansion above the regions of the temple, made up altogether a countenance not easily to be forgotten. The now ghastly pallor of the skin and the now miraculous luster of the eye, above all things, startled, and even awed me. The silken hair, too, had been suffered to grow all unheeded, and as, in its wild gossamer texture, it floated rather than fell about the face I could not, even with effort, connect its Arabesque expression with any idea of simple humanity.

In the manner of my friend I was at once struck with an incoherence—an inconsistency, and I soon found this to arise from a series of feeble and futile struggles to overcome an habitual trepidancy—an excessive nervous agitation.

His action was alternately vivacious and sullen. His voice varied rapidly from a tremulous indecision (when the animal spirits seemed utterly in abeyance) to that species of energetic concision—that abrupt, weighty, unhurried and hollow sounding enunciation; that leaden, self balanced and perfectly modulated guttural utterance, which may be observed in the lost drunkard or the irreclaimable eater of opium, during the periods of his most intense excitement.

It was thus that he spoke of the object of my visit, of his earnest desire to see me and of the solace he expected me to afford him. He entered at some length into what he conceived to be the nature of his malady. It displayed itself in a host of unnatural sensations. He suffered much from a morbid acuteness of the senses; the most insipid food was alone endurable; he could wear only garments of certain texture; the odors of all flowers were oppressive; his eyes were tortured by even a faint light, and there were but peculiar sounds and these from stringed instruments which did not inspire him with horror.

To an anomalous species of terror I found him a bounden slave. "I shall perish," said he. "I must perish in this deplorable folly. Thus, thus, and not otherwise, shall I be lost. I dread the events of the future, not in themselves, but in their results. I shudder at the thought of any, even the most trivial incident, which may operate upon this intolerable agitation of soul. I have indeed no abhorrence of danger except in its absolute effect—in terror. In this unnerved, in this pitiable condition, I feel that the period will sooner or later arrive when I must abandon life and reason together in some struggle with the grim phantasm—fear."

I learned, moreover, at intervals and through broken and equivocal hints, that he was enchained by certain superstitious impressions in regard to the dwelling which he tenanted and whence, for many years, he had never ventured forth.

He admitted, however, although with hesitation, that much of the peculiar gloom which thus afflicted him could be traced to a more natural and far more palpable origin, to the severe and long continued illness—indeed, to the evidently approaching dissolution of a tenderly beloved sister, his sole companion for long years, his last and only relative on earth. "Her decease," he said with a bitterness which I can never forget, "would leave him—him the hopeless and the frail—the last of the ancient race of the Ushers." While he spoke the Lady Madeline—for so she was called, passed slowly through a remote portion of the apartment, and without having noticed my presence, disappeared. I regarded her with an utter astonishment not unmingled with dread, and yet I found it impossible to account for such feelings. A sensation of stupor oppressed me, as my eyes followed her retreating steps.

The disease of the Lady Madeline had long baffled the skill of her physicians. A settled apathy, a gradual wasting away of the person and frequent although transient affections of a partially cataleptical character, were the unusual diagnoses. Hitherto she had steadily borne up against the pressure of her malady, and had not betaken herself finally to bed; but, on the closing in of the evening of my arrival at the house, she succumbed (as her brother told me at night with inexpressible agitation) to the prostrating power of the destroyer, and I learned that the glimpse I had obtained of her person would thus probably be the last I should obtain—that the lady, at least while living, would be seen by me no more.

For several days ensuing her name was unmentioned by either Usher or myself, and during this period I was busied in earnest endeavors to alleviate the melancholy of my friend. We painted and read together, or I listened as if in a dream to the wild improvizations to his speaking guitar.

I shall ever bear about me a memory of the many solemn hours I thus spent alone with the master of the house of Usher. Yet I should fail in any attempt to convey an idea of the exact character of the studies or of the occupations in which he involved me or led me the way. An excited and highly distempered ideality threw a sulphurous luster over all.

One of the phantasmagoric conceptions of my friend, partaking not so rigidly of the spirit of abstraction, may be shadowed forth, although feebly, in words. A small picture presented the interior of an immensely long and rectangular vault or tunnel, with low walls, smooth, white and without interruption or device. Certain accessory points of the design served well to convey the idea that this excavation lay at an exceeding depth below the surface of the earth. No outlet was observed in any portion of its vast extent, and no torch or other artificial source of light was discernible. Yet a flood of intense rays rolled throughout and bathed the whole in a ghastly and inappropriate splendor.

The words of his wild fantasias (for he not infrequently accompanied himself on the guitar with improvisations) were the result of that intense collectedness and concentration to which I have previously alluded as observable only in particular moments of the highest artificial excitement. The words of one of these rhapsodies I have easily remembered. I was perhaps the more forcibly impressed with it as he gave it, because in the under or mystic current of its meaning I fancied that I perceived, and for the first time, a full consciousness on the part of Usher of the tottering of his lofty reason upon her throne. The verses, which were entitled "The Haunted Palace," ran very nearly if not accurately thus:

I.

In the greenest of our valleys
By good angels tenanted
Once a fair and stately palace—
Radiant palace—reared its head.
In the monarch Thought's dominion
It stood there.
Never seraph spread a pinion
Over fabric half so fair.

II.

Banners yellow, glorious, golden
On its roof did float and flow
(This, all this, was in the olden
Time long ago),
And every gentle air that dallied
In that sweet day
Along the ramparts plumed and pallid
A winged odor went away.

III.

Wanderers in that happy valley
Through two luminous windows saw
Spirits moving musically
To a lute's well tuned law
Round about a throne, where sitting (Porphyrogene!),
In state his glory well befitting,
The ruler of the realm was seen.

IV.

And all with pearl and ruby glowing
Was the fair palace door,
Through which came flowing, flowing, flowing
And sparkling evermore
A troop of Echoes, whose sweet duty
Was but to sing
In voices of surpassing beauty
The wit and wisdom of their king.

V.

But evil things in robes of sorrow
Assailed the monarch's high estate
(Ah, let us mourn, for never morrow
Shall dawn upon him, desolate!),
And round about his home the story
That blushed and bloomed
Is but a dim remembered story
Of the old time entombed.

VI.

And travelers now within that valley
Through the red litten windows see
Vast forms that move fantastically
To a discordant melody,
While, like a rapid ghastly river,
Through the pale door
A hideous throng rush out forever
And laugh, but smile no more.

I well remember that suggestions arising from this ballad led us into a train of thought wherein there became manifest an opinion of Usher's, which I mention not so much on account of its novelty (for other men have thought thus) as on account of the pertinacity with which he maintained it. This opinion, in its general form, was that of the sentience of all vegetable things. I lack words to express the full extent or the earnest abandon of his persuasion. The belief, however, was connected (as I have previously hinted) with the gray stones of the home of his forefathers. The conditions of the sentience had been here, he imagined, fulfilled in the method of collocation of these stones. Its evidence—the evidence of the sentience—was to be seen, he said (and I here started as he spoke), in the gradual yet certain condensation of an atmosphere of their own about the waters and the walls. The result was discoverable, he added, in that silent yet importunate and terrible influence which for centuries had molded the destinies of his family and which made him what I now saw him—what he was. Such opinions need no comment, and I will make none.

FAVOR COLE FOR VOORHEES' SEAT

Choice Would Make Supreme Court Democratic.

AWAIT FIELDER'S RETURN

Appointment Is Expected to Be Made Immediately Upon Executive's Return—Former Governor Fort Has Also Been Mentioned For Vacancy. Was Formerly Member of Court.

Trenton, N. J., June 4.—The appointment of a successor to the late Justice Willard Voorhees as an associate justice of the supreme court will be made by Governor Fielder when he returns from his vacation trip in about two weeks.

From an authoritative source it was learned that a Democrat will be given the place vacated by Justice Voorhees, who was a Republican. County Judge Clarence L. Cole of Atlantic county is understood to be the most formidable candidate at the present time.

Mr. Cole is a Democrat and will resign his present judgeship Oct. 1. The appointment of a Democrat to the supreme court bench at this time would make a majority of the supreme court Democratic. As the court stands now there are four Democratic justices and four Republican justices. The Democrats are Justices Minturn, Garrison, Kalisch and Bergen. The Republicans are Swayze, Parker, Gummere and Trenchard.

If Governor Fielder decides to select a Democrat as the successor of Justice Voorhees and make the supreme court bench Democratic those who profess to know see the retention of Chief Justice Gummere as head of the court. Justice Gummere is a Republican in politics, and the appointment of a Democrat to fill the present vacancy would keep the control of the court in line with the politics of the executive, although the chief justice was a political opponent.

Former Governor J. Franklin Fort of Newark has also been mentioned for the vacancy. Mr. Fort was a member of the court before he entered politics for the governorship.

Significance was attached to the candidacy of Judge Cole when Chief Justice Gummere moved Supreme Court Justice Kalisch from the Atlantic circuit to the Middlesex circuit, presided over by the late Justice Voorhees. The Atlantic circuit will be without a justice for the time being. The new justice to be appointed will sit in the Atlantic circuit. Judge Cole resides in Atlantic City and would be handy at all times to lawyers in that section of the state.

MOCK OPERATION IN COURT.

Doctor Sued For $15,000 Shows Jury Work on Child.

Mays Landing, N. J., June 4.—The suit of Kathryn V. Riley, the three year-old daughter of Professor I. Woodbridge Riley of Vassar college, for $15,000 damages against Dr. Emery Marvel of Atlantic City was resumed before Judge Cole. A rubber tube, the plaintiff alleges, was left in the child's neck following an operation by Dr. Marvel.

Dr. Wallace W. Fritz of Philadelphia was called by the plaintiffs and gave testimony on the method of operation. The defense offered its case shortly after 10 o'clock, and Dr. Marvel was called to the stand. In order that the court and jury might understand thoroughly the manner in which the operation was performed Dr. Marvel gave an illustrative operation upon Mildred Birch, five years old, of this place.

ENDS LIFE FEARING CHARGE.

Morristown Man, Accused of Firing Store, Takes Carbolic.

Morristown, N. J., June 4.—Believed to have been despondent and fearful of the result of an indictment against him in Essex county for arson, Jacob Rozen, fifty-five years old, of 12 Early street committed suicide at his home by taking carbolic acid.

Rozen had a grocery store on Speedwell avenue and has been in business here several years. He recently opened a branch store in East Orange. A few weeks ago this place was burned, and the fire was thought to have been the work of an incendiary. Rozen was arrested and released on $7,500 bail. His case was to have been heard in a few weeks. He is survived by a widow and four children.

SLOCUM NOW GOVERNOR.

Senate President Takes Reins of State During Fielder's Absence.

Trenton, N. J., June 4.—President of the Senate John W. Slocum of Monmouth county was sworn in as governor of the state to serve during the absence of Governor Fielder. The oath was administered by Chancellor Walker in the presence of Secretary L. Edward Hermann.

Governor Fielder left the state on a vacation trip and is expected to return within ten days.

$30,000 FOR NEW BOROUGH SCHOOL

Structure to Be Erected on Harrison Avenue Prior to Opening of Next Term.

BUDGET IS ADOPTED

Voters Will Ballot on School Question June 23—New York Firm Awarded Contract for Soft Coal and Local Dealer for Soft Coal.

Meeting in special session last night, the North Plainfield Board of Education voted an appropriation of $30,000 for the erection of a new graded school on the Harrison avenue site, the appropriation to be passed upon by the voters of the borough at a school election called for Tuesday, June 23. The board has had several favorable sites in view for the past month but upon investigation decided that the one on Harrison avenue was best adapted to the needs at the present time.

Pinto and Company, of New York city, were awarded the contract for furnishing of a supply of soft coal to the borough schools, the fuel to come direct from the mines; and the Consumers' Coal Company, of Madison avenue, will supply the hard coal to be used next winter. The fuel is purchased at this period of the year in order that the borough may reap the benefits of the reduction given by coal dealers.

The budget was brought up for discussion at last night's meeting and passed upon by the Board. This year the board will request an additional appropriation of $20,000 besides the sum needed for the current expenses. The $20,000 will include $9,000 to pay off notes due on January 1, 1915 and $11,000 for making repairs to the Somerset street school. The latter structure will be remodeled to meet the requirements of the State Board of Education.

The following budget will be submitted to the taxpayers of the district for their approval.

General Fund—Teachers' salaries, $33,000; repairs, $1,500; text books, $1,250; supplies, $1,000; fuel, $800; physician $200; district clerk, $360; supply clerk, $100; janitors, $2,300; insurance, $150; sundries and incidentals, $1,000; athletic hall, $300; commencement, $150; water, light and gas, $1,400; custodian, G. F. Brown, $100; total, $43,610.

Manual Training—Teachers, $1,800; janitors, $360; supplies, $600; repairs to equipment, $100; fuel $300; water, light and power, $80; insurance and interest, $30; new equipment, $100; total, $3,370.

Receipts—From State, $20,000; Manual Training, $1,685; tuition, $1,400—$23,085. Amount to be raised by taxes, $23,895; total, $46,980.

ASTOR THEATRE WILL BE RE-OPENED IN SEPTEMBER

It beame known today that Apfelbaum & Apfelbaum, of Newark, have secured an option on the Astor Theatre, the Front street moving picture house and for a lease covering a number of years from Harry Dreier and Morris Abams, the owners of the building. The new lessees will take possession sometime during September.

Mr. Dreier, in speaking with a representative of the Daily Press, verified the rumor, although he would not make public the details of the lease on the building. He also stated that the theatre would undergo a complete renovation and be put into first-class condition before it was occupied in the fall. The interior of the building will be overhauled and re-decorated.

CHAMBER MEETING POSTPONED.

The Chamber of Commerce meeting scheduled for last evening was postponed for the period of one week owing to the lack of a quorum. The Board of Managers met, however and elected James W. Tygard, of South avenue, to membership. The board also authorized the calling of a meeting for next Thursday evening, when changes to the constitution and other important matters will be discussed.

"PALESTINE AND THE HOLY LAND" IN PICTURES

An instructive and interesting lecture was given last evening at the Temple Baptist church by Rev. P. H. Murdick, pastor of the South Orange M. E. church, "Palestine and the Holy Land," being described in a pleasing way by the speaker.

A rare collection of views was shown, and the eloquent discourse was thoroughly enjoyed by those present. The speaker referred especially to Damascus, the historic city, whose remains appear to be the center of attraction to the vast majority of tourists who visit the land where Jewish history was enacted.

The wonders of Jordan Valley was graphically described by Rev. Murdick. Jerusalem, with its abundance of historic spots and legends, together with Olivet and Calvary hills, with which the Christ was so intimatly associated were visited, in a most vivid way by the lecturer, many of the traditional spots being shown in the pictures.

YOUNG WOMEN RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Commencement Exercises Held at Hartridge School Today.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

Dr. Harry A. Garfield, President of Williams College, Addresses Graduates—Prayer by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie.

Five young women were graduated from the Hartridge School, this morning, when in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends the commencement exercises were held at the school auditorium. The undergraduate body marched into the hall followed by the seniors, the faculty and speakers. The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church, after which the student body sang, "Come Thou Almighty King."

The speaker was Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College, who was introduced by Dr Zelie, himself a graduate of Williams, who explained how the honor was the more pleasant because he introduced one with whom he had had many relations during his residence in Williamstown, Mass.

Dr. H. A. Garfield outlined the importance of education. He told the young women to think at the right time. He asked the undergraduate body why they sought education; how many of them had really inquired into the use of education, with thought and deliberation. The millions of dollars spent on education make it obvious that some think education the greatest necessity. In part, Dr. Garfield said, "Education is not merely the means of making a living. Knowledge should be looked upon as the step toward a valuable end. Most people who go to college do not know why they have gone. Some are sent, although not always against their will, but these stay but a short time. The reason why you have remained at the Hartridge school is that you may prepare to live. There is a deep contrast between learning to live and earning a living. This raises the question—'what is living?' It is not merely to keep well but to tend to lift humanity up from its mere animal existence.

"You should learn to know the good, the true and the beautiful. These are things with which we should concern ourselves when setting about to use our minds. Students should learn to appreciate these qualities and live according to the faith within them. To learn to live is not to learn to take opportunity, except that opportunity to take their share of responsibility without a selfish motive. This is the answer why you are at the Hartridge School." Dr. Garfield proved to be a very pleasing and easy talker with a convincing style.

Miss Hartridge next addressed the graduates, telling them of the meaning of the world before them. In closing Miss Hartridge said, "Strength comes from striving and with strength comes victory." The diplomas were presented by Miss Hartridge to the Misses Janet Lane, Pauline Sandford, Helen Terry, Claire Richards, and Margaret Stanley-Brown The first three graduates are from this city while Miss Richards is from Orange, and Miss Stanley-Brown is from Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island.

After the singing of the hymn, "Savior, Again to Thy Dear Name we Raise" Dr. Zilie pronounced the benediction.

The stage was attractively decorated with roses and carnations. The graduates were dressed in white and each carried a large bouquet.

The commencement festivities will close this evening when a dance will be given to the seniors at the Hartridge Auditorium. This affair is an annual one arranged by Miss Hartridge and the members of the school faculty.

HEARING TONIGHT.

CONFER WITH OWNERS ON STREET WIDENING

Madison Avenue Commissioners Trying to Levy Equitable Assessment.

J. Fred MacDonald, A. H. Atterbury and A. E. Smith, commissioners in the matter of the proposed widening of Madison avenue, met last night and conferred with several property owners on the avenue, between Front street and the railroad. Among those appearing before the commissioners, last night, were J. Henry Crane, representing Wadley & Goodenough, and Robert Newton Crane, who represents small property owners.

It has been the plan of the commissioners to meet the property owners or their representatives, personally, with a view to reaching an amicable agreement regarding benefits and damages. As yet the commissioners have not treated personally with the representatives of the estate of Samuel Dreier. The affected property at West Front street and Madison avenue, is perhaps, the most important to be considered, there being a wide difference of opinion heretofore as to what should be allowed as benefits to offset the damages. The commissioners will meet again on Tuesday night.

CHIEF KIELY VISITED STATE HOME FOR BOYS

Local Police Head Greatly Impressed With the Internal Workings of Institution.

Chief of Police P. S. Kiely, of the local force, attended the annual meeting of the New Jersey Police Chiefs' Association, held yesterday at the State Home for Boys in Jamesburg. Thirty-five heads of various departments in the State attended the affair and although the inclement weather greeted the gathering the day was profitably spent in conference and inspection work. In speaking of the session this morning, Chief Kiely was profound in his praise for the institution's authorities who treated the visiting chiefs in royal style during the day.

The local delegate was particularly impressed with the manner in which the "Little City of Boys" is governed at Jamesburg and with the routine of work as supervised by the inmates. Describing his trip this morning, Chief Kield told of the various commercial enterprises that are developed on a small scale at the institution and the complicated governing machine which is operated by juvenile law-makers and business men.

The home is surrounded by 700 acres of fertile soil, a large portion of which has been turned into grazing ground for herds of cattle and other live stock. On the farm the boys raise all of their own meat and vegetables and manufacture their own dairy products. In fact, everything that is consumed by the inmates is raised or manufactured on the premises by the ultimate consumers.

This process last year saved the State of New Jersey $20,000, and 530 boys are now being taken care of by the authorities. Included in the present enrollment are two Plainfield youngsters who clung continually to Chief Kiely during his stay at the institution yesterday. He also inspected the departments in which the boys make all of their own clothing and the schools in which the inmates are taught stenography, typewriting and commercial subjects. The boys regulate their own government and a majority eagerly take advantage of the numerous opportunities accorded them. A boy may earn his parole by good behavior within one year after his commitment, but the school authorities do not lose jurisdiction over him until he has reached his maturity. Special attention is given to cripples and employment of a suitable nature is taught them so that they make their own living after being paroled. Religious work is an important part of the daily routine and two chaplains are constantly in attendance. The home has its own hospital with a corps of nurses and doctors, but medical attention is seldom needed by the inmates. The boys retire each night at 7:45 and are up and ready for the morning work at 7:30. At this time the youths go to their respective employment where they remain until 11 o'clock, when the noon recreation period is held. After the noon-day meal the boys attend school until 4 o'clock and after that hour their time is their own, baseball games and other forms of amusement occupying the hours before supper.

INJUNCTION IS MADE PERMANENT

Dailey and Ivins Win Their Suit Against City of New York.

A NOTABLE VICTORY

Justice Ford's Decision Sets Aside Order Preventing Contractors From Using Scows in Removal of City Refuse.

Dailey & Ivans, of New York, of which firm DeWitt C. Ivins, of this city, is a member, won a decisive victory before Justice Ford of the Supreme Court, of New York, today, when the latter handed down a decision granting a permanent injunction against the City of New York, in favor of the concern, city contractors for the final decision of the street railway sweepings, ashes and rubbish collected in New York.

Commissioner John T. Fetherston, of the street cleaning department, issued an order in March last forbidding the use of dumping scows by the contractors in the transportation of refuse after April 1, 1914. Dailey & Ivins then instituted a suit through their counsel, Mark Ash, to restrain the commissioner from enforcing the order.

At the time the suit was started the concern obtained a preliminary injunction from Justice Davis, which acted as a stay until the case could be argued. The temporary injunction was today made permanent after a trial by Justice Ford, and is considered a big victory by the contractors.

Mr. Ivins has been engaged in the contracting business in New York for many years, the concern with which he is connected having the contract to remove the refuse from the city. This is taken in scows far out to sea where it is finally disposed of. Ever since the firm secured the contract scows have been used for this work, being the best means of carrying the refuse from the city.

TRINITY COMMANDERY OUTING TOMORROW

Big Time Promised at Annual Gathering at the Huntsman Home on East Front St.

The spacious grounds surrounding the home of R. F. R. Huntsman, on East Front street, will be the scene tomorrow of the annual outing of Trinity Commandery, Knights Templars. It will also be the occasion for the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization, and a big time is in store for the Templars and their invited guests. Grand Commander Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, and his full staff are expected to be present. Mr. Huntsman will be assisted in making the guests happy by Charles A. Lee, A. D. Honeyman, B. Frank Corriell and Dr. D. C. Adams. The plans have been in preparation for some time, and many amusing stunts are promised for the guests, who will be served with a hearty luncheon following which outdoor sports will be participated in.

Included in the athletic events scheduled will be a tug of war between the "K. T. Dids" and the "K. T. Didn'ts;" and the second appearance of "The Downfall of China," which was a popular feature of the outing last year. The Sphinx Club orchestra, of New York, has been secured through the courtesy of Preston P. Lynn of the Wanamaker stores, and it is promised on the invitation that "you'll hear wonderful music, and no mistake about that."

LESLIE ALLEN TENDERED A PARTY BY HIS PARENTS

A birthday party was held in honor of J. Leslie Allen, on the occasion of his twenty-first birthday, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, on West Fourth street, last evening. Various novelty games were played and a number of guests entertained. The feature of the evening was an act of mystery and magic presented by Jesse L. Rogers, originator of the "Hoin's Dream," the act that he is presenting at the Dunellen Theatre this week.

Among the guests present were the Misses Mary Bennett, Lelia Wherry Laura Stillman, Grace Stillman Grace Schmidt, and Messrs. Louis Bennett, Clarence H. Weber, John Leslie Allen, Frank Baker, Russel Allen, Rutgers Neilson, Roy Wyckoff, Robert B. Butler, Jesse L. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. John Allen and Mrs. John Schmidt.

CITES DEFECTS IN 1912 ROAD ACT

Corporation Counsel C. A. Reed Takes Exceptions to Request of Freeholders.

Elizabeth, June 5—Charles A. Reed, corporation counsel of Plainfield, sent a communication to the Board of Freeholders at its meeting yesterday afternoon, asking what roads the Board had built within the corporate limits of Plainfield. The Common Council had no way of knowing, he said. This communication was in answer to one from the Board, asking Plainfield to keep the county roads there clean and in repair.

Mr. Reed cited several defects in the Road Act of 1912 under which the Freeholders built the roads and the amendment of 1913. Chapter 19, of the Laws of 1912, he said, excepts cities from the provisions of the act and the Board, therefore, had no power to construct the roads. The amendment of last year had no force, he contended. His communication was referred to the county road committee and the county attorney.

The committee which recently attended the Inter-State bridge conference in New York city reported adversely on the project. The report stated that the proposed bridge to New York would be of no benefit to Union county and would be a great expense. It stated further that it would not be wise for the county to enter an agreement even for the preliminary expense incident to the drawing of plans and other details. Freeholder David F. Hennessy supplemented the report with an address in which he criticised the Inter-State Bridge Commission for asking as much from Union as its share as from Bergen, which would derive the greater part of the benefit, he said. Freeholder George Teller offered a resolution stating that it was the sense of the Board that the bridge project be not considered by Union, and that the commission be so informed at the next conference June 11. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

County Attorney Codington was allowed $50 per month clerk hire, to date from January 1.

FAMILY'S TRIP ABROAD POSTPONED BY MEASLES

A case of measles is an undesirable visitor at any stage of the game, but when one comes as it did to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Strapp, of Darrow avenue, it is all kinds of hard luck. Mrs. Strapp had completed all arrangements to sail for Ireland yesterday, on the Cunard liner "Carmanes," her three children, Edward, Mary and Frances, going with her. Their stay is to be a long one for the benefit of the mother's health and practically all their clothing was sent to the steamer Wednesday morning.

Early Wednesday afternoon the parents noticed that Mary, three years old, had developed an unusual ruddy complexion. She also complained of being ill, so Dr. Hughes was sent for. The physician took a glance at the child and said "measles." The "Carmania" sailed yesterday with several Plainfielders who were to have been companions of Mrs. Strapp on the voyage, but she and the children are still at home. If Mary recovers in time the postponed trip will commence on another boat next Thursday.

Mrs. Strapp will spend her time in Ireland with her parents and will be away more than a year.

MT. ST. MARY COLLEGE EXEMPT

State Board Decides That Building and Five Acres of Land Cannot Be Taxed.

ASSESSMENT SET ASIDE

However, Institution Must Pay Tax On Fifty-five Acres Known as "Excess Land"—County Taxation Board is Criticized by Anderson.

The State Board of Taxation, sitting at Somerville, yesterday, decided after arguments had been presented pro and con, that Mt. St. Mary College building and five acres of land are exempt from taxation under the College and Academy Act, but that fifty-five acres of landing adjoining known as "excess land," and which is owned by the Mt. St. Mary corporation is taxable, which was admitted by the representatives of the institution.

The matter was brought before the State Board of Taxation by the North Plainfield Township Committee which had levied an assessment of $25,000 on the property in question and the chairman, W. de LaR. Anderson, represented the Committee at the hearing, yesterday, while Peter Backes, of Trenton, and Councilman Francis J. Blatz, of this city, represented the college. Mr. Backes presented the facts in the case for the institution, and speaking in behalf of the same conceded the right to assess the "excess land" at the same rate levied on property adjoining.

Mr. Backes claimed that the building and five acres of land were exempt under the State law the same as other similar institutions and this view was finally held by the State Board of Taxation, although that body somewhat questioned its authority for, reason that the matter had not been brought before it properly by the county board of taxation. That right was waived, however, by the college.

Mr. Anderson admitted after hearing the arguments that the college and five acres were exempt, but at the same time took occasion to severely criticize the county board of taxation for what he termed its "laxity" in the matter. He asserted that the matter was properly brought before the county board, but that it was never decided in a satisfactory manner.

The hearing brought out the fact that farm land in the vicinity of the college is assessed at from $40 to $80 an acre, and the college through its representatives expressed a willingness to submit to a tax on the "excess land" at the same rate. The hearing was held yesterday chiefly for the purpose of reviewing the action of the township in levying an assessment of $25,000 on the college building and land, but inasmuch as it was decided that they were exempt, no further action was taken.

The township will now receive taxes on the "excess land" for 1913 and 1914 and in the future as prescribed by law, and in this respect the State Board of Taxation reversed the county board.

STYLISH RELIABLE

It Costs Money To Talk To You!

You are the most expensive man in the world to talk to.

It costs about $10 a minute to talk to you, and we would like about three minutes of your time right now.

The fact is, we have no reason to complain of business in general, but we would like to get yours.

We not only want your business, but by all standards of fair play we are entitled to it.

What you are looking for in your clothes is something which average clothes cannot give you.

You are looking not only for excellence in fabrics and workmanship, but for STYLE—that style which is more the manner than the MODE.

And it is this particular sort of style which has made Rothberg's Clothes the first choice of the good dressers of Plainfield and vicinity.

$10, $12, $15, $18, $20, to $30.

'Plains & Fanwood.

Since the question was brought up at the Borough Council meeting Wednesday evening, of having additional police protection most of the residents have expressed themselves as being pleased with the plan. There it at present but one marshal and he is on duty during the night. The many recent robberies have tended to show that one marshal cannot cover the borough alone as the housebreaking has occurred in one end of the town while the chief was patroling at the other end. If any one should happen to see a suspicious person there is no way to call Marshal Logan as he is liable to be in any part of the borough. Councilman Nicrol has suggested that as most local people have telephones it might be wise to have a telephone call box on a pole in the center of the borough similar to the plan in Westfield and if any one used the 'phone it would display a green light on top of the pole to attract attention. The matter has been referred to the committee on lights, water and fire to be reported at the next meeting. The matter of two special marshals has been referred to the committee also. William Lidgate, a former member of the New York police force, and who used to be a special marshal here two years ago, has been suggested for one of the positions.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church held their monthly meeting in the church, yesterday afternoon, when plans for the annual fair of the society that will be held in the fall were started. The meeting, from now on will be devoted to making fancy articles and other things for the fair.

The last exercises that will be held in the local schools this term excepting graduation, will be a week from today when Flag Day, which falls on Sunday, the sixteenth of June, will be observed.

The Fanwood Field Club and the Netherwood A. C. will cross bats for the second time this season when they get together on the Field Club's diamond on Park avenue, at 3:0'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Netherwoods had the better of the first argument and the locals are out for revenge. Brick, one of Plainfield High School's mainstays, will do mound work for Netherwood, while it is probable that he will be opposed by Lee, who pitched his first game for the Field Club on Decoration Day and held the Mount Pleasant team at his mercy for the last eight innings, striking out eighteen men.

As is the annual custom one of the class will quote Lincoln's Gettysburg address and there will be several musical selections.

The roster of teachers in the local schools has been completed for next year with the exception of one departmental teacher, in the three upper grades of School No. 1, and is as follows: School No. 1, Miss Anna L. Walker fifth grade, Miss Marion J. Egan four A, Mrs. F. Anderson four B, Miss Harriet M. Squires three A, Miss Lillian Clay two A, Miss Mildred Stiles two B, Miss Caroline Lent grade one, Miss Mary T. Merrill kindergarten; School No. 2, Reed W. Hitchcock principal and teacher of grammar grades, Miss Georgeta Lee primary. Miss Caroline Lent will also be drawing instructor at School No. 1, the same as last year.

There are several changes as several teachers have resigned and the fourth grade of School No. 1, has grown so large that it has been divided into two divisions with a teacher for each. Supervising principal S. Dana Townsend will be here another year while as principal at School No. 2, in place of James Harstien who resigned the Board of Education has engaged Reed W. Hitchcock, who will also be teacher of the grammar grades. In School No. 1, one of the departmental teachers is yet to be engaged.

Plans are being made by the Rev. Father McGrath to hold a large dance at Stony Hill church on the evening of June 17. There will be a full orchestra and refreshments will be served. Stages will make the trip from the trolley at Park avenue.

U. S. WILL KEEP TAMPICO OPEN

Huerta's Blockade Order to Be Ignored.

STILL WAIT ON CARRANZA

Delegates to Peace Conference Are Still Deadlocked—Washington Looks For Important Developments In Situation Within Next Few Days.

Washington, June 5.—The Mexican situation is in a worse muddle than at any other time since the mediators entered upon their conferences at Niagara Falls. Not only does Carranza remain an unknown factor in the problem, but new developments fraught with grave possibilities have arisen in connection with the sailing of the Ward liner Antilla for Tampico with a cargo of arms for the Constitutionalists.

As a result of the clearing of the Antilla, the United States is confronted on the one hand with the danger of suspicion by the mediators that this government has not acted in good faith in support of an understanding that there would be no shipments of arms from this country to Mexico pending the Niagara Falls conferences. On the other hand if the United States attempts to interfere, as now seems likely, with a blockade of Tampico to be instituted by Huerta, it will lay itself open to a charge of violation of the armistice with the Mexican dictator.

Powers May Protest.

There is, moreover, the likelihood of complications with England and other European governments if Huerta insists on carrying out his plan of bottling up Tampico with his gunboats and preventing the landing of the Antilla's cargo of war supplies.

Much remains to be explained about the clearing of the Antilla from New York with a cargo of arms after Secretary Bryan had issued his embargo order. Mr. Bryan explains the incident by saying that it was a mistake, but this is not likely to be very convincing with the mediators, who are said to have had assurances that all such shipments would be held up.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 5.—The United States government and the three South American powers which have undertaken to seek a solution of the Mexican problem are still waiting on General Carranza. The deadlock has not been broken. The proceedings are at a complete standstill, and no effort is being made either by the delegates or the three mediators to continue even the informal conversations which they had been holding up to two days ago.

This day has been another of absolute inaction. The entire proceedings have stopped. No statement is being made on either side, and none is expected before a definite announcement comes from Washington. It is conceded by all here that the delegates of General Huerta have greatly strengthened their position through the statement which they made two days ago. All those who are close to the mediators agree that the latter will not recede from their demand that Carranza cease fighting if he wishes to enter the mediation conference.

The report received here from New York that the leader of the revolt in northern Mexico was not responsible for the long statement which was issued on Tuesday at El Paso is generally believed here. It is confidently expected that the rebel leader will adopt an entirely different attitude after receiving the reply to his official note which has been sent to him by the mediators.

CONSERVATION BILL CAUCUS.

House Democrats May Attempt Passage at This Session.

Washington, June 5.—Democrats of the house may be called together in caucus shortly to decide whether or not to attempt a passage of the administration's conservation bills at the present session of congress.

This was admitted at the White House by Congressman Henry of Texas, chairman of the house committee on rules, and Secretary of the Interior Lane, following a conference with the president.

At this conference both the president and the secretary of the interior expressed the hope that the legislation might be passed. Behind this hope there is said to be somewhat of a strong desire to trim the wings of Colonel Roosevelt, whose criticisms of the administration have undoubtedly left their sting.

WANTS TO MARRY GOV. DUNNE

Woman Fell In Love With the Executive's Photograph.

Springfield, Ill., June 5.—Governor Edward F. Dunne has a wife, nine sturdy children and one grandson. Nevertheless he received a proposal from a woman living in Memphis, Tenn., who had read of the governor pardoning a convict on the plea of the convict's wife.

"I love to look on you," wrote the Memphis woman, "and I am going to send you my photograph. Tell me if this is appreciated and if you are a married man."

The governor's secretary sent a photograph picturing Governor Dunne in the center of his family group.

Plainfield, N. J., June 5, 1914.

FAKE SALES.

Every merchant expects competition, and most of them welcome fair competition, carried on by legitimate tradespeople who keep their money at home and help to make the city successful. But when outsiders come to Plainfield, plaster the front of a store with alluring advertisements, which may but probably do not tell the truth, then the merchant who is here all the time has a fair complaint.

Over in Newark the advertising club recently was instrumental in successfully prosecuting a man who conducted a fake sale, which the representatives of the club proved in court was advertised falsely. In New York the now defunct Siegel-Cooper firm was successfully prosecuted for advertising fur sales that were false on their face. There certainly must be some way of stopping the offering of merchandise at auction sales, by fly-by-night concerns which hire a vacant store for a month, gather in the coin from gullible persons and leave nothing behind them but the regrets of the people who have been stung.

A law has recently been passed in New Jersey which makes prosecution of this type of business comparatively easy. The Business Men's Association should look into every case of the kind in Plainfield, and as an organization drive every fake sale, whether auction or some other kind, out of town. They will not be accused of doing it because of business jealousy. On the other hand they will be commended by every thinking person in the city, for it is only the gullible who are stuck with the merchandise offered. Let it be hoped that an example will soon be made that will keep such people away in the future. In the meantime it might be well to ask the Council to pass an ordinance raising the license fee for auction sales to a prohibitive figure, of course protecting in some way the legitimate merchant and auctioneer.

DO GOOD ROADS PAY?

Were all the bad roads to be converted into good, hard level roads, the annual saving in hauling over the country highways in the United States would aggregate the mighty sum of $7,500,000,000, according to Government statistics. This one item of a year's loss to American people would build fifteen Panama canals.

If all highways were improved, this seven and a half billions of dollars would go to those who do the country hauling, chiefly farmers. It would be a saving which would affect in a monumental manner the people of the cities who form the market for the freight hauled over the country roads. It would reduce the cost of living by cutting down the big margin between retail prices in the cities and cost of production in the country. It would put these billions every year into the pockets of the American people.

The grand total of cost of hauling by wagons over the country roads of the United States is said to reach the colossal figure of $12,500,000,000 a year. The cost of hauling one ton one mile on good roads by horse-drawn wagons is figured at eight cents a mile. The average cost, however, on all the roads of the country is 23 cents per mile, while in certain sections the figure is as high as 64 cents per mile for every ton hauled one mile.

Every year 5,000,000,000 tons of freight are hauled in wagons over all these roads. The average haul is ten miles. This gives a total traffic of 50,000,000,000 ton-miles every year. At the average of 23 cents a ton-mile for the entire country, the aggregate cost of hauling reaches $11,500,000,000. But it is possible, by making the bad roads good, to reduce this cost to 8 cents per ton-mile, the cost of hauling over the best roads in the country today. This reduction from 23 cents to 8 cents aggregates a total possible saving of $7,500,000,000. Divided into states and counties, the figures remain as staggering as the colossal total for the whole land.

Well may the question be asked of not "Can we afford to build good roads?" but "Can we afford not to build good roads?"

Maximus, the strong man, who has recently settled in Plainfield, and opened a physical culture institute here, has written the contributed editorial for tomorrow. He has had a unique and unusual career, having been on the stage for some years prior to making his home in this city, and it was only by chance that he realized that his great strength could be put to other purpose than for exhibition. He tells in an interesting manner some of his personal history, and of the cordial welcome which Plainfield people have given him. It is an unusual contribution to the long list of splendid articles which have appeared in the Daily Press on Saturdays during the last two years.

WHY NOT A "REALLY GREAT?"

When the Plainfield Business College secures a man like George W. Perkins to address its graduating class and the Hartridge School gets President Garfield, of Williams College, for its commencement speaker, it seems peculiar that the Plainfield Board of Education fails to get an equal celebrity for its 1914 graduation orator. High School seniors and their relatives generally prefer a little sound advice from successful business or university men. We have had no great celebrity at the city school commencement in some years, but smaller institutions get the best to be had right along.

The Daily Press has received several protests within the past week from people who allege that the city street lights are turned off from twenty minutes to a half hour too early every morning. Night workers and others who go home just before sunup are compelled to stumble along in Stygian darkness. If such is the case its up to some official serving the city to give the Public Service a scolding in the form of a deduction when the monthly light check is audited. A little stunt like that will keep the street globes burning until long after Old Sol has commenced his day's work.

"MONA LISA" THIEF GETS HEAVY SENTENCE

Florence, June 5, (Central News Cable).—The trial of the Italian, Peruggin who stole the famous painting "La Gioconda" from the Louvre in Paris, some months ago, was concluded today. The prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to one year's imprisonment. He was given fifteen day's in which to lodge an appeal.

In explanation of the motive for the crime he said that while employed in the Louvre he studied the history of the best known masterpieces, and ascertaining that all the celebrated paintings had been stolen from Italy, either by invading armies or by individuals he decided to restore one of them, if no more, to the rightful owner.

He therefore walked into the gallery one morning where "La Giocohda" was on exhibition and taking the painting from its heavy frame, placed it under his arm and quietly left the building. He than made his way with it to Italy. He denied having tried to sell it in London.

DAY OF BATTLESHIP IS PAST, SAYS ADMIRAL

London, June 5.—The day of the battleship is past according Admiral Sir Percy Scott, inventor of gun carriages and other appliances, who in a letter to the Times, declares it is time to stop building all warships which are not submersibles. All that has been done to increase the effectiveness of guns has been practically nullified by the advent of submarines, says Admiral Scott. All other types of vessels must soon become obsolete, he says because they will never be safe either at sea or in the harbor from attacks by submarines.

Admiral Scott further declares that the government is now wasting money building ships that will not be able to fight. He urges the construction of a fleet of submarines and air craft and also a few fast cruisers providing a safe place can be found for them in time of war.

NO IMMUNITY.

Washington, June 5—Opening the New Haven hearing today, Solicitor Folk of the I. C. PRESIDENT RETURNS TO OLD "HANDSHAKING" HABIT

Washington, June 5—President Wilson has decided to return to the old "handshaking" habit he put a stop to shortly after he entered the White House. He announced today that he would greet personally each one of the delegation of 2,000 members of the Mystic Order of the Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm when they called at the White House, June 11. The organization will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary at Richmond, Va., June 8, 9 and 10, and then will come directly to Washington to be received by the President.

Mr. Wilson sometime ago announced his intention of abandoning the hadshaking habit, for he found it was too much of a strain, besides occupying too much time. This is the first time he has evinced an inclination to set aside his rule.

MEXICO CITY RESIDENTS IN DARK ABOUT PEACE PLANS

Mexico City, June 5.—There has been nothing official given out concerning the progress of negotiations at Niagara Falls, and the public here is in dark regarding the conference.

Gen. Blanquet, Minister of War, announces that the Zapatistas who for three days have fiercely attacked Cuernavaca, have been driven back with heavy losses. The small bodies of rebels which have been operating in the vicinity of Zacatecas have also been repulsed according to Gen. Blanquet.

Gen Ignacio Morelos Zaragosa and the troops which recently evacuated Tampico have been ordered to the capital where they are expected to arrived tomorrow.

There is great activity among the representatives of the various oil companies having concessions in Vera Cruz and Tamaulipas, who alarmed over the possibility that concessions granted to Berraat hea and Romero will be tested through the Senate have asked that the matter be discussed today. The contemplated measure would give great power to the two men and its opponents desire to be present when it comes before the Senate.

Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister, conveyed to President Huerta today, the thanks of King George V. for Huerta's message of condolence following the Empress of Ireland disaster.

MIDSUMMER QUIET PERVADES WHITE HOUSE

Washington, June 5—Midsummer quiet fell on the White House today, and the policemen on guard at the executive office snored audibly when they were'nt stifling yowns. President Wilson was on his way to Annapolis on board the Presidential yacht Mayflower. Secretary Tumulty accompanied him. The only person on the job was Rudolph Forester, assistant secretary, and he found little to do.

There was disappointment among the small army of tourists who flock to the White House each morning in the hope of seeing the President or other prominent government officials as they come and go. Many members of Congress, who had failed to read the morning newspapers, also were disappointed when they called at the executive office in the hope of enlisting the President's aid in advancing certain of their pet measures.

It is not definitely known when President Wilson will return to Washington. He may decide to come back tomorrow from the Maryland town, where he will address the Naval Academy graduating class today, and he may stay until Sunday night. The President is deeply interested in the navy, and Secretary Daniels, who accompanies him to the commencement exercises, probably will seek him to prolong his visit.

LEDYARD DENIES MELLEN'S STORY

Contradicts Flatly Testimony of Former N. H. Head.

DID NOT SHIELD MORGAN

Asserts That B. and M. Story Is Not True—Gives New Version of Billard and Westchester Transactions—Says He Took Blame.

TESTIMONY OF MELLEN AND LEDYARD DIFFER.

Here is what Mr. Mellen said as to his indictment in the Grand Trunk matter:

"I wrote the letter (to the district attorney) for the purpose of shielding Mr. Morgan. I showed it to Lewis Cass Ledyard and E. D. Robbins, and they corrected it. I nearly killed everybody in the office to keep Mr. Morgan's name out of it."

This is what Mr. Ledyard says:

"I want to say in the most emphatic terms that Mr. Mellen did not go forward and offer himself as a vicarious sacrifice and take on himself the full responsibility in order to shield Mr. Morgan. There was nothing like that. Mr. Mellen wrote his letter assuming responsibility at his own suggestion. He asked me if I thought it was not a wise thing to do, and I told him I thought it was. The only things done that made any one subject to indictment, if they did, were done by Mr. Mellen, and on his own showing Mr. Morgan had done nothing."

Washington, June 5.—Charles S. Mellen's account of his martyrdom in New Haven railroad affairs was flatly contradicted by Lewis Cass Ledyard, who appeared in the witness chair before the interstate commerce commission.

Mr. Ledyard gave a detailed account from his standpoint of incidents leading up to Mr. Mellen's indictment in the so called Grand Trunk case. His testimony not only contradicted Mr. Mellen's statements on the stand, but were designed to show that Mr. Mellen and not the late J. P. Morgan was responsible for the traffic arrangement with the Grand Trunk which resulted in criminal prosecution under the Sherman law against Mr. Mellen. Referring to the Grand Trunk case Mr. Ledyard said:

"I want to say in the most emphatic terms that Mr. Mellen did not go forward and offer himself as a vicarious sacrifice and take on himself the full responsibility in order to shield Mr Morgan. There was nothing like that.

"Mr. Mellen wrote his letters assuming responsibility at his own suggestion. He asked me if I thought it not a wise thing to do, and I told him I thought it was. The only things done that made any one subject to indictment, if they did, were done by Mr Mellen, and on his own showing Mr Morgan had done nothing."

Mr. Ledyard said Mr. Mellen admitted to him that he (Mellen) was responsible for everything in the Grand Trunk agreement and dictated a letter to the government officials to that effect.

Mr Ledyard took the stand voluntarily, was not sworn and waived all immunity, saying that he was glad to get an opportunity to appear and make his statement.

After relating that he was counsel for the American Express company in 1906 and 1907 he said that company held about 35,000 shares of stock of the Boston and Maine and that he represented the express company on the board of the railroad.

Denies Truth of Mellen Story.

"I am very careful about putting things in the record," said Mr. Ledyard. "Mr Mellen has substantially testified that what I was after was the contract to be extended by the Boston and Maine railroad from ten to twenty years, that he (Mr. Mellen) thought the terms the Boston and Maine received from the express company were inadequate and that I wanted to get the Boston and Maine contract extended for the American Express company before the New Haven came into control for fear that Mr. Mellen might object when they got control of the Boston and Maine.

"There is not a word of truth in that part of his testimony. If he wanted to testify to that effect he has testified to what is no true."

Mr. Ledyard then read a letter from Mr. Mellen in which it was indicated that what Mr. Ledyard was after was an extension of the contract so that it would lap over after the contract of the Adams Express company with the New Haven expired, so that the American would then be in position to take up negotiations with the New Haven.

Solicitor Folk during Mr. Mellen's testimony drew from Mr. Mellen the statement that the extension of this contract cost the New Haven after it acquired it something like $700,000 a year, as at that time the Adams company was paying the New Haven 45 per cent for the express privileges on the New Haven and the Boston and Maine contract called for only 35 per cent and the renewal for the same allowance. The contract was extended for a period of ten years.

AQUITANIA ARRIVES; MADE RECORD TIME

Ran Into Ice Field on Her Maiden Trip.

New York, June 5.—The new Cunarder Aquitania, the largest of the British merchantmen, arrived today. She has been making new records all the way across.

Her average day's run was 602 knots, averaging a speed of 24.24 knots an hour. The big liner ran into an ice field late Tuesday night and was obliged to proceed just under headway until she cleared the field. The run for the day consequently was reduced to 527 knots.

The Aquitania is a big sister ship of the Mauretania and the Lusitania. She is built along the same graceful lines that have made the older ships famous. It is in these yacht lines that the owners of the Aquitania place much faith. Transatlantic passages are no longer questions of days, but of hours. If a few hours can be clipped off the time elapsing between the embarking and disembarking of passengers it is considered an achievement well worth while.

It is possible that the Aquitania has wrested second place in point of length from the Imperator. When the great German ship first came here it was said that she was 919 feet long from the tip of the eagle's beak on her bow to the stern rail. But since then the eagle has been carried away by a storm and the bow has undergone reconstruction, which has reduced the ship's overall length considerably. The Aquitania is 901 feet long, making the two ships practically the same size except for the fact that the German vessel has a larger displacement by 3,000 tons. The Aquitania's gross tonnage is 47,000, her breadth is ninety-seven feet and her depth ninety-two feet six inches.

WIDOW SUES FOR $50,000 LEGACY

Legality of John R. Halsey's Marriage Involved.

EX-GOV. FORT HEARS CASE

If Woman's Claim Is Sustained She and Children Will Receive Half of $100,000 Estate Left by Isaac Halsey, Who Died at Madison in 1893.

Newark, N. J., June 5.—Ex-Governor J. Franklin Fort, sitting as advisory master in chancery, heard testimony in a suit involving the distribution of an estate of $100,000 left by Isaac Halsey, who died at Madison in 1893, leaving his property equally to two sons, Edmund D. and John R.

The suit is brought by John H. Bonsall, trustee of the estate, to determine whether Sarah Elizabeth Ferris was the lawful wife of John Halsey, West Point graduate and inventor, under the name of Clayton of Clayton's submarine steam torpedo battery. He died in 1902.

It is said that Mrs. Ferris was a servant in the family of Isaac Halsey when she married his son and that they were disowned for a time and lived under the name of Clayton in great hardship. In explaining her lack of documentary evidence of the marriage she said she had torn up her marriage certificate in a fit of anger.

Another point in the case is whether "Clayton" was really John R. Halsey. Papers were introduced which had been in possession of Mrs. Ferris to support this view. One was a drawing of the submarine with the name Halsey under the name of Clayton, and another was a letter relative to Halsey written by Gideon Welles, secretary of the navy during the civil war.

If Mrs. Ferris' claim is sustained she and her children will receive half of the estate. Otherwise under the terms of Isaac Halsey's will it all reverts to the children of Edmund Halsey.

SHE'S GRANDCHILD, NOT CHILD

Granddaughter May Receive Only One Legacy From Foster Father.

Newark, N. J., June 5.—Vice Chancellor Howell in an opinion filed bars Mrs. Jean Livingston Koch from inheriting under the will of her grandfather, William Rowland, as both daughter and granddaughter. At his death in July, 1911, Mr. Rowland left his residuary estate to his children and to the children of any deceased child. The estate amounts to approximately $2,000,000.

Mrs. Koch is a daughter of one of Mr. Koch's daughters, Mrs. Jennie R. Adrain, by Mrs. Adrain's first husband and was adopted by Mr. Rowland in her babyhood. The executors petitioned the court to decide whether Mrs. Koch was entitled to share with the testator's two other children and the children of a deceased son.

The vice chancellor says that Mrs. Koch is treated in the will in the same manner as all the other grandchildren. Mrs. Adrain is the widow of Robert Adrain, at one time state senator.

HURL JUNIORS INTO RIVER.

Girl Students Cheer Punishment of Creation Day Disturbers.

Trenton, N. J., June 5.—Trenton high school seniors, at their annual cremation exercises at Taylorsville, Pa., bound with a rope a dozen or more juniors and flung them bodily into the Delaware river, while fifty girl seniors looked on and cheered. The bound boys got out only after a struggle.

The parents of the students and the school authorities are highly indignant at the incident, and rigid investigations are promised.

The juniors, representing themselves as seniors, had stolen the special car the latter had engaged to take them to the scene, and the fight resulted.

Vreeland-Kearny Lumber Company Accuses Irvington Man In Warrant.

Newark, N. J., June 5.—A warrant was issued for the arrest of Harry A. Madden of Irvington on a charge of embezzlement. Frank Kearny of the Vreeland-Kearny Lumber company accused him of embezzling at least $4,000, while another member of the company says his alleged peculations may reach $20,000.

When the police went to the lumber company to make inquiries about him the firm members scouted the idea of irregularities. An examination of the books was completed recently, and the shortage was revealed.

NEGRO DROWNS IN DELAWARE

Falls From Derrick Near Cooper's Point Ferry, Camden.

Camden, N. J., June 5.—Harry Shaw, twenty-five years old, colored, of Woodbury, N. J., was drowned near Cooper's Point ferry, this city, when he fell from a derrick into the river. His body was recovered later with grappling irons. Efforts at revivification failed.

Shaw was working on a derrick used to pull floats in from the river. Just how he fell is not known. He sank almost immediately.

WHO ARE THE BEST DRAWING CARDS AT THE BASEBALL TURNSTILES TODAY?

Every little while there is a big discussion by baseball writers, fans and players as to whether Ty Cobb, the famous Detroit star, is entitled to a $15,000 salary annually on the plea that he draws this money at the gate for his employes. The question of drawing ability is one in which many baseball men have lately been giving attention .

Occasionally the opinion is expressed that nothing matters from the viewpoint of the box office but the winning of games. A team will draw if it is in the pennant race, and if it does not rank high it will never have a money look-in no matter haw many stars may be included in the roster.

The experience of the big leagues will hardly bear out this assertion. There have been pennant winning teams that were only fairly profitable. There have been clubs, on the contrary, that have been big winners financially in years when they never had a chance to pull down the flag.

There is no doubt that certain players draw the crowds. Naturally, the turn out is bigger if the team is in the race, this being particularly true when the team with the stars is playing at home. But on the road, where the hero is only an occasional visitor, the player in whom the public is interested will nearly always be a big enough feature to pack the pavilions.

Without going back into the misty past, it is possible to make up a team composed of one man from each position, whose potency in attracting the crowd meant big winnings to his club.

Limiting the proposition to the American and National Leagues within the last decade, the appended team shows men who were, or still are, immense drawing cards:

Pitcher—Rube Waddell.
Catcher—Roger Bresnahan.
First base—Hal Chase.
Second base—Napoleon Lajoie.
Third base—Frank Baker.
Shortstop—Hans Wagner.
Left field—Fred Clarke.
Center field—Ty Cobb.
Right field—Ed. Delahanty.

Rube Waddell, now dead, for instance, probably saved the Philadelphia American League club from failure. He came to the club in 1902, at a time when it was conceded to be in bad shape, and from that time on his great ability and his eccentricity about which thousands of columns were printed yearly in every American newspaper, caused him for a time to be the most talked of baseball player in the country.

In St. Louis and Chicago, when Waddell pitched a Sunday game, he was good for a 30 000 crowd at any time.

Of present day league pitchers, the greatest drawing cards are probably Christy Mathewson and Walter Johnson.

Bresnanan is nere given the place among catchers, although by reason of being an Indian, Chief Meyers, of the Gianis, also attracts the multitude.

Frank Chance, Jake Daubert and Hal Chase are the big magnets among the first basemen. Preference is here given to Hal Chase because he is the more sensational, though there can harly be any doubt that Daubert is the more valuable man to the team. But Chase, with his lightning lefthand throws, demonstrated new possibilities in the position, and though he is now playing second base, will also be a card because of the work he did at the other bag.

Frank Baker, though an admitted star, did not become a big winner of the crowds until he made his fame in the world's series of 1911, by the two home runs that put the Giants out of the series. Since that time he has been one of the most followed players .

No one can dispute Wagner's supremacy as a popular magnet among the shortstops. Thousands on thousands of dollars have been poured into Pittsburg coffers by fans who wanted to see him play, and the interest was not alone in his proficiency, but in the marvel that a man of his huge build could be possessed of such extraordinary agility.

Fred Clarke has also pulled the public. During his days at Louisville, when the team was down in the race, it was said that the only reason crowds went to the ball field was to see Clarke play.

Only Ty Cobbs name need be mentioned in connection with centre field. In addition to being, perhaps, the greatest player in the history of the game, he is undoubtedly the greatest drawing crowd.

Ed Delahanty, now dead, was a wonderful magnet during his days with the Pniladelphia Nationals and Washington Americans. His popularity was based on his slashing hitting ability.

NOTICE OF CHANGE IN LAW FOR SHOOTING RICEBIRDS

Washington, June 5—Notices have been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture calling attention to a proposed amendment in the federal regulations for the protection of migratory, insectivorous birds. Under this new rule, reed or rice birds can be shot in September and October in the States of New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia and South Carolina. The law requires three months' notice of this change. If it is decided to adopt it, the rule will be officially promulgated at the end of that time and will go into effect September 1 next.

The effect of this change will be to extend to sportsmen in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware the privilege of shooting the birds during a period of two months. This they can now do in Maryland and the District of Columbia, Virginia and South Carolina. Since the season is so short, it is not believed that the birds will suffer appreciably in numbers.

In the late summer and early fall the birds migrate to the far South. They are regarded in the States where they can now be shot as offering good sport.

LOCAL FANS WILL GO TO WESTFIELD

Plainfield Rets to Take on Their Old Rivals Tomorrow Afternoon.

Not since the days of Charlie Denman has interest been so apparent in a semi-professional baseball clash between Westfield and Plainfield—two of the oldest diamond rivals in Central New Jersey—as it is over tomorrow's big game on the Mt. Ararat field. A large delegation of fans from this city will make the trip to Westfield to witness the encounter and the match will probably be one of the best staged in this vicinity this season.

Plainfield will send "Hank" Mathewson, a brother of the wonderful Christy, to the mound, and Cowperwaithe, a star Williams College hurler, will do the box work for the Westfield clan. Both aggregations are considerably bolstered over last week's array for this contest and the fans will be treated to some real baseball.

Cowperwaithe is well known as a strike-out pitcher, having established a fine record for himself against Garwood last week.

The teams will lineup as follows:

VANVLECK THE GOLFING STAR OF JERSEY MEET

Charles Van Vleck, Jr., of Baltusrol, led a field of eighty-four starters yesterday in the qualifying round of the annual tournament of the New Jersey Golf Association, over the Morris County Club's links, by the surprising margin of five strokes. He did a 75 in the cold, driving rain that made the conditions the worst that can be remembered in the event. William T. Glenney, of this city, turned in a card of 47, 44-91; J. N. Sterns, of Somerville, turned in 43, 44-87; C. B. Wilcox, of Westfield, had 45, 49-94; R. S. Rowland, Plainfield, 44, 51-95; and G. S. Wheeler, of Plainfield, had a score of 56, 51-107.

The pairing resulted in the playing of C. B. Wilcox, of Westfield, and R. S. Rowland, of this city, as opponents in the fourth sixteen. Because of the storm's delay it was decided to make the finals in the third and fourth sixteens at eighteen holes instead of thirty-six so the first round of match play therein was not begun this morning. They could not have finished before dark.

LOCAL WOMEN ON WINNING SIDE IN TRI-CITY MEET

Mrs. H. R. Stockton, of the Plainfield Country Club, defeated Miss J. F. Duncan, of Braeburn, 2 up and 1 to play, in the match play round in the morning singles of the competition between the Boston and New York women over the links of the Greenwich, Conn., Country Club yesterday. The event was held in connection with the annual tricity matches for the Lesley Cup. Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, of this city, was defeated by Miss Fannie C. Osgood, of Woolaston, 4 up and 3 to play. Mrs. Rogers was competing under the colors of the Baltusrol Club.

The team scores returned were Miss Bishop and Mrs. Stockton, (1), Miss Stratton and Mrs. Rogers (1), by default. Both of the local women were on the New York team. The Gothamites won by a count of 11 to 10.

ROD AND REEL

Codling, whiting and fluke are being taken by fishermen on Dreamland Pier, Coney Island, in big numbers just at present.

The Belgrade Lakes, in Maine, have always been a favorite resort for Jersey anglers and trout, and big ones are biting there now.

A resident of Belmar while fishing near Shark river inlet the latter part of last week caught a twelve-pound striped bass. The news spread and caused a number of surf fishermen to gather along the shore Sunday, but they didnt pick up any.

A few kingfish were caught from the Long Branch fishing pier Sunday. Sea flounders, ling and whiting are in there now, and the large schools of kingfish are looked for any day from now on.

There are fully a dozen rowboats on the Passaic river at Pine Brook. Perch, pickerel and catfish are biting very well at that point, and good bass fishing is expected after June 15.

The property owners on Culver's lake are looking forward to some fine black bass fishing when the season opens. Men who work around the lake say they never saw such signs of bass as they have this spring.

The use of deer fat, rubbed well into a line used in fresh water casting, has not been taken up in this section of the country, due, probably, to the scarcity of that particular fat, as well as to the fact that eastern anglers use a silk ore enameled line. In the trout streams of that section of the country that lies in the northwest, deer fat is used on the lines because they are very heavy and, if water soaked, anchor the bait to the bottom. The eastern angler is an expert on light tackle, but deer fat in the fishing kit would frequently come in handy. The only time this is obtainable is during the hunting season, and then it can be tried out and bottled for future use on lines or flies.

Trout fishermen of the far West have used salmon eggs as bait for years, and with wonderful success. The eggs are as large as a pea, deep red in color and stick to the hook like glue. By the time our readers see this we expect to be trying these eggs on the foxy trout of Warren county, and if they prove as good as the Westerners claim, we will let our friends in on the secret.

The Board of Fish and Game Commissioners are preparing to distribute English pheasants throughout Morris, Sussex, Hunterdon and Warren counties for stocking purposes. The first distribution will take place June 15, and the wardens will be busy until July 1 under the supervision of Protector James Stratton. This work is months behind time, due to the fact that the blizzard in March caused the death of hundreds of pheasants at the Forked River game farm, while as many more got away from their cages and could not be trapped again. In all 1,000 birds were lost and the wings of 1,500 others were clipped to keep them within bounds. The commissioners have held them in order that the wings might grow out again. This accounts for the applicants made to the commission for English pheasants not being filled.

BOYS WILL PLAY GIRLS IN THIS BASEBALL GAME

The Junior Endeavor Society, of the Congregational church, will hold an athletic meet at Randolph field, West Seventh street, beyond Monroe avenue, tomorrow afternoon, at 3:00. It will open with a three-inning baseball game between the boys and the girls.

The other events will include: Running high and broad jumps, 100 yard dash, potato race, sack race, three-legged race, obstacle race and nail-driving contest. Each Junior should bring a hammer and a piece of soft wood board about a foot in length. Lemonade and candy will be on sale.

BOUND BROOK AT BRUNSWICK.

A ten-man golf match between the New Brunswick Country Club and the Bound Brook Golf Club has been arranged to be played on the links of the former club on next Saturday afternoon. This will be the second team match for the Brunswick golf-ville Club. The Somerville Club lined up a great aggregation against the New Brunswicks in that match. The match Saturday promises some good golf.

OFFICIAL EVENTS FOR PARKER FIELD MEET

List to Be Contested Announced This Morning by Those in Charge.

Entry blanks for the first annual athletic meet to be held under the auspices of the Board of Playground Commissioners on Parker Field, July 4, were circulated today and copies of the blanks have been sent to all of the leading athletic clubs in the country. Advertised as "the fastest quarter mile track in the vicinity of New York," the Parker Field circuit will probably be run over by some of the cracks of the metropolitan district and it is expected that a majority of the larger clubs will be represented here on Independence Day.

The affair is a sanctioned A. A. U. meet and the events are as follows: 100 yard dash (novice), 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 880 yard run, (novice), one-mile run, (annual Ritz cup), medley relay race, (clubs or organizations), broad jump, pole vault, 880 yard run and javelin throw. A feature of the excellent program will be the concluding number, a five mile road race to start and finish at Parker Field.

Remunerative prizes are offered as awards in each event. Handsome silver loving cups with gold lining will be given as first, second and third prizes in all events with the exception of the five-mile run and medley rela race. The first place trophies are eleven inches tall and will be placed on exhibition in a local window prior to the meet. Cups of the same pattern about nine and seven inches tall will be given as second and third prizes. The Ritz cup, to be given for first place in the mile run, is a handsome award and is at present on exhibition in the concern's window. The Board of Trade cup, a mammoth silver trophy, is offered for first place in the five-mile run. Members of the winning relay team will get cups. Entries close Saturday, June 27, with George W. Wriston, 515 East Seventh street, and John Fritts, 919 West Fifth street.

STAR ATTRACTION ON PARKER FIELD

Royal A. C. and Saurer Teams Will Meet for the Second Time This Year.

The Saurer and Royal A. C. teams, both of this city, will appear in their second engagement of the season on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon. This will be the leading attraction in local baseball circles, the Plainfield team going to Westfield for a game with the team of that place, thus leaving Parker Field open to amateur aggregations.

The first contest was won by the Saurer contingent and the colored youths have organized a strong combination to go after the second verdict. The teams will take the field as follows:

Saurer—Harriman, 3b; Bergen, c; Martin, 2b; Jaeger, ss; Hendry or Garretson, 1b; Alberts, rf; Wilson, cf; Miller, lf; Conshay or Dixon, p.

Royals—Williams, ss; Ford, 1b; Banks, 2b; Kline, p or lf; Valentine, p or 3b; Washington, c; Maiden, lf; Coleman, cf; Carter or Barnes, rf; Hall, p; McClain and Johnson, subs.

FRITTS AND RUNYON IN JUNIOR CHAMPS

Plainfield Boys Enter Metropolitan Events to Be Held at Celtic Park.

Ralph Runyon, the Plainfield High School athlete, has entered the Metropolitan junior championships to be contested at Celtic Park Saturday, afternoon June 20. He will represent the Pastime A .C., of New York, together with Jack Fritts, also of this city, who will go after the javelin record.

Young Runyon will try for the junior title in the pole vault and those who have been following his work in the many interscholastic meets during the past winter look forward to seeing him cop the record on this occasion. The events will be run off a: the home of the Irish-American A. C. and junior champs annually bring out one of the largest fields of athletes.

Fritts has entered the javelin throw, an event comparatively new to him, but one in which he promises to develope into a star. Both of the youngsters have been practising regularly on Parker Field for the events.

WHEELMEN ORGANIZE A QUEEN CITY CLUB

Interest Manifested in Proposition to Further Interest in the Sport Here.

A number of local pedal pushers got together in George Simon's bicycle store on North avenue last night and organized a bike club to be known as the Queen City Wheelmen and the following officers were elected: President, George L. Simon; vice-president, Eddie Simon; secretary, Alexander Campbell; treasurer, W. H. Southard; road captain, William Simon.

Eleven pedal pushers annexed their signature to the role of charter members and it is expected that the roster will be swelled by more than twice that number at the next meeting. The initial road run of the organization will be conducted to the Vailsburg bicycle track in Newark next Sunday afternoon, leaving Plainfield at 12:45.

The object of the club is to further interest in cycling and enrolled in the organization are some of the best and most prominent pedal pushers in this city. The eleven members are all enthusiastic over the project and are planning for an active season. Several of the organizers are former Plainfield Cycling Club members but that club has gradually died away until it is now practically extinct, only four members remaining.

TRIAL OF MILLION DOLLAR SUIT

Michigan City, Ind., June 5.—The million dollar suit brought by Mrs. Drusilla Carr against the estate of Congressman Robert R. Hitt, of Illinois, and others, was called for trial in the Laporte Circuit Court here today. The case involves the question of squatter's right to land along Lake Michigan. In the seventies Mrs. Carr and her husband, who has since died, became squatters on land at Miller beach. For many years they occupied the land undisturbed. Later the land was claimed by the defendants and the squatters were dispossessed. Mrs. Carr then brought suit for recovery.

TWO DAINTY AND ATTRACTIVE DESIGNS FOR EMBROIDERING COLLARS

A season-old blouse can be quickly transformed with the aid of a dainty collar, such as these shown here. A collar plays a very important part in one's wardrobe, as often, by changing the style of collar worn with a blouse or dress, it gives an entirely new appearance to the garment, thus allowing it a new lease of life. As these collars are worn the year round one can not have too many.

Pattern 14670 contains a simple design for a collar, cuffs, revers and tabs for a simulated vest or pocket flaps. These may be used together or the collar and cuffs may be used alone, if preferred. This design should be stamped on fine handkerchief linen, lawn, batiste or organdie and embroidered in solid work and eyelets. Particularly suitable is this design for wear with a blouse of crêpe de Chine, fine handkerchief linen, crêpe or some of the fancy lingerie materials. 10 cents.

Equally charming is the attractive collar with revers, No. 14668, and quite different in the shape of both the collar and revers. This collar is straight across the back while the other is pointed It is suitable for wear with a blouse, dress or coat, and should be made of thin sheer material. A touch of color may be introduced into the embroidery of this pattern, or it may be developed entirely in white. If desired, the collar, cuffs and revers may be finished with a narrow edging of Valenciennes or Cluny lace. Very fine mercerized cotton should be used for embroidering both of these designs, and the solid work should be firmly padded. 15 cents.

Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer patterns will be supplied to readers upon receipt of price.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

It is quite remarkable to note the extreme simplicity of children's garments this season. There is not a single feature on frock or suit to make it uncomfortable or interfere with freedom of movement. In this design, No. 8347, we have a slip-on kimono dress with elbow sleeves and a square or round neck. The low hung belt may be omitted entirely if preferred, and the sleeves be left entirely plain. This dress is suited to any of the cottons, light linens or serge. It is quite a fad to make up this style of garment in a dark serge for playtime wear, while it is quite as cool as cotton or linen, it does not soil as quickly which means a great deal in summer; it will also be found convenient for chill damp days which are bound to occur even in the middle of summer. For a child of four, this dress requires 1¾ yards of 36-inch material. The pattern comes in nine sizes, ½ years to 12 years.

This is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, passing the tape around the fullest part of the breast, well up under the arms.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

INDIVIDUAL STRAWBERRY PASTRIES.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Tomato Bouillon. Crackers.
Italian Macaroni.
Cold Sliced Mutton.
Pickled Peaches.
Strawberry Biscuit. Cream.
Tea.

INDIVIDUAL desserts are always popular. The pastries in which strawberries feature may be successfully prepared in this way.

With Whipped Cream.

Strawberry Biscuits.—Make a rich biscuit dough and bake in gem pans until light and golden browned. Cut a circle from the top of each, remove the soft interior and fill the centers with sliced strawberries and whipped cream. Return the top to each biscuit and serve at once.

Junior Strawberry Shortcakes.—These little pastries are made like biscuit and slightly sweetened. Roll the dough an inch thick, cut in diamonds, squares or circles and bake in a hot oven. When done break open, butter and put between them mashed and sweetened berries. Put on top of each shortcake some of the mashed berries with one or two large berries cut in halves sprinkled with powdered sugar. Top each with a spoonful of whipped cream.

Served With Sauce.

Strawberry Cups.—Take one pint of flour, mix well with two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a little salt. Make into a dough with about one cupful of milk. Put a spoonful of the dough into well buttered cups, then a spoonful of strawberries, then another of dough. Steam for twenty minutes. Turn out on a platter and serve with sauce prepared as follows:

Sauce.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add gradually one cupful of powdered sugar and a little lemon juice. Beat in as many crushed berries as mixture will take. Serve cold, or melt over hot water and serve hot.

Quickly Made Desserts.

Strawberry Puffs.—Cream puffs and eclairs filled with crushed and sweetened strawberries instead of the usual cream are delicious. Into a granite saucepan put one cupful of water or milk, one scant half cupful of butter and boil. Then add one cupful of flour, stirring continually, and cook two minutes. By this time it should be smooth and velvety. Remove from fire, and, when cool, beat in four eggs, one at a time. Beat ten to twenty minutes; then drop by spoonfuls upon buttered tins and bake in a hot oven for twenty minutes. While still warm, coat with strawberry icing made by adding strawberry juice to a cupful of powdered or confectioner's sugar to make a fine icing. When cold, cut open and fill with crushed and sweetened strawberries.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Wise Weather Prophet Tortoise.

The Tortoises Had to Stand It.

IT had been raining all day, and daddy thought he had a most appropriate story to tell the children.

"There was once a tortoise who hated rainstorms," daddy began. "He said to his family:

"'I suppose we must have rain, but still it does seem a nuisance,' which is often what many real people say.

"When he saw that it was going to rain during the day he would get all his family to follow him to a special place he had where there were a lot of sheltering rocks.

"One day the sun was out, and there didn't seem to be the slightest chance of its raining. But the old tortoise was a fine weather prophet. He said to his family, 'It is going to rain today.'

"It certainly didn't look like it, and his family told him he really was absurd on the subject of the weather.

"He tried to tell them that they were very far from shelter of any sort and that it would be a good thing to be near where they could be protected if the rain did come down.

"But they wouldn't budge, and he stayed with them.

"An hour passed, and the sun still was shining brightly, and the heavens looked bright and clear.

"The rest of the old tortoise's family told him that he was a gloomy old thing and was always looking on the dark side of life.

"But another ten minutes had not passed when a huge big black cloud appeared up in the sky.

"The tortoise family looked at it and then looked at the old tortoise to see what he would say.

"But he didn't say anything. He just looked the picture of despair, and in a few minutes down came the rain.

"There was not a place near by where they could get shelter. All was absolutely open.

"The whole tortoise family hated the rain just as much as the old tortoise did, and they were the most miserable of creatures.

"They just had to stand it all, and then they told the old tortoise how sorry they were that they hadn't taken his advice and had made him suffer, too, on account of the storm.

"Sadly the old tortoise shook his head.

"'I won't reproach any of you this time,' said he, 'only remember another time, no matter how brightly the sun is shining, to come with me near to a place where we will not have to be poured on in this manner.'

"And the rest of the tortoise family said: 'We will! Indeed we will!'"

THE FALL OF THE HOUSE OF USHER

By Edgar Allan Poe

EDGAR ALLAN POE

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. The choice of Gouverneur Morris was "The Fall of the House of Usher," by Edgar Allan Poe, who won world renown as a short story writer.

GOUVERNEUR MORRIS

PART II.

ONE evening, having informed me abruptly that the Lady Madeline was no more, he stated his intention of preserving her corpse for a fortnight, previously to its final interment, in one of the numerous vaults within the main walls of the building. The brother had been led to his resolution (so he told me) by consideration of the unusual character of the malady of the deceased, of certain obtrusive and eager inquiries on the part of her medical man and of the remote and exposed situation of the burial ground of the family. I will not deny that when I called to mind the sinister countenance of the person whom I met upon the staircase on the day of my arrival at the house I had no desire to oppose what I regarded as, at best, but a harmless and by no means an unnatural precaution.

At the request of Usher, I personally aided him in the arrangements for the temporary entombment. The body having been encoffined, we two alone bore it to its rest. The vault in which we placed it was small, damp and entirely without means of admission for light, lying at great depth immediately beneath that portion of the building in which was my own sleeping apartment. It had been used apparently in remote feudal times for the worst purposes of a donjon keep and in later days as a place of deposit for powder or some other highly combustible substance, as a portion of its floor and the whole interior of a long archway through which we reached it were carefully sheated with copper. The door, of massive iron, had been also similarly protected. Its immense weight caused an unusually sharp grating sound as it moved upon its hinges.

Having deposited our mournful burden upon trestles within this region of horror, we partially turned aside the yet unscrewed lid of the coffin and looked upon the face of the tenant. A striking similitude between the brother and sister now first arrested my attention, and Usher, divining perhaps my thoughts, murmured out some few words, from which I learned that the deceased and himself had been twins and that sympathies of a scarcely intelligible nature had always existed between them. Our glances rested not long upon the dead, for we could not regard her unawed. There was a faint blush upon the bosom and the face, with that suspiciously lingering smile upon the lip which is so terrible in death. We replaced and screwed down the lid and secured the door of iron.

And now, some days of bitter grief having elapsed, an observable change came over the features of the mental disorder of my friend. His ordinary manner had vanished. His ordinary occupations were neglected or forgotten. He roamed from chamber to chamber with hurried, unequal and objectless step. The pallor of his countenance had assumed if possible a more ghastly hue, but the luminousness of his eye had utterly gone out. The once occasional huskiness of his tone was heard no more, and a tremulous quaver, as if of extreme terror, habitually characterized his utterance. I felt creeping upon me by slow yet certain degrees the wild influences of his own fantastic yet impressive superstitions.

It was especially upon retiring to bed late in the night of the seventh or eighth day after the placing of the Lady Madeline within the donjon that I experienced the full power of such feelings. Sleep came not near my couch, while the hours waned and waned away. I struggled to reason off the nervousness which had dominion over me. I endeavored to believe that much, if not all of what I felt, was due to the bewildering influence of the gloomy furniture of the room—of the dark and tattered draperies which, tortured into motion by the breath of a rising tempest, swayed fitfully to and fro upon the walls and rustled uneasily about the decorations of the bed. But my efforts were fruitless. An irrepressible tremor gradually pervaded my frame, and at length there sat upon my very heart an incubus of utterly causeless alarm. Shaking this off with a gasp and a struggle I uplifted myself upon the pillows, and, peering earnestly within the intense darkness of the chamber, hearkened—I know not why, except that an instinctive spirit prompted me—to certain low and indefinite sounds which came through the pauses of the storm at long intervals, I knew not whence. Overpowered by an intense sentiment of horror, unaccountable yet unendurable, I threw on my clothes with haste, for I felt that I should sleep no more during the night, and endeavored to arouse myself from the pitiable condition in which I had fallen by pacing rapidly to and fro through the apartment.

I had taken but few turns in this manner when a light step on an adjoining staircase arrested my attention. I presently recognized it as that of Usher. In an instant afterward he rapped with a gentle touch at my door and entered, bearing a lamp. His countenance was, as usual, cadaverously wan; but, moreover, there was a species of mad hilarity in his eyes, an evidently restrained hysteria in his whole demeanor. His air appalled me, but anything was preferable to the solitude which I had so long endured.

"And you have not seen it?" he said abruptly after having stared about him for some moments in silence—"you have not then seen it? But stay! You shall." Thus speaking and having carefully shaded his lamp, he hurried to one of the casements and threw it freely open to the storm.

The impetuous fury of the entering gust nearly lifted us from our feet. It was, indeed, a tempestuous yet sternly beautiful night, and one wildly singular in its terror and its beauty. A whirlwind had apparently collected its force in our vicinity, for there were frequent and violent alterations in the direction of the wind, and the exceeding density of the clouds (which hung so low as to press upon the turrets of the house) did not prevent our perceiving the lifelike velocity with which they flew careering from all points against each other, without passing away into the distance. I say that even their exceeding density did not prevent our perceiving this. Yet we had no glimpse of the moon or stars nor was there any flashing forth of the lightning. But the under surfaces of the huge masses of agitated vapor, as well as all terrestrial objects immediately around us, were glowing in the unnatural light of a faintly luminous and distinctly visible gaseous exhalation which enshrouded the mansion.

"You must not—you shall not behold this!" said I shudderingly to Usher as I led him, with a gentle violence, from the window to a seat. "These appearances which bewilder you are merely electrical phenomena not uncommon, or it may be that they have their ghastly origin in the rank miasma of the tarn. Let us close this casement. The air is chilling and dangerous to your frame. Here is one of your favorite romances. I will read, and you shall listen, and so we will pass away this terrible night together."

The antique volume which I had taken up was the "Mad Trist" of Sir Launcelot Canning, but I had called it a favorite of Usher's more in sad jest than in earnest, for, in truth, there is little in its uncouth and unimaginative prolixity which could have had interest for the lofty and spiritual ideality of my friend. It was, however, the only book immediately at hand.

I had arrived at that well known portion of the story where Ethelred, the hero of the trist, having sought in vain for peaceable admission into the dwelling of the hermit, proceeds to make good an entrance by force. Here, it will be remembered, the words of the narrative run thus:

"And Ethelred, who was by nature of a doughty heart and who was now mighty withal on account of the powerfulness of the wine which he had drunken, waited no longer to parley with the hermit, who, in sooth, was of an obstinate and maliceful turn, but, feeling the rain upon his shoulders and fearing the rising of the tempest, uplifted his mace outright and with blows made quickly room in the plankings of the door for his gauntleted hand, and now, pulling therewith sturdily, he so cracked and ripped and tore all asunder that the noise of the dry and hollow sounding wood alarummed and reverberated throughout the forest."

At the termination of this sentence I started, and for a moment paused, for it appeared to me (although I at once concluded that my excited fancy had deceived me) that from some very remote portion of the mansion there came indistinctly to my ears what might have been in its exact similarity of character, the echo (but a stifled and dull one certainly) of the very cracking and ripping sound which Sir Launcelot had so particularly described. I continued the story:

"But the good champion Ethelred, now entering within the door, was sore enraged and amazed to perceive no signal of the maliceful hermit; but, in the stead thereof, a dragon of a scaly and prodigious demeanor, and of a fiery tongue, which sate in guard before a palace of gold, with a floor of silver, and upon the wall there hung a shield of shining brass with this legend enwritten:

Who entereth herein a conqueror hath bin:
Who slayeth the dragon, the shield he shall win.

And Ethelred uplifted his mace and struck upon the head of the dragon, which fell before him and gave up his pesty breath, with a shriek so horrid and harsh and withal so piercing that Ethelred had fain to close his ears with his hands against the dreadful noise of it, the like whereof was never before heard."

Here again I paused abruptly, and now with a feeling of wild amazement, for there could be no doubt whatever that in this instance I did actually hear, although from what direction it proceeded I found it impossible to say, a low and apparently distant, but harsh, protracted and most unusual screaming or grating sound—the exact counterpart of what my fancy had already conjured up for the dragon's unnatural shriek.

Oppressed, as I certainly was, upon the occurrence of this second and most extraordinary coincidence by a thousand conflicting sensations, in which wonder and extreme terror were predominant, I still retained sufficient presence of mind to avoid exciting by any observation the sensitive nervousness of my companion. I was by no means certain that he had noticed the sounds in question, although assuredly a strange alteration had during the last few minutes taken place in his demeanor. From a position fronting my own he had gradually brought around his chair so as to sit with his face to the door of the chamber, and thus I could but partially perceive his features, although I saw that his lips trembled, as if he were murmuring inaudibly. His head had dropped upon his breast, yet I knew that he was not asleep from the wide and rigid opening of the eye as I caught a glance of it in profile. The motion of his body, too, was at variance with this idea, for he rocked from side to side with a gentle yet constant and uniform sway. I resumed the narrative:

"And now the champion, having escaped from the terrible fury of the dragon, bethinking himself of the brazen shield and of the breaking up of the enchantment which was upon it, removed the carcass from out of the way before him and approached valorously over the silver pavement of the castle to where the shield was upon the wall, which in sooth tarried not for his full coming, but fell down at his feet upon the silver floor with a mighty great and terrible ringing sound."

No sooner had these syllables passed my lips than, as if a shield of brass had indeed at the moment fallen heavily upon a floor of silver, I became aware of a distinct, hollow, metallic and clangorous yet apparently muffled reverberation. Completely unnerved, I leaped to my feet, but the measured rocking movement of Usher was undisturbed. I rushed to the chair in which he sat. His eyes were bent fixedly before him and throughout his whole countenance there reigned a stony rigidity. But as I placed my hand upon his shoulder there came a strong shudder over his whole person, a sickly smile quivered about his lips, and I saw that he spoke a low, hurried and gibbering murmur, as if unconscious of my presence. Bending closely over him, I at length drank in the hideous import of his words.

"Not hear it? Yes, I hear it and have heard it. Long, long, long, many minutes, many hours, many days have I heard it, yet I dared not—oh, pity me, miserable wretch that I am—I dared not—dared not speak. We have put her living in the tomb! Said I not that my senses were acute? I now tell you that I heard her first feeble movement in the hollow coffin. I heard them—many, many days ago—yet I dared not—I dared not speak! And now, tonight, Ethelred—ha, ha!—the breaking of the hermit's door and the death cry of the dragon and the clangor of the shield—say, rather, the rending of her coffin—and the grating of the iron hinges of her prison and her struggles within the coppered archway of the vault! Oh, whither shall I fly? Will she not be here anon? Is she not hurrying to upbraid me for my haste? Have I not heard her footstep on the stair? Do I not distinguish that heavy and horrible beating of her heart? Madman!"—here he sprang furiously to his feet and shrieked out his syllables as if in the effort he were giving up his soul—"Madman! I tell you that she now stands without the door!"

As if in the superhuman energy of his utterance there had been found the potency of a spell, the huge antique panels to which the speaker pointed threw slowly back upon the instant their ponderous and ebony jaws. It was the work of the rushing gust. But, then, without those doors there did stand the lofty and enshrouded figure of the Lady Madeline of Usher. There was blood upon her white robes and the evidence of some bitter struggle upon every portion of her emaciated frame. For a moment she remained trembling and reeling to and fro upon the threshold; then, with a low, moaning cry, fell heavily inward upon the person of her brother and, in her violent and now final death agonies, bore him to the floor a corpse and a victim to the terrors he had anticipated.

From that chamber and from that mansion I fled aghast. The storm was still abroad in all its wrath as I found myself crossing the old causeway. Suddenly there shot along the path a wild light, and I turned to see whence a gleam so unusual could have issued, for the vast house and its shadows were alone behind me. The radiance was that of the full, setting and blood red moon, which now shone vividly through that once barely discernible fissure of which I have before spoken as extending from the roof of the building in a zigzag direction to the base. While I gazed this fissure rapidly widened, there came a fierce breath of the whirlwind, the entire orb of the satellite burst at once upon my sight, my brain reeled as I saw the mighty walls rushing asunder, there was a long, tumultuous shouting sound like the voice of a thousand waters, and the deep and dank tarn at my feet closed sullenly and silently over the fragments of the "House of Usher."

BARS BOUND BROOK MAN.

Bound Brook, June 5—Ernest Miller, of South Bound Brook, an engineer employed by the American Engine and Electric Company, of this place, was denied admission to Canada by Canadian officials while on his way to Dannaconno, Quebec, where he was going to work on an engine, which he had recently installed. Miller left for Canada Monday night and when he arrived at the border inspectors demanded that he show his citizenship papers. He explained he did not have them on his person. When he was unable to produce $50 a ticket to Albany was handed him, and despite his explanations that he had made previous trips to the Dominion, and produced a memorandum book showing the dates on which he had made these visits, the officials gave him no alternative other than to make the return trip.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which irritates and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adv.

INDIAN LEGEND PLEASES MANY Fourth Annual Presentation of Story of Watchung Settlement Ably Given.

BIG AUDIENCE PRESENT

W. de LaR. Anderson as "One Feather," Leading Man, and Other Residents of Village Take Parts Capably.

Dramatized in pantomime from a story handed down by an old settler of the Watchung mountain region, the yearly presentation of the Legend of Watchung, with its kaleidoscopic setting, was viewed by one of the largest audiences ever entertained in the amphi-theatre on the mountainside last night. The fourth annual presentation was given in the unique and appropriate spot where its predecessors have proven such remarkable drawing cards for interested spectators from all portions of the State, and there were many in last night's audience who had been attracted to the scene out of pure curiosity, so widely has the calibre of the production been heralded throughout the country.

The tribe of Watchung braves performed their characteristic war dances and respective parts on a rocky slope bordered on every side by vegetation that has frequented the spot since the days of the original redskin. A unique setting of seats on a bank directly opposite the natural stage, separated from the players only by a flowing stream of water were crowded when the opening lights were turned on. Electrical effects served as a curtain and the disappearance of the Indians and Whites into remote portions of the hills formed an exit that would be hard to duplicate.

William de LaR. Anderson, the author of the play, took the principal part, that of "One Feather," the chief of the Watchung Indians, and appeared as a genuine product of the redskin race when he assembled his tribe in camp on the banks of the mountain stream and proposed there to make his headquarters for the annual hunting and fishing expedition. His plans were brought to an abrupt end, however, by startling information advanced by Edward Bodin, as the scout, who informed the chief that an armed band of Whites from the German Valley was close at hand.

A crafty plan for entrapping the Whites was laid by the Indian chief and Bodin went forth to light the signal fire, but was discovered and fired upon by one who acted as an advance guard for the Whites. Bodin, the scout, grappled with the White man on the top of the tall Watchung cliff and finally succeeded in tossing the German's body over the cliff, dashing him to death on the rocks below much to the horror of the spectators. So real did the ragged rocks by the Indian appear, that many thought the White man really lost his balance and had fallen over the edge of the rocks, and shrieks of horror went up from the fair sex present.

"One Feather" and his men finally succeeded in subduing the Whites and in grand council assembled the lands were then divided, the Whites the west and the Indians the east, and "One Feather" and "Wetumpka," with whom he had fallen deeply in love, met again, as fate would have it, and without which no story would be replete, and were joined in Indian wedlock.

The following was the cast:

BADGER TO STOP HUERTA GUNBOATS

Force May Be Used Against Antilla, Which Left New York With Arms.

DELEGATES PROTEST

Complain to Mexico City Because This Government Did Not Prevent the Shipment—Another Vessel Lands Ammunition Unopposed.

Washington, June 6.—Important developments in the Mexican situation, it can be stated authoritatively, are expected by officials at once. These developments are looked for at Vera Cruz or Tampico and evidently relate to the cargo of arms which the Ward liner Antilla took away from New York Tuesday for delivery to the rebels at Tampico.

The navy department is understood to have information that the three gunboats of General Huerta will probably move up the coast to intercept the Antilla, and the belief here is that they will be stopped by the United States warships off Vera Cruz or near Tampico.

Since the departure of the Antilla care has been taken to ascertain her exact speed so that the hour of her arrival at Tampico could be foretold with certainty. Admiral Badger was instructed to watch the federal gunboats at Puerto Mexico and Alvaredo that might be expected to enforce General Huerta's proclaimed blockade of Tampico.

Admiral Badger's instructions were emphasized by an order telling him to watch the Huerta vessels with predominant forces. That is being done, and there is every indication that force will be used if necessary to prevent the interception of the Antilla.

Embarrassment Increased.

The embarrassment caused by the sailing of the Antilla from New York has been increased by the apparently authentic report that the American steamship Sunshine from Galveston landed a cargo of arms for the Constitutionalists at Tampico without opposition.

Mr. Bryan said that such shipments from the United States were contrary to the understanding with the mediators and had, in fact, been prohibited by orders issued to port officials of the United States. From what Mr. Bryan said it appeared that the clearance of arms from American ports was indirectly a violation of the informal armistice with General Huerta, which was a condition of precedent to the conference at Niagara Falls.

According to Mr. Bryan, the mediators made no inquiry or protest on the subject. He also denied a report from Niagara Falls that the Huerta delegates, through Senor Riano, the Spanish ambassador here, had protested against the alleged violation of the armistice in permitting the Antilla to sail.

Officials here avoid all discussion of the landing of arms from the Sunshine which might give cumulative significance to the sailing of the Antilla. Nothing was volunteered on the subject by Mr. Bryan when he was asked about the Mexican situation. Later when the direct question was presented to the navy department, "Has the Sunshine landed her arms?" the answer was a request that the question be not asked and that the incident be "let go at that."

The ammunition carried on the Sunshine is thought to have been the same that was prevented by army and customs officials from crossing the border into Mexico. Most of these arms, which were held up, were taken direct to Galveston, awaiting the fall of Tampico.

What particularly interests Washington is the effect any use of force against the Huerta gunboats by American warships may have on the armistice with General Huerta and the continuance of the peace conference at Niagara Falls.

These phases of the situation explain the gradual dwindling of optimism regarding the success of mediation. This diminution of confidence is reflected from every point of contact with the Mexican problem. From Durango General Carranza continued to taunt the United States and the mediators with the unwisdom of the course so far pursued toward Mexico.

ARREST NEWARKER HERE.

Clark Wilson, of 96 Manning avenue, the borough, was placed under arrest in North Plainfield under a warrant sworn out in Newark by his wife. Wilson and his wife have experienced martial troubles. Mrs. Wilson went to Newark to live with her mother, Wilson contributing to her support from time to time. Recently, on visiting his wife, Wilson it is said, found her in company with another man, and is alleged to have threatened the life of Mrs. Wilson. Rev. Charles M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, will preach tomorrow evening on "The Human Soul Satisfied."

CONSOLIDATION VOTE IN SEPT.

North Plainfield Council Decides to Place Question Before the People.

ALMOST UNANIMOUS

Ballot Will Be Taken September 24—Alexander Milne the Only Councilman Against the Proposition—Result of Trade Board's Agitation.

Meeting in the June session last night, members of the North Plainfield Council voted unanimously for a special election on the question of the consolidation of Plainfield and North Plainfield to be held September 24. Alexander Milne recorded the only dissenting vote on the proposition. The merger of the borough and Plainfield has been before the body on several different occasions during the past year, but in each case the question has been tabled.

Ever since the original introduction of the proposition the sentiment of the Council as a body has been in favor of the plan but the overwhelming majority by which it was carried came as a decided surprise. The action of the Council came as the direct result of the local Board of Trade's action brought before the body at the March meeting. At that time the Council was requested to appoint a committee on consolidation to work in co-operation with the civic body and the ballot last night was taken after a favorable report had been submitted by those who had conducted an investigation.

North Plainfield's decision will probably result in the question being brought to the attention of the Plainfield Common Council at the July meeting and it is not unlikely that both municipalities will hold their election on the same date. It will be necessary for Plainfield to vote on the question to ascertain the local sentiment regarding the consolidation of the borough and city.

MADE DEFENDANT IN DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS

Frank Laying Schoonmaker, Formerly of This City, Spied on by Sleuths.

Witnesses in the Supreme Court of New York, yesterday, testifying in the suit of Mrs. Grace Llewellyn Schoonmaker against Frank Laying Schoonmaker, formerly of this city, related the circumstances under which the former Plainfielder was found in the apartment of Miss Marie Merwin, a beautiful young woman of the blonde type at 55 East Fifty-sixth street. Mrs. Schoomaker was married in 1905 at the Marble Collegiate church and separated from her husband last November when he went to live at the Metropolitan Club.

The testimony before Judge Gregerich yesterday showed that private women detectives had secured evidence of a damaging nature against Schoonmaker and Miss Eva Fisner, who was one of the principal witnesses, said:

"On several occasions I saw Mr. Schoonmaker come in and go out of the apartment. I watched him through a hole in the door of our apartment. One night he came in wearing a silk hat and evening clothes. He knocked at Miss Merwin's door and she let him in. The next morning he came out wearing a business suit and derby hat. On March 7 Schoonmaker came to the apartment after midnight and entered Miss Merwin's rooms. Later I heard the rattle of dishes and then it grew quiet.

"A little later on, when the house was very quiet, I heard the sound of heavy snores coming from Miss Merwin's room. Mr. Schoonmaker did not leave the apartment that night and the next morning Miss Merwin came out about 10 o'clock, went to the dumbwaiter and got the Sunday papers. She took them back into the apartment."

PASSED COLLEGE EXAMS.

He was graduated from the Plainfield High School in the class of 1910 and while in Penn. he has captained the gym. team and has been president of the Intercollegiate Gymnastic Association.

ISSUE BONDS FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

Borough Council Failed to Make Provision for Maturity Ten Years Ago.

$10,000 DUE JAN. 1

Ordinance to Vacate Walnut Street Passed—West End Avenue Will Be Macadamized and Assessment Commission is Appointed.

When the North Plainfield fire department headquarters was erected on Somerset street ten years ago the Council failed to make provision for the payment of $10,000 worth of bonds which fall due January 1, 1915, and this matter was accordingly brought to the attention of the body when it met in its June session last night. It was decided to issue $9,000 worth of bonds, each bond to have a value of $500, and the number to be eighteen. They will bear interest at five per cent. and will be dated January 1, the expiration of the time limit. The balance, $1,000, will be paid out of the tax levy.

The ordinance to vacate a portion of Walnut street was passed on the third reading. This is an unoccupied thoroughfare in the Greenbrook section of the borough. A petition recently circulated was presented last night and contains the names of a majority of the property owners in that section who have agreed to have the street returned to the former owners.

The Council also voted to macadamize a section of West End avenue and the contract for the work was awarded to Burke & Bonham. But two bids were received. The following commission for the assessment of property along the latter street was appointed: William C. Smith, James Love and Thomas Armstrong.

During the month $562 has been expended in the police department, and twenty-two court cases have been disposed of by the recorder, $69 in fines having been collected. The street committee reported that $950.64 had been expended in this work.

Building permits during the month of May were granted to A. B. Utzinger, for an addition to his house on Summit avenue; to J. S. Gulich, for addition to his house on Park place; to S. L. Mundy for addition to house on Somerset street; to W. J. Conroy, for addition to his wagon shop on Somerset street.

Raymond G. Smith, a callman, was appointed as a regular member of the borough fire department last night.

BOYS HONOR FATHER BALDWIN

Banquet Given in Honor of Anniversary of His Ordination.

PLEASING ADDRESSES

Master Jack Gannon, Toastmaster, Congratulates Beloved Priest and Introduces Speakers—Many Happy Responses by Guests.

Rev. John F. Baldwin, the chaplain of Mt. St. Mary College, was entertained last evening by the boys' preparatory department at a banquet in honor of the fifth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. The boys' dining hall presented a charming picture with its decorations of green and white, with clusters of daisies artistically arranged.

Master Jack Gannon, of Perth Amboy, acter as toastmaster. In a pleasing speech of welcome, Master Gannon congratulated the priest on the occasion of his fifth anniversary and thanked him for the kind interest he has always manifested in the boys' welfare.

Master John Allyn Peterson was next called upon for a speech and song. Master Allyn responded. Edward Radel and Mr. Jennings, of Bound Brook, were then announced and both were highly amused at the earnestness of the young speechmakers. Master Valentine Radel in the course of his remarks hoped that when the Boys' Alumni of Mt. St. Mary is formed that Father Baldwin will be its honorary president. Mr. Jennings next responded to the request of the toastmaster and he in turn was followed by Mr. Radel. Both exhorted the boys to make good use of the opportunities afforded them at Mt. St. Mary.

Master Charles Reynolds, of Perth Amboy, next responded with a congratulatory address which was well received. Addresses were made by Masters Carl Lorentz, of Lima, Tex.; Elmo T. Rice, of Atlantic City; Philip Hamilton, of New York city; Edmund Noonan, of Bayonne, and Edward Morris, of Trenton.

Father Baldwin then addressed the boys. He thanked them for their kind entertainment and good wishes for his future success in the ministry. He told the boys to be faithful in adhering to the lessons of morality and faith which are so carefully taught them at Mt. St. Mary, that when they leave her hallowed walls, they should carry with them the joy and happiness which is now theirs; that the joy and peace of union with God in daily communion is the only true peace on earth; and that the sorrows and cares wich will naturally come with the years will not be able to take that peace of a good conscience from them. Father Baldwin then invoked God's blessing upon all present.

GOOD CATCH MADE BY LOCAL POLICE

City and North Plainfield Authorities Nab Alleged Auto Thieves.

ONE A BOROUGH BOY

Both of the Offenders Are Eighteen Years of Age—Found Sleeping in Stolen Car in Mt. Bethel—Turned Over to Police of Passaic.

After following clues that have extended to all sections of the State during a three days' investigation, Sergeants Turner and Crowbuck, of the Passaic police force, came to Plainfield last night, and landed two alleged automobile crooks through the assistance they received from the local department. Appearing at police headquarters shortly after 10:30 o'clock they reported to Sergeant Higgins, who was on duty at the time, that two young men from Plainfield had stolen a Buick automobile from Passaic on June 3, making good their escape.

Higgins accompanied the men to the North Plainfield headquarters, a discovery in the case leading them to believe that the culprits were in the borough. Roundsman Keller recalled having seen Howard Sachs, of 29 Harrison avenue, and a companion in a strange car during the morning, but the two had later disappeared. Keller and Herrman, of the borough force, joined the trio in the search and went to the home of young Sachs uncle in Mt. Bethel, circumstances leading them to believe that the youth was spending the night at that place.

Arriving at the Mt. Bethel farm shortly after 5 o'clock this morning, the officers swooped down upon the machine which was standing in the driveway bearing the lost license tag and discovered that the alleged crooks were peacefully sleeping in the vehicle. Young Sachs and his companion, Henry Carey, of 86 Hackensack avenue, Carlstad, were brought to headquarters and later transferred to the Passaic police station, where they will be arraigned today on a charge alleging larceny of automobiles.

The automobile, which belonged to F. A. Garfmuch, of New York city, was standing on the streets of Passaic last Wednesday, when it was taken by auto thieves. Detectives were at once placed on the trail and the clues led to this city and they arrested the two mne in Mt. Bethel this morning. There is a reward of $300 offered for the arrest and conviction of the right parties and this amount will probably be divided between the local officers if they have landed the right parties.

Both of the alleged crooks are eighteen years of age, and the Sachs youth is well known in the borough, where he has lived all his life. It is said that they have been driving about the State since taking the machine and this has baffled the police in their work.

FITZ SURRENDERED BY HIS BONDSMAN

Former Ring Champion and Woman Held Prisoners in Brunswick Today.

Surrendered by his bondsmen, William J. McDede, a New Brunswick undertaker, at 9 o'clock this morning Robert L. Fitzsimmons, former champion pugilist of the world, is a prisoner in the sheriff's office at the Middlesex County seat today awaiting the arrival of someone with $2,000 in cash which will give the ruby fighter and his alleged feminine affinity their liberty. Fitzsimmons has been indicted by the Middlesex County Grand Jury on a charge of having improper relations with Temo Sloan, known in Dunellen as the "German Countess," and both were arraigned in the New Brunswick courts yesterday and held in $1,000 bonds.

The necessary bail was secured at 10 o'clock last night from Mr. McDede after the former fighter and his friends had waited in the sheriff's office for seven hours. As soon as the bail bonds were signed they left for the Dunellen form of Fitzsimmons. This morning the bondsman surrendered his charges and Sheriff Appleby was sent post-haste to Dunellen for the prisoners. Fitzsimmons had been informed of McDede's transaction prior to the arrival of the McDede, however, and was already on his way to New Brunswick. The two are now prisoners in the Brunswick headquarters.

The board of trustees of the First M. E. church will meet after the service tomorrow morning.

DECLARES NEPHEW SPENT HER $20,000

Accuses Dead Lawyer of Withdrawing Deposits.

HAD POWER OF ATTORNEY

Was Given Charge of Aunt's Affairs, as He Was Only Heir—Woman's Suspicion Leads Her to His Office, Where He Admitted Withdrawing Money For His Own Use.

Red Bank, N. J., June 6.—Suffering from nervous shock resulting from the loss of about $20,000 through the manipulation of her nephew, Frank H Cothren, late of 175 South Oxford street, Brooklyn, who died a week ago yesterday from an overdose of morphine, Mrs. Alice Cothren of Broad street, who is eighty-two years old, reluctantly admitted the financial loss.

Shortly after the death of her husband, Mrs. Cothren said, she gave a power of attorney to her nephew, who was her only heir. He was in charge of all of his aunt's affairs. Some months ago, wishing to invest about $20,000 in real estate, she decided to take this fund from money she had on deposit in New York city banks. She forwarded to her nephew her deposit books, together with written authority to withdraw the money, and instructed him to forward to her $2,000.

Cothren suggested to his aunt that it would be better if she did not withdraw the sum from one bank. He suggested that she take some from each bank where she had deposits. In this way he got possession of her deposit books.

Recently Mrs. Cothren requested her nephew to return them to her, but she was unable to get them even after many demands, Cothren's excuse always being that because of his business activities he had forgotten to do as she requested, but would do so shortly.

Finally, growing suspicious, Mrs. Cothren, accompanied by Mrs. William T. Corlies, went to New York and called upon her nephew at his office and demanded possession of her deposit books and the return or cancellation of power of attorney. Then, she says, Cothren admitted that he had withdrawn all her money for his own use and had lost it.

WIDOW SUES A WIDOWER.

Promise to Wed Before Death of First Wife Is Alleged.

East Orange, N. J., June 6.—Papers were filed in the circuit court, Newark, by Frank McDermitt, counsel for Mrs. Marie Launay of 24 Prospect place, East Orange, in a $10,000 breach of promise suit against Elijah Winey, a retired business man, of 4 Morton place, this city.

According to Mrs. Launay, twelve years ago, when Mrs. Winey was ill, Winey promised that upon her death he would marry Mrs. Launay. Mrs. Winey recovered, but between that time and her death on Jan. 8 last, Mrs. Launay says, Winey continued to promise to wed her upon the death of his wife.

"I was a widow of one year and a young woman when Mr. Winey first made the promise to wed me," says the plaintiff. "I had other opportunities, but I refused them."

QUINLAN MUST SERVE TERM.

Trenton, N. J., June 6. — Supreme Court Justice Kalisch affirmed the conviction of Patrick Quinlan, an I. W. W. agitator, for inciting to riot during the Paterson silk strike. Quinlan was sentenced by Judge Klennert in Paterson to a maximum term of seven years and a minimum term of two years in state prison and to pay a fine of $500.

Quinlan entered the prison a year ago, but was released on a writ of habeas corpus pending a disposition of the case by the supreme court. Quinlan is in New York, and it is believed it will be necessary to have him extradited.

WHAT PLAINFIELD MEANS TO ME?

This question while personal is largely impersonal.

Every normal host prefers to make a good impression on his visitor, but do communities collectively feel that there is any duty upon their part to welcome the newcomer in their midst, to extend the open hand of fellowship and make him feel contented in his new environment?

It has been my good fortune to have been over a very large part of the globe. I have observed the attitude of the residents of ever so many places, all over the world toward the stranger. In some European communities the outsider is compelled to go to the police department and register the moment he enters the town and he is regarded with suspicion merely because he is an outsider.

I have known the cordial spirit of hospitality in parts of the breezy west where the stranger is always welcome, where no questions are asked and where a man is regarded by what he is rather than by what he may have been or how much he has.

I have watched the prig, conceit and provincial narrowness of the people in some little towns who had the delusion that they were the elect of the earth and practised an exclusiveness that was ungodly.

I have heard the jealous raving of the mediocre man who is more bitter in his denunciation of the successful man than the ne'er do well. I have seen all these things and more. Now what does Plainfield mean to me?

None of us know what fate may have in store for us, but no matter how long I may live; no matter where I may be, my memories of Plainfield will always be rich with appreciation and gratitude.

It is not because I have only met with the cordial big-hearted people I have described. I have met in Plainfield every kind of man and woman I have described, but those who have not been good to me have been in a very small minority.

Plainfield will always mean much to me because here I have been given a glorious field to work in, to serve others and, after all, service is the greatest thing in life.

Most people who meet me and a great many who know me well are under the impression that I was endowed at birth with the extraordinary physical powers that I now possess. That is a great mistake. It took many years of hard and faithful work to make me what I now am.

I was born in the year 1886 in Libau, Kurland, an old port on the Baltic Sea. At that time physical culture was much practised in Russia and at the age of four years I was given my first course of instruction. I continued my training in my home town until the age of eighteen and by that time I had obtained the best reputation for physical strength in my own country. Having finished my education I was sent on to Germany to exhibit there. A political scrape that three hundred students managed to get themselves into hastened my departure. In that country I learned more about the two best methods of developing the human body, namely physical culture and massage. I studied these two subjects until I had absorbed all the information and obtained all the instruction to be had in those parts.

About this time a certain theatrical manager offered me a large sum of money to exhibit my development and perform feats of strength in the theatres and hippodromes of Germany, France and England. I was naturally anxious to show the public that every man could do for himself what I had done, and the salary offered being a great inducement I accepted. During this time I performed such feats as lifting heavy weights from 250 to 2,000 pounds, bending large silver coins, tearing three packs of playing cards with my fingers and a great many other "parlor tricks" with which many of you are familiar. The climax of my success was reached when I finally came to America and allowed a seven-passenger touring car containing seven grown passengers to pass over my abdomen several times daily. During the week of January 6, 1910, I filled an engagement at the Empire Theatre in Pittsfield, Mass., owned by Jonas H. Tebbitts, of that city. I will spare you the harrowing details of the horrible accident that almost ended my theatrical career abruptly.

It is needless to say more than that the engine became stalled as the rear wheel was directly over my abdomen. To support that load in rapid motion was one thing, to support it stationary was another, and before it could be removed the wheel had sunk into my abdomen and left me apparently lifeless. Can you imagine how my internal organs were mangled by that load? Don't you marvel that I am alive?

The records of Mercy Hospital show that I was there from that day until the tenth day of March, 1910. Horrible is the memory of those two months, but it is softened by another memory that I will always carry with me and which inspires me every day of my life to do all that is in my power to relieve human suffering. It is the impression made upon me by the medical and surgical men who pulled me through that crisis. As the patriot and enthusiast honors and admires the generals who lead their nation's battles, so do I honor and admire those toilers of the Master's workshop whose divine purpose it is "to save, not to slay." They gave me back my life and though I had lost 112 pounds and was a weak, emaciated invalid, the serious damage done, had been repaired.

Imagine if you can the sensations of a man who had possessed my extraordinary strength, who had performed feats unsurpassed in the history of man to become suddenly robbed of his powers and bereft of the results of a lifelong training. Who can know the melancholy that I experienced when I realized how helpless I was. I knew then how Sampson felt when he had his fatal hair cut. As soon as I was able to travel, back I went to the place where I had built up my body and with exactly the same methods built it up again. What I am today is the result. Within less than a year I was back on the stage with even greater strength than I had before.

Prior to the injury I suffered I felt no responsibility for the weakling, the halt and the lame. I feel that my experience while terrible was indirectly a blessing. It awakened in me an indescribable, boundless, intense desire to be of service to mankind. I realized more and more each day that I had twice made a Hercules of myself, and there were so many human beings that I knew I could aid to health and strength. I knew that I was able to take those whose limbs were atrophied and useless and make them strong and sound. I knew that applying the methods to others that I had to myself would do for them what they had done for me.

The New Jersey circuit finally brought me to Proctor's theatre in this city. While filling that engagement there was called to my attention the case of a young man who had been physically strong but was at that time paralyzed so that the lower part of his body was useless. I think that nearly everybody in Plainfield knows the story of his recovery. I was delighted to be able to aid this young man so that he might walk again and today he is as well as anybody and I am happy to say has been made a human plus instead of a human minus. Before I left town again I had promised to return and do what I could for a number of others similarly afflicted. I have continued in this work steadily from that time and it has given me far more satisfaction than all the plaudits, flattery and admiration of every country through which I have traveled.

It is the gratefulness and appreciation of those residents of Plainfield who have gone out of their way and have done so much to make me happy here, who have extended to me the hand of friendship and words of cheer and encouragement at times when their sympathetic fellowship meant so much that makes me say that as long as I live and no matter where I may be memories of Plainfield will be rich with pleasure.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

By request of the suffragists the Rev. Newton M. Hall, of Springfield, preached on May 3, a sermon on suffrage. In the course of it he said:

The militant movement in England is one of the most lamentable, one of the most serious and menacing phases of modern civilization. That nightmare horror of lawlessness, of arson, of blind hysterical fury, not only discredits the cause of the full enfranchisment of women, but it threatens civilization itself. It is of no use to say that this is war, and justifiable war, for a great cause. The acts of which women have been guilty in England would not be tolerated for a moment in modern warfare. Only savages wantonly destroy the property of non-combatants. No modern army, even under the greatest of provocation, would burn churches and private houses and destroy priceless works of art. This is not war. It is hysteria mania, animalism. Still more serious than the wanton destruction of property, is the logic of the situation, the moral chaos into which it plunges the social order. The cause, say the militants, is good, therefore any means to bring success are justified.

Suppose the prohibitionists and the anti-vivisectionists and the socialists and the promoters of a hundred good causes should say the same thing, should indulge in unrestrained license and destruction, until their demands should be granted. We should speedily have anarchy and the end of organized government. With the end of government, the franchise would cease to have any means or value.

The "Reign of Terror" of the militant suffragettes of Great Britain has now been in progress for slightly more than one year. The record of its first 12 months shows that its name, borrowed from the French Revolution, was well chosen. The militants in their campaign have used fire, bombs, mines, hatchets, hammers revolvers, pokers, knives, bludgeons, stones, tar paint, riding switches, dog whips, horse whips, foul smelling chemicals, corrosive chemicals, barbed wire entanglements for the police, besides using as weapons their fists, nails, teeth and feet. It is interesting in this connection to note that at a meeting of the International Council of Women in Rome last week, a speech deploring the actions of the militants was interrupted by protests and led to a violent demonstration on the part of the auditors. The speaker was obliged to stop.

At a meeting of directors of a Liverpool insurance company on April 20, it was said that the insurance companies had lost $1,250,000 through fire started by suffragettes during the year 1913. American friends of Mrs. Pankhurst must be gratified by these results of her year's work.

We hear so much of the combined chivalry towards women in suffrage States—a misnomer by the way when applied to the performance of universal courtesies—that the following may be interesting.

The following extract appeared in the description of a suffrage meeting at Somerville, N. J.:

"Speaking on the Antis' argument that men will no longer adopt a chivalrous attitude toward women when women have the same political rights, Mrs. Feickert told a story which amused the crowd. It was about a New York woman who was walking on a street in Denver (where women have voted for many years). Just ahead of her she saw a washwoman carrying with apparent difficulty a big bundle of clothes. A large man, who looked as if he might have been anything but a professional philanthropist, approached, and after bowing politely and speaking with the woman for a moment, he took her bundle and walked down the street with her carrying it. The New York woman said she had never seen anything like that at home, so she followed them for two blocks, when reaching the woman's home the man carried in her bundle for her and after chatting pleasantly for a moment or two, bowed and smilingly departed. The weN Yorker's curiosity was tremendously aroused, and proving too much for her, she went up the steps of the washwoman's home and rang the bell, saying when she came to the door, 'I am afraid you will think I am very rude, but I can't resist asking you why that man carried your bundle.' 'Sure, I don't mind telling you' said the woman, 'He's the ward boss and he wants my vote!'"

Looks as if women were expected to allow their vote to be rather cheaply influenced after all, and it amused the Suffragists!

To me it presents a puzzle, the point of which is: Find the chivalry?

Some years ago, crossing the ferry one evening, I witnessed what, to my benighted Anti brain, was a much better illustration of the word. Through the ferryboat there came a poor woman. On one arm a sleeping baby about a year old, with its little red face buried in mother's neck. In the other hand she carried a typical old-fashioned market basket, full to overflowing. Hanging on to this, and dragging back because his fat legs were as tired as his drowsy eyes, was a sturdy boy about three years old.

Several men jumped to their feet to give her a seat, but one quicker than the others stepped forward, and taking the basket from her hand, lifted the elder child into the seat next her. The little shaver blinked a moment, and then was in the "Land of Nod."

As the boat neared the slip the gentleman took him in his arms and another took the basket.

Having learned that the mother was taking a local to a nearby town, and having but just time for his own train, the gentleman called a porter, tipped him and transferred the sleeping boy to his arms with directions to see the mother safely seated before leaving them.

Now I want to say most emphatically that none of us can go our daily rounds on trains, boats, etc., without witnessing just such acts of courtesy and kindness from men to women, that is, if we only look from unprejudiced eyes, even half open.

It seems to me that New York courtesy has a little more of the true ring of chivalry than that offered in suffrage States, where it is evidently apt to be considered a bid for a vote.

GIMBELS—Monday---The Great Semi-Annual SALE OF SILKS

Remnants and Dress Lengths

Over 125,000 yards, including all the Fashionable Silks. 200 Salespeople—Three City Blocks of Selling Space.

The Silk Store keeps its eyes on Paris, and these half-yearly occasions reflect new fashions as faithfully as do our regular stocks. Thus you will find in this, the greatest of Gimbel silk sales, the most highly favored silks of the day, as well as the standard qualities, always in demand.

Each sale outstrips the last one in volume and interest. This will be by far the best of the series.

Better in extent by many thousands of yards. Better in values offered—we are selling silks Monday for the prices we paid for the same qualities six weeks ago. To quote one instance, a large quantity of a rich quality of White Crepe de Chine will be in the sale at $1.05 a yard instead of $1.75. Better in the present desirability of the silks—we do not think that there was ever a silk sale in New York in which the silks of the minute were so thoroughly represented.

Consul General Returns to America From Vera Cruz.

QUEEN UNRUFFLED BY SUFFRAGE PLEA

"Wild Woman" Belongs to Titled English Family.

London, June 6.—The scene in the throne room at Buckingham palace on Thursday night was caused by Miss Mary Blomfield, the elder daughter of Lady Blomfield and the late Sir Arthur Blomfield, associate of the Royal academy. In response to an inquiry Lady Blomfield sent the following telegram:

"Lady Blomfield desires to state that her daughters did not accompany her to the court on June 4, but arrived later without her knowledge. The appeal was entirely Miss Blomfield's own idea. Lady Blomfield saw nothing of the incident, which she and her whole family deeply deplore."

One who was present at Thursday night's court says:

"Lady Townsend had just presented her sister, Mrs. Walrond, and passed on, when Lady Blomfield, followed by her two daughters, moved forward. Lady Blomfield had curtsied to the king and was making her bow to the queen when her daughter, who was then before his majesty, suddenly went down on one knee and, flinging out her hands, sought to address him.

"Apparently startled by her daughter's voice, Lady Blomfield turned around, and at the same moment the other Miss Blomfield stepped forward to her sister and caught her by the arm.

"Only those near the throne knew what really occurred. Most people thought that a debutante had fainted. The king and queen were most unconcerned and gave no indication of having witnessed the incident."

BLOW FOR LEO FRANK.

Judge Asserts He Would Not Hesitate to Change His Decision.

Atlanta, Ga., June 6.—A blow at one of the props in the case the lawyers for Leo Frank have built up in the endeavor to have the verdict in his trial set aside was observed at the hearing in an utterance by Judge Hill, in which the judge gave notice that he would not hesitate to reverse a decision of his own should it be shown to be contrary to the rulings of the supreme court of Georgia.

It was felt that if Judge Hill maintained this attitude he need not hold with the defense and grant the motion to set aside the verdict. His frank avowal that he would not be bound by the former decision served to destroy this confidence which was entertained by many.

PLAINFIELD BOY MAY BE A COLLEGE CHAMP

Rollinson Poucher Looked Upon as Intercollegiate Mile Winner Next Spring.

Rollinson Poucher, of this city, has developed this season into one of the best mile runners in intercollegiate circles and those interested in college track competition look upon him as a sure point winner for Eli in the intercollegiates next spring. Poucher has been coming along rapidly all season and has rapidly advanced into a class with the well-known Speiden, of Cornell. In nearly every one of his tests this year he has lowered his own mark.

He made a fine showing in the interclass meet at New Haven, lowering the college record for the mile, his time being 4 minutes and 25 2-5 seconds. Later in the Princeton meet he was defeated by MacKenzie, of the Tiger team, but made the rounds in better time than he did in the previous games.

In the Yale-Harvard dual games he won his race, covering the mile in 4 minutes 22 seconds. Poucher entered Yale from St. Paul's School, Concord, and will be graduated from the institution in 1915. While at the school he worked on the track under the coaching of G. P. Milne, and ran both in the mile and half mile. During his freshman year, Poucher did not get out on the track. The following year he made the varsity, but did not develop his speed until the present season.

CARLSTROM BENCHED TO MAKE WAY FOR VETERAN

Albin Carlstrom, the former Plainfield shortstop, has again taken possession of the watch-waiting dug-out alongside of the Buffalo International Leaguers' bench, the return of the veteran Ben Houser, the regular first sacker, having pushed him into the background.

Carlstrom's withdrawal under Manager Clymer's orders came as a big surprise to his friends who have been watching his wonderful work while playing the role of substitute. Carlstrom has done some clever fielding and some hard swatting while playing around the first station and his work can hardly be improved upon even by the veteran Houser. Manager Clymer, however, is probably of the opinion that Houser's work needs no improvement and therefore has given the old man his job back which is due him by right of tradition.

He will be used as a utility man during the season by the Bison's manager and a better holder of this task would be hard to unearth than Carlstrom. He can play any position on the diamond or in the field and his hitting is always sure and hard.

MISS WILDEY A MEMBER OF CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM

ACCIDENT REVEALS SOME TITLE TIMBER

Jack Fritts May Be the National Junior Champion With the Javelin.

Discovering quite by accident that he could throw the javelin, Jack Fritts the local athlete, has taken up the sport in earnest and a genuine Greek Javelin arrived at his home on West Fourth street this morning, with which he will practise for the junior championships to be contested on Celtic Park June 20.

While practising jumping in the yard in the rear of the Pastime A. C. in New York, of which he is a member, Fritts one day last week picked up one of the Greek spears and hurled it in fun across the lot. Eric Erickson, the world famous high jumper, was in the yard at the time and expressed considerable surprise at the local boy's throw. Jack was induced to measure the distance by his experienced companion and the feet totaled up to 125, a fairly good mark considering the nature of the event and Fritts' experience.

Erickson coached the Plainfielder in the fine points of the art and before he left the club that afternoon Jack had developed into a pretty fair javelin thrower. Entered in the all-around champions on Celtic Park two weeks ago Fritts was pitted against Bruno Brodd, who holds a record of 169 feet, 10 1-4 inches in the event and did remarkably well.

Since that time he has been practising up on the event and is going out for the championship in the junior events June 20. He will use the Greek spear on Parker Field during the next two weeks getting into trim for the title event. This is only one of the many events in which the local boy is proficient and he is looked upon as a dark horse in the Celtic Park meet.

ELIMINATE LOCAL GOLFERS FROM CHAMPIONSHIP PLAY

Desperate close fighting yesterday afternoon marked the semi-final battles in the New Jersey State golf championship tournament being contested over the links of the Morristown Country Club, Oswald Kirby, Englewood, prevailing only on the home hole, while Maurice Risley, Atlantic City, traveled to the twenty-first hole before he won. Accordingly the northern and southern sections of the State will be represented in the finals for the first time since the event was started.

In the second set John N. Stearns, Jr., of Somerville, was defeated by Percy R. Pyne, 2nd, Princeton, 4 up and 3 to play, and F. W. Baldwin, Plainfield, defeated R. A. Gussman, Forest Hill, 4 up and 2 to play. In the first round of the fourth set C. B. Wilcox, of Westfield, beat R. S. Rowland, of Plainfield, 2 up and 1 to play, and in the second round Wilcox was eliminated by Shippen, Morris county, 5 up and 4 to play.

NEW BRUNSWICK NINE BEST IN MANY YEARS

The New Brunswick High School baseball team has just closed the most successful season that the school has ever known. Seven out of the ten games that were played were victories and the team scored seven more points than its opponents during the year.

Fourteen games were scheduled, but four were cancelled. This team defeated the local High School team by the score of 4 to 3 and broke even with the borough nine, the last game being an eleven inning victory for the locals. This team claims to be the best ever put out from that school and has defeated many of the strong teams of that vicinity.

SHAMROCK IV. TO GIVE DEFENDER 4 MINUTES.

The yachting reporter of the Evening Standard estimates that Shamrock IV., Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger for the America's cup, will have to allow about four minutes to the biggest of the American defenders. This is the first picture of the launching received in America.

LOCAL WOMEN IN THE SINGLES TENNIS MATCHES

Greenwich, Conn., June 6—Notwithstanding exceptional play, yesterday morning and afternoon, by leaders of the New York team, Philadelphia women golfers last night proudly bore home from the Greenwich Country Club the Griscom Cup, which is annually contested for in the tri-city matches. The Quakers prevailed by 12 to 9 points. In the morning singles it was 9 points for Philadelphia to 6 for New York. In the afternoon foursomes, however, there was no choice between them, each scoring 3 points, which oddly enough, was exactly the same showing made Thursday afternoon between New York and Boston on foursomes.

In the singles, Mrs. N. Pendelton Rogers, of this city, competing under the colors of the Baltusrol Club, beat Mrs. Fox, Huntington Valley, 2 up Mrs. H. R. Stockton, of the Plainfield Country Club, beat Mrs. Hiles, Wilmington, 1 up.

WHY COBB IS CALLED KING PIN OF PLAYERS.

You may say what you please about Ty Cobb being swell headed and all that, but he made two plays in a recent game that entitled him to the reputation of being the best ball player in the world. With a man on third and second he hit to the infield. The runner was caught at the plate, and Ty, figuring that the play would be made that way, purposely ran off first to draw a throw to second. While they were trying to get him the other man dashed for the plate and scored. Cobb thereupon ran all the way to third while the ball was being thrown home. Such plays have made him famous.

NEW PITCHING DEVICE.

This One Has Arms of Steel and Fingers to Throw Ball.

A device for pitching a baseball to a batter, built into a system of planes whereby the batted ball, no matter where it is slammed, will return automatically to the pitcher, has been invented and set up at Princton by Alexander MacMillan, son of Professor Charles MacMillan of the Princeton university faculty. It is said that the invention solves the problem which confronts baseball managers which has heretofore required them to have a regular human pitcher with some ball chasers in the field before they could give their team batting practice.

The machine delivers to the batter any number of regulation balls, as fast as one in every eight seconds if the batter wants them that fast. Every one passes directly over the plate, and the height and speed at which they can be thrown is regulated by the lever which a man works behind the batter on the same principle as the clay pigeon throwing machine. The batter stands at one end of the court, which is incased with nets on three sides; and on the fourth, that immediately behind the batter, is a canvas stretching from the ground up to a height of forty feet. The pitching apparatus is stationed immediately in front of the batter, a distance away equal to half that separating the ordinary pitcher from the batter. It is composed of a throwing arm of steel pivoted in a frame, with fingers attached to one end and a strong spring to the other. Just below the finger is a catch and a trigger, the latter protruding through in such a way that when the ball drops from a chute immediately above the trigger it releases the catch and the spring forces the arm to catch the ball and hurl it across the plate. A lever directly back of the batter brings the arm into position again for the receipt and delivery of another ball. When the ball is hit fair it goes into the canvas playing field, which is marked off for one base, two base, three base and home run hits. The ball rolls down this canvas after it has lost its impetus and follows the slant to a chute directly beneath the throwing machine. Foul balls also fall on a plane converging toward this chute, and a plunger carries the ball from the entering chute at the bottom of the pitching machine to the chute at the top through which the ball falls on to the pitching arm for delivery to the batter.

TWENTY-SEVEN FINE HOUSES ARE BEING ERECTED IN WESTFIELD

The general depression through the country has curtailed building operations in Westfield somewhat, but at the present time there are twenty-seven houses in course of erection which shows the town is having a good healthy, substantial growth. The average cost of the houses now being erected is about $8,000. Local contractors report a large number of plans out for estimate and are expecting a rather lively fall in the building line.

This house was recently erected by the Pearsall Company and sold to Alden R. Whitman. The house is located at No. 630 Prospect street, on the Pearsall development.

DR. MONTFORT'S HOME OF COLONIAL TYPE

Handsome New Dwelling Being Erected at Cost of $10,000.

Work has been started on the two-and-half story dwelling at 824 Park avenue, being erected by Dr. Olive W. Montfort, of Central avenue. George D. Wilson, of Stelle avenue, is the contractor in charge of the construction work, with B. F. Tallamy & Brother doing the masonry work. Frank E. Neuman, of New York city, is the architect.

According to the specifications the architecture will be of the old colonial type, and promises, when completed, to be one of th handsomest and most modern in that section of the city. The site on which it is to be located is one of the most attractive in the central portion of the city, and the erection of Dr. Montfort's house will add much to the attractiveness of that section.

When completed in the fall the house will be equipped with all modern conveniences, the owner having taken advantage of the many twentieth century building improvements in preparing the home he is to occupy. The flooring throughout will be of hardwood, and the living and dining rooms on the first floor will have fireplaces which characterized the dwellings of long ago. The cost of the house will aggregate $10,000.

BUILDING OPERATIONS SLOW DOWN IN MAY

So Far as New Permits Are Concerned There Was a Slump.

Building operations, as far as new permits are concerned, took a great slump in this city during the month of May, when the same month of last year is taken into consideration, the decrease being over fifty per cent., all wards suffering alike. During the past month, the Second Ward made the best showing, having permits issued aggregating $6,537.

A comparative statement showing the activities for the month of May for the two years is shown in the tables below:

	New Bldgs.	Alterations.	Totals.
1914
1st Ward	$ 5,125	——	$ 5,125
2d Ward	4,362	2,175	6,537
3d Ward	3,000	3,150	6,150
4th Ward	2,000	2,600	4,600
Totals	$14,487	$ 7,925	$22,412
1913
1st Ward	$14,090	——	$14,090
2d Ward	3,650	7,970	11,620
3d Ward	9,000	——	9,000
4th Ward	13,136	5,500	18,636
Totals	$39,876	$13,470	$53,346

Had it not been for the work already underway in the building lines, there is no doubt that many men would have been thrown out of work, but such action was not the case, as the demand for labor was upheld by the work called for by permits issued during the previous months.

FOREST COMMISSION WILLING TO ASSIST

Offers Services to Encourage Planting Where it Will Benefit Most.

New Jersey has upwards of two millions of acres of woodland, practically all in private possession, the annual net yield of which is only about one million dollars, or on the average of fifty cents an acre. The same acreage can and should produce ten million dollars annually, or $5 an acre. Good public policy therefore requires that the forests of the State, irrespective of ownership, be rescued from the abuse and neglect to which this condition is due.

Under proper management the owners will enjoy an increased and continuous income while the public will profit by the greater supply of woods for their needs, by a more regular flow of water in the streams, by the presence of forests that may be used as parks, and by better living conditions.

To encourage the practice of forestry on private lands by owners who know little about its methods, and have properties too small to justify the regular employment of a forester, the orest Commission should offer the services of its foresters, so far as their time will permit, to all that ask for them. When it is necessary, or advisable, a competent forester will study the situation on the ground and confer with the owner. If considerable cutting is to be done a part of the trees to be felled will be marked to guide the owner in the removal of the rest. Advice in regard to the market will be given, but in no case will the forester have part or interest in a sale.

Those who wish to undertake forest planting will be advised regarding the most suitable species for their situations, how to obtain the trees and how to plant them. No young trees or seeds are furnished by the State.

VITAPHONE COMPANY WILL ERECT SEVERAL BUILDINGS

While prosperity has not been marked in many lines of industry in this city, the Vitaphone Company, whose factory is situated at 1112 North avenue, just opposite the Netherwood station, is enjoying an unprecedented amount of business at this time. Several buildings have been erected on the site of the factory since the company came to this city a few years ago. Another frame building is to be erected in the near future, the structure to be 48 by 176 feet.

The additional floor space will provide for the enlarged force which is necessary by the increased business of the concern. It is believed that the building will be completed by November 1, when the payroll will contain the names of one hundred and eighty working men instead of seventy as at present. The growth of the business of this concern has been phenomenal, and has been the means of giving employment to many mechanics of the city.

The officials of the company expect to inaugurate the manufacture of records at the local plant within the course of the next six weeks. When the new buildings are complete, it is expected that a large electric sign facing the railroad will be erected advertising this city as the home of the Vitaphone.

PERMITS ISSUED FOR THIRTEEN DWELLINGS

Building Operations Take Big Jump During the Past Week.

The building operations in this city during the month of May over the same month of last year, took a jump during the past week, when the aggregate cost of the buildings for which permits have been issued, is more than twice the amounts called for by the permits during the entire month of May. Six permits issued during the week call for the erection of thirteen dwellings and two garages, the aggregate cost of which will be in the vicinity of $54,800, with the Fourth Ward securing $30,500 of that amount. The permits as granted are noted below.

First Ward.

The Berry building and Construction Company's permit calls for the dwellings at 220-22-24-26 Emerson avenue. The houses will be modern in every detail and will be fitted with steamheating systems. These will cost in the vicinity of $3 500 each. W. H. Chum is the architect, H. S. Thomson the mason contractor. The Berry Company will do the carpentry work.

R. Heyman, of 644 East Second street is to erect a 12 by 13 foot frame garage at the rear of his residence at the above address, at a cost of $150. G. Harvey Bogert has the contract for the work.

H. M. Burkey is to erect a 12 by 16 foot frame garage at the rear of 144 Leland avenue, at the cost of $150. The structure will be of hemlick and will have a rubberoid roof.

Third Ward.

Dr. C. W. Montfort, of Central avenue, is to erect a $10,000 dwelling at 824 Park avenue. The house is discribed in another column.

Fourth Ward.

Jacob Sachar and the Bloom Contracting Company has been granted a permit to erect five two-family dwellings at 638 to 644 West Front street at the cost of $4,000 each. These dwellings were described in these columns last week.

The same parties have been granted a permit to erect three one-family dwellings at 622-24-26 W. Front street. These will be two and a half stories high, and of a frame structure. Steam heat will be installed in each dwelling.

PLAN TO SAFEGUARD HEALTH OF TENANTS

English Idea is Being Advocated by Many in This Country.

New houses are constantly being offered for rent in large numbers in the United States and real-estate agents are naturally anxious to find tenants as soon as possible. Probably a little investigation would show the desirability of requiring a certificate that a new house will not endanger the health of its occupants before the families are allowed to move into it. Such municipal regulations are proving valuable in England.

Toward the close of 1912 the Portsmouth (England) corporation decided that thereafter no new building intended for human habitation in that borough should be occupied until it had been certified as sanitary in every respect. Dr. A. Mearns says: "The principal evil that it will prevent is the occupation of houses before they have time to dry. I would far rather live in a house that was defective drainage than in a damp house; the results from the latter are more insidious in their onset and more difficult to overcome.

"Dampness undoubtedly greatly favors the incidence of consumption, bronchitis, rheumatism, heart-trouble and diphtheria. Probably children are more susceptible to the ill effects of a damp house than adults." The health departments of our cities might well take up the question, says the Journal of the American Medical Association. Probably most American municipalities already have the legal power to require such certificates and the question is only one of making the regulation and establishing the custom.

BUILDING IN COUNTY HAS UPWARD TREND

Contracts Aggregating Nearly $100,000 Filed With County Clerk.

Throughout Union county building has been on the upward trend for some time, and the activities in this direction appear to indicate that conditions are not as bad as some of the other counties of the State. Aside from the many dwellings in the course of construction, many public and semi-public buildings are being erected in various parts of the county, and the building trades appear to be in a healthy condition—in the majority of the cities and towns.

During the two weeks ending May 31, plans of thirty-two building contractors were filed at the office of the county clerk at Elizabeth. These contracts covering all sorts of buildings, call for the expenditure of $94,854. They do not include the contracts for the new school building at Westfield which were recently awarded. Should this pace be maintained for the period of a few weeks, the county will be among the busiest in the State, as the contracts filed at the county seat does not represent the entire industry in the county.

Among those filed from this city is one between Peter Shubert and Cohen and Israelsky for the carpenter, mason, and plumbing work on a dwelling. The figures contained in this contract are $3,375.

JUST NOTES

Cleanup week has meant much to the painting trade in this city within the course of the past two weeks, as the business picked up wonderfully during that period of time.

Many carpenters and masons of the city have also been affected in the right way, as many minor repairs and improvements, as well as alterations not covered by the building permits issued by Inspector T. O. Doane, have been the outgrowth of cleanup week.

Mrs. Sarah A. Manning is having a large porch added to her residence at 319 Grant avenue, together with other work which adds to the attractiveness of the property. George D. Wilson has the contract. Councilman Francis J. Blatz, of West Front street, is also having a large porch added to his residence.

It is understood that James W. Tygard, of South avenue, who is the inventor of several types of gasoline engines, is dickering for a 150 foot plot of ground on that thoroughfare on which to erect a factory in which it is expected that his engines are to be manufactured. Such a move would be greatly instrumental in building up the east side of the city

Among the new public buildings in the county for which contracts have been issued during the past week, is the new Methodist church building at Roselle Park, which is to cost in the vicinity of $27,350. Lawrence J. Rice, of New York, has the contract.

IN THE SUBURBS

Building operations in Dunellen are on the increase, several contracts for dwellings having recently been awarded. J. Newton Apgar has secured the carpentry contract for a dwelling for Dr. T. H. Samuel M. Titus has been awarded the contract for the erection of a dwelling on Center street near the Levgar Structural Works, for Harry B. MacDonald, of the Plainfield Savings Bank.

Alterations are being made to the houses of Fowler Vail and Patson VanArsdale on North avenue. Both contracts are in the hands of J. Newton Apgar.

Laird McVicker has sold his residence on Dunellen avenue to John C. Apgar, of German Valley, who took possession June 1.

The following realty transfers have been recorded at New Brunswick:

William C. Brokaw has purchased of J. Newton Apgar and wife, house and lot on the northeast side of George street. Richard M. Ryan has bought of Walter R. Platt and wife, house and lots on the northwest side of First street. Principal Guy H. Rentschler has bought of Frederick Ritterbush house and lots on the east side of Second street. John G. Apgar has bought of John L. McVicker and wife house and lots on the northwest side of George street for $3,400.

Other transfers at this end of Middlesex county are as follows:

Frank E. Tilly has bought of F. Finley lots in Lincoln for $200.

William Thomas Piddington has bought of the Dunellen Home and Investment Company a lot on the west side of Whittier avenue, Dunellen.

Edward G. Camp has bought of W. M. Ostrand two lots in Lincoln.

T. Archibald Wright and wife have purchased of Anna Lauterbach and husband land on the southwest side of the road from New Market to Stelton in Piscataway township.

Maria T. McGarvey has bought of The Schwartz Land and Improvement Company, a plot at Bound Brook Heights, Piscataway township, for $400.

Adolph Steengrafe has bought of the Merchant and Traders Realty Company a lot in Piscataway township for $100.

A large tract of land on the south side of New Jersey Central tracks extending from High street, the borough, across the line into the Borough of Middlesex, has been cut into about 400 building lots by the S. P. Q. R. Company, of Plainfield. The frontage of these lots vary from twenty-five to forty feet. The work on the erection of several dwellings has already been started, with several others under construction. There are also several dwellings in the course of construction at Equator Park, in the western end of the borough.

Westfield.

Henry C. Pelton, of New York, has been engaged by the Board of Education to build the new schoolhouse at a cost not to exceed $90,000. Among the sub-contracts awarded are the following: The Detroit Steel Company, $1,700, masonry contract to the Lithic Company for $15,752.

The erection of four houses has commenced on the Faver-Lewis property between Highland and Mountain avenues. The average cost will be about $8,000.

The new colonial house on Lincoln road to be erected by the Frutchey Land Company is now completed. A contract has been given for macadamizing Lincoln road from Prospect street through to Clark street.

Leigh M. Pearsall, president of The Pearsall Company, is having architect J. T. Tubby, Jr., draw up plans for a handsome home on Brightwood avenue, a portion of The Pearsall Company Brightwood Forest tract.

Charles Allen, cashier of the People's National Bank, is erecting a home on Mountain avenue, adjoining the new Pauling cottage.

Howard C. Wick, of Harrison avenue, is erecting a new residence on Stanmore place which he expects to occupy about September 1 next.

AMUSEMENTS

With all previous records for attendance beaten, Luna with its new novel and thrilling features continues to entertain the throngs that visit the greatest resort daily. Society is finding its way to Luna this year. The presence of prominent people at Coney Island is no new thing, and the list of notables, socially and in the walks of trades and professions, who have visited Luna since it was first opened eleven years ago, would make an extremely lengthy and very imposing list.

It is the new dance salon sponsored by Mr and Mrs. Vernon Castle, the dancers, and known as Castle Summer House, the one biggest and newest thing in Luna this year, that is attracting the feet of the social crowds of Manhattan and Brooklyn this season to the Island and Luna. The opening last Saturday saw the spacious and gaily festooned ballroom of the Castles' new summer home peopled all evening with dancers, one has met in the winter at the informal dances at Sherry's, the Gotham, the Waldorf and the other popular dansants of Manhattan. Mrs. John Corbin, wife of John Corbin the dramatic censor for the New Theatre, now the Century, is in active charge of the Castle Summer House at Luna, aided by half a score of assistants of both sexes, selected from the corps of Maxixe, Tango and Hesitation dancers that toured the country recently with the Castles. An annex Castle House at Newport is the newest planned extension of the Castle dance establishment. This Newport institution will be opened about the middle of June.

Several new innovations have been introduced at Luna this season. Among them is the Clown Combination Suit. Visitors of the park this season can don these vari colored uniforms, join the hundreds of fun makers and enjoy the carnival spirit to your hearts delight.

The Mirano Brothers with their Cloud Swing is thrilling the visitors daily. Eighty feet in the air, whirling through space, propelled by a captive aeroplane, the members of the Marino family perform a number of difficult aerial features. Dozens of trapeze, tight wire and other sensational acts are among the free circus acts that provide continuous entertainment for the visitors.

A DAINTY DESIGN FOR EMBROIDERING SUMMER UNDERWEAR

At this season of the year one naturally turns to the replenishing of one's wardrobe, and many dainty garments may be made at home from better material than those bought ready to wear. Lawn, batiste, longcloth, cross-barred muslin, cotton crêpe, and even crêpe de Chine may be used for making durable underwear. A bit of hand embroidery not only makes them attractive, but wears much better than lace, often outwearing the garment itself.

This design, No. 14534, consists of scalloping with beading and a floral design for finishing the neck of a chemise, corset cover, combination garment or nightgown, and two strips of scalloping, which may be used around the armholes or sleeves. If a less elaborate design is desired, some of the motifs may be omitted. These motifs may be cut apart and used on waists, dresses, neckwear and children's clothes. This design may be developed in solid work and eyelets in fine white mercerized cotton, except when used to embroider a crêpe de Chine garment, then filo silk should be used. The scalloped edge should be heavily padded so as to give a firm edge which will keep its shape when laundered. Do not cut out the garment until after the design has been stamped, and there should be sufficient material left around the scalloped edge to hold on to while embroidering. This may be cut away after the garment has been laundered.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

8210

One of those smart cut-away coats that are being so much used at the moment is shown in No. 8210. It has a raglan sleeve, an inset vest and collar forming revers in the front. Broadcloth, gabardine, serge or silk may be used with this model successfully; if desired collar and vest may be of a contrasting color or figured silk. It is quite a modish thing now to wear a vest of white pique with the tailored suit; it is better, however, to make the vest separate, so that it may be removed and washed without too much inconvenience.

To make this coat in size 36, 1⅞ yards of 42-inch material is needed.

Pattern cuts in six sizes, 32 to 42.

This is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

SOME SPRING SALADS.

DELICIOUS salads may be prepared with the new vegetables.

Lettuce Salad.—Take two heads lettuce, one tomato, slices of cucumber, one hard boiled egg and wild mustard with cress. Wash and prepare the vegetables, cut the tomato, egg and cucumber in slices. Break the lettuce leaves in pieces, removing the hearts for garnishing. Pile the lettuce in a bowl, and arrange the slices and garnish very lightly with mustard and cress and the hearts of the lettuce.

Flavored With Cress.

Mixed Salad.—Take one head of celery, three or four potatoes (boiled), two tomatoes, watercress, one hard boiled egg and one-half small onion. Use only the heart of the celery. Cut this up into small pieces and arrange it in a glass dish with layers of sliced potato and tomato and a small portion of onion cut very thinly. Pour over each layer a little salad dressing, and garnish the salad with the hard boiled egg and watercress.

Beet Salad.—Take boiled beetroot, hard boiled egg, salad dressing and watercress. Chop the beets into small, even sized pieces, and pile up in a glass dish. Chop also the white of a hard boiled egg, and sprinkle this over the top and just before serving. Garnish with watercress.

Nutritious Dishes.

Egg and Endive Salad.—Take three or four hard boiled eggs, one head of endive and salad dressing. Boil the eggs hard and cut each one in four, lengthwise. Coat each piece with salad dressing, and arrange them on a bed of endive.

Cheese and Lettuce Salad.—Take cream cheese, cayenne pepper and lettuce. Form the cheese into small, egg shaped balls, adding a little cayenne to represent the spots on the eggs. Prepare some heart of lettuce by removing the center, and place the "eggs" in the middle. Arrange on a dish, and garnish with the center pieces removed and shredded.

Lettuce Salad With Cheese Balls.—Take cream cheese and work smooth with a fork, adding gradually just enough cream to make a stiff paste. Divide into several portions. Color one portion green with parsley and chives pounded to a paste; another red, with pounded red pepper and spiced beets chopped fine; a third yellow, with the crushed yolk of a hard boiled egg; a fourth brown, with pounded pecan meats. Mold into tiny balls, and put one or more of each color in nests with lettuce leaves.

The Squirrels Have a Jolly Peanut Hunt.

One Old Squirrel Found the Peanuts.

JACK and Evelyn had enjoyed a peanut hunt that afternoon at a children's party they had gone to. They told daddy about it when he came home. He told them that he had heard of a peanut hunt the squirrels once had.

"That sounds more fun than even ours was," said Evelyn, "for one always thinks of squirrels enjoying peanuts so much. In fact, any kind of a nut makes a squirrel happy."

"A little girl named Polly," began daddy, "lived near a park. In this park were a great many squirrels. They were principally gray, with great, long bushy tails, and they were very tame. Polly had often fed them peanuts, but she thought it would be lots of fun to have a real peanut hunt.

"So one afternoon she invited three of her best friends to join her, and together they went to the park.

"Each child had a bag of peanuts, and they ran around just as quickly as they could hiding the peanuts and gently driving the squirrels away if they went near a hiding place. One little girl would sit on a bench so the squirrels could come and look inside the bag she held. That gave the others a good opportunity for hiding them.

"When they were all hidden the little girl threw away her bag.

"There were now ever so many squirrels gathered about, and when they looked and saw no peanuts in the bag they were so disappointed, and yet they were sure that they had smelt them and so did not give up all hope.

"Then one very old fat squirrel found three peanuts hidden under a rock.

"He called to the other squirrels and waved his bushy tail in the air, trying to say, 'There are peanuts if we will hunt for them!'

"And then it seemed to dawn on the other squirrels that it was a peanut hunt. They had hunted for nuts before, but they had never heard of a peanut hunt being given for them. But this certainly did seem to be what all these peanuts hidden so plentifully and so near at hand must mean.

"Such a hurrying and scurrying as there was and how the little friends of Polly did enjoy it. Polly knew it would be a success, for she was so fond of squirrels and thought they were very bright and clever.

"The squirrels didn't stop to eat the peanuts after they discovered that there were so many hidden. They just kept on getting more and more until finally they had succeeded in finding them all.

"Then they began to carry the peanuts to their little homes, and they looked so happy, just as if they were free from cares or worries for days to come, for, of course, they didn't have to worry about meals forever and ever so long with the wonderful supply they now had on hand."

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 1009 South Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I had a dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides that clung to me constantly and any hard work made me worse. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells, especially when stooping or lifting and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and other remedies, but nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Rahdolph's drug store. They made a lasting cure. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I did some years ago when they cured me."

THE MAN WHO WOULD BE KING

By Rudyard Kipling

RUDYARD KIPLING

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. The choice of Irvin S. Cobb, was "The Man Who Would Be King," by Rudyard Kipling. Three other noted authors think this is the best short story.

IRVIN S. COBB

PART I.

THE beginning of everything was in a railway train upon the road to Mhow from Ajmir. There had been a deficit in the budget, which necessitated traveling not second class, which is only half as dear as first class, but by intermediate, which is very awful indeed.

My particular intermediate happened to be empty till I reached Nasirabad, when a huge gentleman in shirt sleeves entered and, following the custom of intermediates, passed the time of day. He was a wanderer and a vagabond like myself, but with an educated taste for whisky. He told tales of things he had seen and done, of out of the way corners of the empire into which he had penetrated and of adventures in which he risked his life for a few days' food.

My friend wanted to send a telegram back from the next station to Ajmir, which is the turning off place from the Bombay to the Mhow line as you travel westward. My friend had no money beyond 8 annas, which he wanted for dinner, and I had no money at all owing to the hitch in the budget before mentioned.

"Did you say you are traveling back along this line within any days?" asked he.

"Within ten," I said.

"Can't you make it eight?" said he. "Mine is rather urgent business."

"I can send your telegram within ten days if that will serve you," I said.

"I couldn't trust the wire to fetch him, now I think of it. It's this way: He leaves Delhi on the 23d for Bombay. That means he'll be running through Ajmir about the night of the 23d."

"But I'm going into the Indian desert," I explained.

"Well and good," he said. "You'll be changing at Marwar Junction to get into Jodhpore territory—you must do that—and he'll be coming through Marwar Junction in the early morning of the 24th by the Bombay mail. Can you be at Marwar Junction that time? I would take it more than kind of you if you was to come out of central India in time to catch him at Marwar Junction and say to him, 'He has gone south for the week.' He'll know what that means. He's a big man with a red beard, and a great swell he is. You'll find him sleeping like a gentleman with all his luggage round him in a second class compartment. I ask you as a stranger—going to the west," he said with emphasis.

"Where have you come from?" said I.

"From the east," said he, "and I am hoping that you will give him the message on the square—for the sake of my mother as well as your own."

Englishmen are not usually softened by appeals to the memory of their mothers, but for certain reasons, which will be fully apparent, I saw fit to agree.

"I'll give the message if I catch him," I said, "and for the sake of your mother as well as mine I'll give you a word of advice. Don't try to run the Central India states just now as the correspondent of the Backwoodsman. There's a real one knocking about here, and it might lead to trouble."

"Thank you," said he simply. "And when will the swine be gone? I can't starve because he's ruining my work. I wanted to get hold of the Degumber Rajah down here about his father's widow and give him a jump."

"What did he do to his father's widow, then?"

"Filled her up with red pepper and slippered her to death as she hung from a beam. I found that out myself, and I'm the only man that would dare going into the state to get hush money for it. But you'll give the man at Marwar Junction my message?"

He got out at a little roadside station. When I left the train I did business with divers kings, and in eight days passed through many changes of life.

Then I headed for the great Indian desert upon the proper date as I had promised, and the night mail set me down at Marwar Junction.

The Bombay mail from Delhi makes a short halt at Marwar. She arrived as I got in, and I had just time to hurry to her platform and go down the carriages. There was only one second class on the train. I slipped the window and looked down upon a flaming red beard, half covered by a railway rug.

"Tickets again?" said he.

"No," said I. "I am to tell you that he is gone south for the week. He is gone south for the week!"

The train had begun to move out. The red man rubbed his eyes. "He has gone south for the week," he repeated. "Now, that's just like his impidence. Did he say that I was to give you anything? 'Cause I won't."

"He didn't," I said and dropped.

Later on I reflected that two gentlemen like my friends could not do any good if they foregathered and personated correspondents of newspapers, and might, if they "stuck up" one of the little rat trap states of central India or southern Rajputana, get themselves into serious difficulties. I therefore took some trouble and succeeded, so I was later informed, in having them headed back from the Degumber borders.

Then I became respectable and returned to an office where there were no kings and no incidents except the daily manufacture of a newspaper. A newspaper office seems to attract every conceivable sort of person, to the prejudice of discipline. But that is the amusing part of the year. There are other six months wherein none ever come to call and the thermometer walks inch by inch up to the top of the glass.

It was in that season, and a remarkably evil season, that the paper began running the last issue of the week on Saturday night, which is to say Sunday morning, after the custom of a London paper.

One Saturday night it was my pleasant duty to put the paper to bed alone. It was a pitchy black night, as stifling as a June night can be, and the loo, the redhot wind from the westward, was booming among the tinder dry trees and pretending that the rain was on its heels. It was a shade cooler in the pressroom than the office, so I sat there while the type ticked and clicked and the night jars hooted at the windows and the all but naked compositors wiped the sweat from their foreheads and called for water.

Then the roar and rattle of the wheels shivered the quiet into little bits. I rose to go away, but two men in white clothes stood in front of me. The first one said, "It's him!" The second said, "So it is!" And they both laughed almost as loudly as the machinery roared and mopped their foreheads. The smaller of the two was the man I had met in the Mhow train, and his fellow was the red bearded man of Marwar Junction.

I was not pleased, because I wished to go to sleep, not to squabble with loafers. "What do you want?" I asked.

"Half an hour's talk with you cool and comfortable in the office," said the red bearded man. "We'd like some drink—the contrack doesn't begin yet. Peachey, so you needn't look—but what we really want is advice. We don't want money. We ask you as a favor, because you did us a bad turn about Degumber."

I led from the press room to the stifling office with the maps on the wall, and the red haired man rubbed his hands. "That's something like," said he. "This was the proper shop to come to. Now, sir, let me introduce you to Brother Peachey Carnehan, that's him, and Brother Daniel Dravot, that is me, and the less said about our profession the better, for we have been most things in our time. Carnehan is sober, and so am I. We'll take one of your cigars apiece, and you shall see us light."

I watched the test. The men were absolutely sober, so I gave them each a tepid peg.

"Well and good," said Carnehan of the eyebrows, wiping the froth from his mustache. "Let me talk now, Dan. We have decided that India isn't big enough for such as us."

They certainly were too big for the office. Carnehan continued: "The country isn't half worked out because they that governs us won't let you touch it. Therefore, such as it is, we will let it alone and go away to some other place where a man isn't crowded and can come to his own. We are not little men, and there is nothing that we are afraid of except drink, and we have signed a contrack on that. Therefore we are going away to be kings."

"Kings in our own right," muttered Dravot.

"Yes, of course," I said. "You've been tramping in the sun, and it's a very warm night, and hadn't you better sleep over the notion?"

"Neither drunk nor sunstruck," said Dravot. "We have slept over the notion half a year and require to see books and atlases, and we have decided that there is only one place now in the world that two strong men can Sar-a-whack. They call it Kafiristan. By my reckoning it's the top right hand corner of Afghanistan, not more than 300 miles from Peshawar. They have two and thirty heathen idols there, and we'll be the thirty-third. It's a mountainous country, and the women are very beautiful."

"But that is provided against in the contrack," said Carnehan. "Neither women nor liquor, Daniel."

"And that's all we know, except that no one has gone there, and they fight, and in any place where they fight a man who knows how to drill men can always be a king. We shall go to those parts and say to any king we find: 'D'you want to vanquish your foes?' and we will show him how to drill men, for that we know better than anything else. Then we will subvert that king and seize his throne and establish a dy-nasty."

"You'll be cut to pieces before you're fifty miles across the border," I said. "You have to travel through Afghanistan to get to that country. Are you at all in earnest?"

"A little," said Dravot sweetly. "Now, as big a map as you have got, even if it's all blank where Kafiristan is, and any books you've got. We can read, though we aren't very educated."

I uncased the big thirty two miles to the inch map of India and two smaller frontier maps, hauled down volume Inf-Kan of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, and the men consulted them.

"See here!" said Dravot, his thumb on the map. "Up to Jagdallak, Peachey and me know the road. We was there with Roberts' army. We'll have to turn off to the right at Jagdallak, through Laghmann territory; then we get among the hills—14,000 feet—15,000. It will be cold work there, but it don't look very far on the map."

I smoked while the men pored over Raverty, Wood, the maps and the Encyclopaedia.

"There is no use your waiting," said Dravot politely. "It's about 4 o'clock now. We'll go before 6 o'clock if you want to sleep, and we won't steal any of the papers. When we've got our kingdom in going order we'll let you know, and you can come up and help us to govern it."

"Would two lunatics make a contrack like that?" asked Carnehan with subdued pride, showing me a greasy half sheet of note paper on which was written the following. I copied it then and there as a curiosity:

This contrack between me and you persuing witnesseth in the name of God—Amen and so forth.

One.—That me and you will settle this matter together—i. e., to be Kings of Kafiristan.

Two.—That you and me will not, while this matter is being settled, look at any liquor, nor any woman black, white or brown, so as to get mixed up with one or the other harmful.

Three.—That we conduct ourselves with dignity and discretion, and if one of us gets into trouble the other will stay by him.

Signed by you and me this day.
Peachey Taliaferro Carnehan.
Daniel Dravot.
Both Gentlemen at Large.

I left them still poring over the maps and making notes on the back of the "contrack." "Be sure to come down to the Serai tomorrow to say goodby," were their parting words.

The Kumharsen Serai is the great four square sink of humanity where the strings of camels and horses from the north load and unload. In the afternoon I went down there to see whether my friends intended to keep their word or were lying about drunk.

A priest attired in fragments of ribbons and rags stalked up to me, gravely twisting a child's paper whirligig. Behind him was his servant, bending under the load of a crate of mud toys. The two were loading up two camels and the inhabitants of the Serai watched them with shrieks of laughter.

"The priest is mad," said a horse dealer to me. "He is going up to Kabul to sell toys to the ameer. He will either be raised to honor or have his head cut off. He came in here this morning and has been behaving madly ever since."

"From Roum have I come," shouted the priest, waving his whirligig—"from Roum, blown by the breath of a hundred devils across the sea! Who will take the protected of God to the north to sell charms that are never still to the amir? Ho! Hazar Mir Khan," he yelled to his servant, "drive out the camels, but let me first mount my own."

He leaped on the back of his beast as it knelt and, turning round to me, cried, "Come, thou, also, sahib, a little along the road and I will sell thee a charm, an amulet that shall make thee king of Kafiristan."

Then the light broke upon me, and I followed the two camels out of the Serai till we reached open road, and the priest halted.

"What d'you think o' that?" said he in English. "Carnehan can't talk their patter, so I've made him my servant. He makes a handsome servant. 'Tisn't for nothing that I've been knocking about the country for fourteen years. Didn't I do that talk neat? We'll hitch on to a caravan at Peshawar till we get to Jagdallak, and then we'll see if we can get donkeys for our camels and strike into Kafiristan. Whirligigs for the ameer, O Lord! Put your hand under the camel bags and tell me what you feel."

I felt the butt of a Martini and another and another.

"Twenty of 'em," said Dravot placidly, "twenty of 'em, and ammunition to correspond under the whirligigs and the mud dolls."

"Heaven help you if you are caught with those things," I said. "A Martini is worth her weight in silver among the Pathans."

"Fifteen hundred rupees of capital—every rupee we could beg, borrow or steal—are invested on these two camels," said Dravot. "We won't get caught. We're going through the Khaiber with a regular caravan. Who'd touch a poor mad priest? Goodby." And he gave me his hand cautiously.

Carnehan leaned down and shook hands. Then the camels passed away along the dusty road, and I was left alone to wonder. My eye could detect no failure in the disguises. The scene in the Serai attested that they were complete to the native mind.

Ten days later a native friend of mine, giving me the news of the day from Peshawar, wound up his letter with, "There has been much laughter here on account of a certain mad priest who is going in his estimation to sell petty gauds and insignificant trinkets which he ascribes as great charms to H. H. the ameer of Bokhara."

The two, then, were beyond the border. I would have prayed for them, but that night a real king died in Europe and demanded an obituary notice.

ENSEMBLE CONCERT DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

Large Audience Enjoys Varied Program at First Presbyterian Church.

A varied and unusual musical program was given at the First Presbyterian church, last night, under the direction of Miss May Vincent Whitney, pianist; Herbert J. Harold, organist, assisted, assisted by Miss Ruth D. Sadler, soprano; William Nelson Searles, basso cantante; Arthur Mosher, violinst; Orville T. King, 'cellist and a coterie of Miss Whitney's pupils. The concert attracted a capacity audience.

The program opened with an exceptional example of ensemble playing, von Suppe's well-known "Poet and Pleasant'" overture, performed by eleven persons, playing as a unit. Miss Whitney, Miss Martine Weeks, Miss Elizabeth Martin, Miss Jubilee Rowley and Miss Mildred Burnett were at the pianos, Mr. Harold played the organ, Mr. Mosher the violin and Mr King the 'cello. The Percussion instruments were also effectively introduced. One of Miss Whitney's junior pupils, Master Dorchester Walsh, played a "Petite Humoresque," by Mrs. Virgil with the singing tone and technical accuracy of a little artist.

Miss Elizabeth Martin interpreted Beethoven's Sonata, opus 31, number 3, in a sympathetic manner which showed a musical understanding hardly to be expected of one of her years. Miss Martin's playing reflected credit upon Miss Whitney and upon her own capacity for musical expression.

William N. Searles, Jr., who has always been welcome among music lovers when he visits Plainfield, delighted his audience with Massenet's "Vision Fair" from "Heriodiade" and Speaker's "Circe's Garden." In the second part of the program he introduced two of Miss Whitney's latest vocal compositions, which she consented to have sung at the request of her pupils. "You," is a gem, the words as well as the music of which Miss Whitney composed. The other was a heavier work, composed for the patrictic poem "Oh, Land We Love, America," written by Rev. W. C. Donnell, editor of the Educational Magazine. Miss Whitney was enthusiastically received as a composer as well as a pianist.

"On the Mountain," a characteristic composition, by the Norwegian composer, Grieg, was charmingly interpreted by Mildred Burnett, whose playing is clear and musically interesting

Seldom have local audiences heard a more artistic musical number than Chopin's "Grand Polonaise," as played by Miss Whitney, at the second piano, and Mr. Harold at the organ. Miss Van Zandt is a musician of much talent whose playing pleased all. A sextette of Miss Whitney's younger pupils played a twelve hand composition by Gautier, "The Secret." The rhythm was sustained throughout. The youngsters played from memory and without the loss of a single note.

Miss Rowley interpreted Schumann's difficult "Soaring" in a masterful manner. In direct contrast was her delicate and graceful interpretation of Rubenstein's "Barcarolle," which proved that Miss Rowley is a versatile pianist.

Miss Helen George did some splendid musicianly work in the first movement of Greg's wonderful piano concert. The orchestral accompaniment was arranged for second piano and organ and played by Miss Whitney and Mr. Harold.

Miss Sadler's solo, "Ave Maria," by Bach-Gounod was sung with orchestral accompaniment and was well received.

Miss Whitney and Mr. Harold closed a delightful evening by a most unusual arrangement of "Faust" selections for piano and organ. Miss Whitney was presented with a handsome bouquet by her pupils.

Certified Pure Natural Ice

Prof. John C. Sparks

water expert of New York City, says:

"Natural Ice melted makes a pure, soft, healthful, delicious and cheap drinking water, reducing danger from typhoid. I am fairly of the opinion that if the public knew that melted Natural Ice was on a par with Spring Water, they would not hesitate long between one product at 2½ cents per gallon and the other at 10 cents.

"It is a well known fact that the human body needs plenty of water to keep it in a healthy condition. Hard water is bad for the digestive organs, while soft pure water is healthful and saves doctor bills. NATURAL ICE water is safe because the minerals making water hard are frozen out of the ice."

The advice of Dr. Sparks holds good not only during the hot weather that will soon be here, but all year around. Let us serve you with Certified Natural Ice and use it freely for DRINKING.

R KNIGHTS HOLD 'FIELD DAY'

nity Commandery Celebrates its Twenty-fifth Anniversary.

ABORATE PROGRAM

ightful Affair Given at Home of R. F. R. Huntsman—Grand Commandery Present—Dinner is Followed by Athletic Events.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of inity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, was combined with the ual "field day," held Saturday afoon, on the spacious lawn of Sir ht Robert F. R. Huntsman on Front street, and proved to be of the most delightful affairs of *kind ever given by the comman*y. Weather conditions were ideal the outing and about 140 sir hts and their guests gathered to y the hospitality of Trinity Comdery and also that of Mr. Hunts to whom much of the success of fair was due. An excellent ittee was in charge of the arents and not a detail was . From the start to the close festivities the entire program arried out and everyone present afforded an afternoon of real fun social intercourse for which the knights are well-known.

A feature that added much to the easure of all was the presence of *rand Commander Nelson Y. Dun*an and seven of the associate grand ommandery officers as especially invited guests. This, it is believed, is the first time that the grand commandery officers have been here on such an occasion, and they were given a cordial reception.

The dinner was served on the lawn about 2 o'clock, the tables being arranged to represent a cross, with the grand commandery officers sitting at the head. While the guests were enjoying the feast of good things, the Sphynx Club orchestra, of New York, with Frank McKee as leader, gave a real treat in a program of popular numbers. This orchestra, which has a country-wide reputation, delighted everyone and it was considered an honor to be able to hear these famous musicians. In addition to the regular numbers, there were violin solo selections which were equally pleasing.

The novel decorations which were arranged by the committee were not only admired, but afforded considerable amusement. Suspended on many trees were hand-painted signs comprising gentle "knocks" on the members of Trinity Commandery. At the main entrance were stationed two papier-mache heralds, bearing the commandery colors as well as a welcome to the grand commandery. Large American flags were also suspended from the trees which lent a brilliancy to the occasion.

Following the excellent dinner, served by Mrs. Henry Johnson, the assemblage was entertained for awhile by Louis Kieger, of New York, a clever magician and sleight-of-hand performer. He performed some wonderful tricks which combined with his natural wit, kept the gathering convulsed with laughter.

The rest of the afternoon was devoted to athletic sports, beginning with the "Downfall of China" which put the contestants in good condition for the more strenuous part of the program. William R. Townsend, better known as the tax collector, with the assistance of Harry W. Marshall, supervised this part of the "show" in which everyone participated. Then followed a potato race, three-legged race, tug-of-war, wrestling match and many other "stunts" which afforded amusement to the on-lookers and exercise for the contestants.

There was still further amusement when, after the guests were seated for dinner, Dr. D. C. Adams and Mr. Huntsman, wearing large false heads marched across the lawn with Commander Charles A. Lee, representing a "candidate," and securely fastened with a large rope. Mr. Lee was escorted to a seat at the head of the table where he was accorded the honors due him.

The grand commandery officers present, being eight out of the twelve were: Grand Commander, Nelson Y. Dungan; deputy grand commander, William P. Hayes, Trenton; grand captain general, Joseph McDonald, East Orange; grand prelate, David Demarest Newark; grand treasurer, William Carman, New Brunswick; grand recorder, J. M. Wright, Trenton; grand sword bearer, Archibald C. Smith Lambertville; grand warden, Thomas H. Riddle, New Brunswick; also Past Grand Commanders Dr. D. C. Adams, this city; Josiah S. Davidson, Washington; Peter McGill, Bound Brook.

Albert D. Honeyman, of the committee, had general supervision of the athletic events, a summary of which follows:

"The Downfall of China." Everyone that participated in this event and

HUERTA CANCELS BLOCKADE ORDER

Prevents Anticipated Trouble at Tampico by Doing so and Aids Mediation.

U. S. OFFICIALS PLEASED

Spanish Ambassador Takes News to Bryan—Looks Also as If Carranza Followers Will Be Admitted to Conferences at Niagara Falls. . .

Washington, June 8.—Huerta has suspended his order declaring a blockade of the Port of Tampico. Word to this effect reached the White House today and was received with every evidence of satisfaction. The action is welcomed as solving a ticklish situation that was filled with grave possibilities.

Senor Riano, the Spanish ambassador, called at the State Department today and presented official despatches from Mexico City, announcing General Huerta's sudden change of front. If any reason for the quick shift on the part of Huerta were contained in the message Secretary Bryan did not make them public.

The communication from the Carranza Junta here replying to the latest communication from the Mediators was sent today. It is admitted here that Armistice will be agreed to by the Conseitutionalists but they are confident that the terms submitted by them will be acceptable to the Mediators and the other delegates and that the matter of admitting the constitutionalists delegates to the mediation meetings will be adjusted satisfactorily before the middle of the week.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 8.—The American delegates arrived at the Clifton House shortly after 11 o'clock this morning for a conversation with the Mediators. They received a message from Washington today informing them that the proposed blockade of Tampico by the Huerta government, had been deferred. The general impression created here is that Huerta by not imposing the blockade is showing a willingness to avail himself of the good offices of the United States.

The conference of the Mediators lasted thirty minutes. In a statement, Associate Justice Lamar said "the Mediators had heretofore submitted to us a complete plan and we have now submitted to them our plan. Our counter proposition contains the points upon which we have agreed and the plan which we submitted contains also our views on points upon which there has been neither agreement nor disagreement.."

OBSERVE 'SCOUT DAY' AT DUNELLEN

Five Troops Take Part in Parade and Ceremonial Meeting.

FLAG PRESENTATION

Addresses by Past State Councilor W. B. LaRue, of Jr. O. U. A. M. and E. J. Drusel, of Advisory Board of Boy Scouts.

Starting from Washington Park, Dunellen, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, five troops of Boy Scouts, two hundred and fifty strong, representing the organization of Plainfield, New Brunswick, Metuchen, Bound Brook and Dunellen, together with a uniformed squad of Jr. O. U. A. M., of Friendship Council, New Market, paraded the streets of that borough, inaugurating the ceremonies of the first annual celebration of "Scout Day." Many of the houses along the line of march by the youthful army dressed in khaki uniforms, had American displayed flags in celebratiion of the occasion. The parade terminated at 5 o'clock in Washintong Park, where the Dunellen Boy Cadets were presented with an American flag by Past State Councilor W. B. LaRue, of the Juni*or Order of American Mechanics, for* the donor, H. S. Titsworth. Mr. LaRue in making the presentation delivered an inspiring address on patriotism.

The flag was accepted by President E. J. Dusel, of the Scout advisory board. Mr. Dusel's speech of acceptance was as follows:

"Mr. LaRue and Mr. Titsworth, whom you represent, I accept this flag in the name of the Boy Scout Cadets of Dunellen. They thank you, and appreciate your kind courtesy, not alone for the excellent gift itself but, also for the good will and honorable ideals which prompted it.

"Boys, the flag is a symbol of union and fidelity to principles and in various forms has floated upon the breezes of every climate for centuries.

"This banner before you, reverently called the Stars and Stripes, appeared with the dawn of liberty in our country. Its exact origin is unknown; its beautiful stars and stripes assembled themselves for the nebulous past, when our light began to shine just as the rainbow appeared after the storm, beautiful and awe-inspiring formed from the mists of heaven."

The squad of the Jr. O. U. A. M. troops then fired a salute to the flag after which Scout Commissioner Beals, of Plainfield, spoke. He told of the qualifications of the scout and what the name scout meant. It cvrries with it self-respect and honor. It means that all will be helped as much as possible to get a square chance. It also means the doing of good deeds and the helping of ane another.

He commended the local troop and asked that the parents give their support as much as possible to its advancement.

THREE SNARED IN FLATLEY'S TRAP

Patrolman Nabs Autoists Driving Their Machines at Excessive Speed.

WAR ON OFFENDERS

Many More Will Be Watched by Local Authorities—Patrolmen Assigned to Put End to Practice—Two Get Suspended Sentences.

Three motorists, two from this city and a third from Newark, were snared in Patrolman Thomas Flatley's dragnet yesterday afternoon and appeared in the city court before City Judge W. G. DeMeza this morning. George A. Stelle, of Broad street, Newark, fell a victim while driving through West Front street near Grant avenue, at a speed estimated to exceed twentyfive miles an hour. He pleaded guilty to the charge and admitted that the patrolman was right in his accusations. In consideration of his frankness and because the violation was not a flagrant one, Judge DeMeza suspended a sentence of $50 over him with a warning.

Clarence Rocap, of North Plainfield, was also arrested on West Front street charged with driving a car at thirty miles an hour. He also admitted his guilt. In consideration of his admissions and previous good record as an automobile driver he was also given a suspended sentence of a $50 fine.

Harry Musghsgumoc, of the Netherwood section, was apprehended while driving a motorcycle at a forty-mile clip along West Front street. In court the offender denied exceeding fifteen miles an hour, but evidence showed that all efforts to stop his machine within one block and a half of the patrolman were futile. His attempt to evade the law cost him $10, that being the sentence imposed by the court.

In disposing of the three cases Judge DeMeza outlined to the offenders the crusade against violations of the auto law being waged by the local police department and warned them that all future offenses would mean the full penalty. The names of a number of flagrant offenders living in and nearby Plainfield have been secured by the authorities and every effort will be made to put a stop to the practise. Chief Kiely is determined to stop auto speeding and has assigned men to do this special work.

Several prominent men interested in the institution will attend and make addresses. The Rev. John Baldwin, chaplain of the college, will be in charge of the services and is chairman of the following committees: George J. Tobin, vice-chairman; George F. Reynolds and W. T. Weaver, of Perth Amboy; Edward Radel, of New Brunswick; Martin P. O'Connor, William J. McCloud, Vincent H. Seiler, Edward Nugent and James J. Coleman, of Elizabeth; Colonel John M. Rogers and C. A. Goff, of Trenton; A. A. Cannon, John J. Carty, William Wheeler and Robert MacCormick, of Plainfield.

REAL ESTATE DEALERS IN PUBLIC FISTIC ENCOUNTER

Henry Fellman, of Mariners street Brooklyn, appeared in the city court this morning, as complainant against Samuel Schwartz, of 1030 Arlington avenue, charging him with assault and battery. The act is alleged to have been committed near the trolley station on Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon. The defendant failed to appear in court this morning as instructed.

According to Fellman the defendant struck him about the face without provocation. The two men are real estate dealers in this section and the quarrel is said to have arisen over jealousy growing out of sales made by Fellman. Schwartz will be arrested today and brought into court to answer to the charges preferred against him.

BOROUGH POLICE IN THREE RAIDS

Objectional Resorts "Pulled" By North Plainfield Authorities Last Night.

GET TWELVE PRISONERS

Arraigned Before Recorder Hand in Court This Morning Offenders Forfeit Fines Aggregating $95—Were Gambling and Drinking.

Twelve men were taken into custody today by the police of North Plainfield, last night, when the borough authorities raided three "speakeasies" that have been under surveilance for some time past. The occupants of the places "pulled" were taken completely unawares and hustled off to the borough headquarters before they could realize what had happened. The disorderly rooms were located just over the city line on Somerset street, in a small radius and intoxicants, it is said, were found to be plentiful in each case.

Chief Weiss had carefully planed the details for the raids and the first place pulled was a room in the top floor of the building located at 27 Somerset street. Sneaking up the narrow staircase leading from the street, Weiss and his men were confronted at the landing with two doors. Both were under suspicion and in order not to allow anything to get by him the chief sent men in at each entrance. To their surprise they encountered disorderly rooms on both sides, one run by Frank Maironey and the other by Joe Regie. The frequenters of the place, together with the proprietors were taken to headquarters and placed in cells for trial this morning. After disposing of the first batch the policemen went to the house situated at 10 Somerset place, a short distance away and found Oreste Rossi conducting an alleged objectionable place.

Arraigned before Recorder Hand in the borough court, this morning, the proprietors each paid a fine of $20 in default of which they will be committed to the Someset county jail. In disposing of the cases Recorder Hand dealt out scathing rep*rimands and warned the offenders* that a second appearance on the same charge would mean imprisonment in the county jail without the option of a fine.

Joseph Devenca and Manglo Carronado, of North Plainfield; Pete Bowcossi, Samuel Reno and Louis Parretti, of this city, and Atton Scipion, of Metuchen, were fined $5 each. The other men taken in the raid were given suspended sentences, not having purchased drinks in the places. This made a total of $95 collected in fines. Gambling and drinking constituted the offenses in each case.

This is the second big raid conducted by Chief Weiss during the last month. Several weeks ago a number of colored crap-shooters were taken in a raid on a Duer street house and fines collected aggregating $270.

STYLISH RELIABLE

WHAT WE WON'T DO TO GET CUSTOMERS; AND WHAT WE WILL DO TO HOLD THEM

We like to do business—we enjoy it—nothing fascinates more than trading.

But we will not stoop to deceit and deception to get business.

We will not over-state, over-talk and over-promise. And altho we do not go to every extreme to get customers, we DO go to every extreme to hold them.

Our garments would win you even if our methods didn't. But we keep our "conduct" abreast of our efforts, and the result is a store where you can deal with satisfaction, with pleasure—and with safety.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORMERS WILL MEET IN NEW

The success attending the work of the New Jersey Civil Service Reform Association in defending from the attack of the amendment the act regulating the Civil Service of the State during the recent session of the Legislature has so encouraged the officers of the association that they have decided to go forward, perfect their organization and place the association in even stronger position than it has attained during the past year. To that end a public meeting will be held in the Free Public Library, Washington Square, Newark, Tuesday evening, June 23, at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be preceded by a dinner at the Washington restaurant.

MILITANTS ARE BADLY BEATEN

Worshipers Throw Them Bodily Out of Church.

FEATHERS STREW FLOOR.

Broken Combs, Torn Veils and Ribbons Found at Foot of Altar—One of the "Wild Women" Bites Verger Severely on Hand.

London, June 8.—Striking evidence that the public has been goaded by the militants beyond the limits of endurance was furnished when suffragettes received rough treatment in various parts of London.

Fifteen suffragettes entered the Oratory at Brompton while mass was being said, and the congregation so resented their conduct that they joined almost in a body in ejecting them, the women taking an active part.

Then a hard featured woman stalked up the nave toward the pulpit and shouted something about forcible feeding. The verger and several other men seized the woman. One man put his hand over her mouth. The woman bit through his glove and nipped the flesh. She was hustled out, struggling violently.

This disturber had just been put out when another woman rushed up to the altar and began to scream. She was seized by several men and was finally thrown out, but not without a violent scene. She hit right and left with an umbrella which she carried as people began to leave their seats to help the verger. Well dressed women in the congregation jabbed her with their umbrellas, while men seized the "wild woman's" wrists and wrested her umbrella from her. She continued to kick, struggle and scream like a maniac, but was finally ejected.

This virago had hardly been thrown out when others started a racket in the church, and a series of furious fights resulted. The congregation took a hand, which has never been the case hitherto in the church raids, and they showed no mercy to the "furies." The women worshipers in the church were especially fierce in their attacks on the interrupters. One after another of the militants was ejected amid shrieks and struggles.

Vergers Roll Down Church Steps.

There was an amazing scene on the steps of the oratory as the vergers and others plunged out with the wild, yelling women in their grasp. Twice the vergers rolled down the steps clutching and clutched by screaming women. One of the ejected women was just about entering a taxicab when an incensed woman worshiper who had followed her out rushed up and struck her in the face.

Father Burnham, the superior of the Oratorians, was sent for at the height of the disturbance. Just as he entered the church he was confronted by a wild, elderly Frenchwoman, who yelled in French that "the English are torturing women as they have always done since they tortured Joan of Arc." A hand was clapped over the woman's mouth, and she was unable to deliver the remainder of her speech. She was then ejected.

After the battle was over it was found that the floor near the pulpit was strewn with smashed combs and feathers, scraps of veils, ribbons and handkerchiefs. One woman who had been ejected lay down on the sidewalk outside the church and refused to move. Her teeth had been injured by somebody's fist, and she talked with difficulty. Her hat was torn off, and her clothes were in a disordered condition and covered with dirt, caused by the scufflers trampling over her. Eventually the police arrested her.

"MOTHER" JONES IN CANADA.

Dominion Admits Strike Leader, Overruling Immigration Officials.

Seattle, Wash., June 8.—"Mother" Mary Jones, organizer for the United Mine Workers of America, arrived at Victoria, B. C., the Canadian immigration officials who prevented her from embarking on the previous day having been overruled by their superior officers at Ottawa.

The British Columbia government ordered the exclusion of "Mother" Jones, who had announced her intention of addressing the striking coal miners of Vancouver island, on the ground that she would be likely to "stir up trouble."

"Mother" Jones at once left Victoria for the center of the coal mine strike district at Nanaimo.

ROOSEVELT OFF FOR MADRID.

Ex-President Fallieres Calls on the American Former Executive.

Paris, June 8.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, accompanied by several Americans who are to be guests at the coming wedding of his son Kermit and Miss Belle Wyatt Willard this week, started for Madrid.

The morning was wet, and Colonel Roosevelt remained indoors writing letters at the Hotel de Crillon until he went to the station with Miss Edith Wharton, the novelist, who was his guest at breakfast. Oscar Straus of New York and Miss Page, daughter of the American ambassador at London, who is to be one of the bridesmaids at the wedding, were passengers on the same train.

Plainfield, N. J., June 8, 1914.

BON FIRE NIGHTS.

Plainfield might well take a tip from Spokane, Washington, following the clean-up week which the Board of Health says was so successful. The Advertising Club of that city, following a clean-up period, celebrated a series of "bon fire nights" last week, which left the city more spick and span than ever before. The general clean-up in Spokane resulted in the removal from backyards and alleys of more than 1,000 wagonloads of rubbish, and the Ad Club's bonfires effectively cleaned up vacant lots and railroad rights of way.

The ad men organized themselves into flying squadrons, each with a leader and all with a single purpose—to cut a clean swath everywhere. They had the co-operation of the city health department, which heartily endorsed the new idea. Spokane was divided into six districts. One of these was covered each night during the week, the workers raking into piles and setting a torch to dead grass, leaves, rags and other rubbish to be found on vacant lots. Whatever could not be burned, the health department carted away.

These nightly celebrations were more spectacular than planned. The public generally, well satisfied with its clean-up days, fell readily into the plan for clean-up nights and bonfires lighted the city in a manner equal to any campaign jollification ever held. Indeed, it was more or less of a celebration, marking the conclusion of a real and thorough annual clean-up.

Next year, bonfire week will be celebrated again in Spokane. Next year also, Plainfield might have bonfire nights. Everywhere communities are celebrating clean-up days and clean-up weeks. New ideas are being originated here and adopted there. The movement has had a remarkable growth and a wonderful development as well, and the Spokane Ad Club must be thanked for its innovation, which is well worth copying.

COLLEGES AND PUBLIC SERVICE

The colleges are beginning to train young men definitely, practically for public service, opening their class rooms for the study of municipal problems and turning their attention to the question how best to render a service to municipalities. It has come about by reason of the new demand made by citizens who require that municipal government administration be upbuilt on the basis of competency, efficiency and expert knowledge, withal practical ability.

It was neither a large nor widely heralded gathering of college professors in New York a couple of weeks ago who met for the discussion of how best to accept this new duty of their institutions, but it was the beginning of a new and important movement which bids fair to have a great future. In the past, politicians and their friends have filled the bill for "positions of public trust." If they were college men, the steps were simple—college, law, politics, public office. This is being reducted to a single step—college, office.

It does not mean so much that only college men are now necessary for efficient administration and conduct of municipal affairs. Rather, it shows that trained men are being required more and more and the colleges, instead of training for some other professions, are willing to assist in the demanded training for municipal service. Moreover, these institutions have been undertaking the task newly set for them but their product has been men of theory who seldom were able to be of as much practical service in city office or city appointment as the practical politician whose only theory has been that of providing a service to keep himself or his party in power.

The men to whom city government is to be entrusted in America in the future must be men of efficiency; they must be both expert and efficient to render the greatest good to the greatest number of people. The expert is theoretical enough to be alive to new duties and possibilities which his position offers; the efficient official is primarily practical, and combining the two will bring about successful, honest and efficient administration of public affairs—the goal for which cities pretty generally over the United States are striving or must strive.

The Richmond Company, publishers of the City Directory, are said to be very much discouraged over the effort which they are being compelled to make to put out an edition this year. The financial depression is given by some as a reason for not subscribing for the book this year and every other reason that can be thought of, when the canvassers approach the business men. We cannot understand how any person can be so lacking in public spirit as to fail to assist in the annual compilation of this most valuable reference book of the city. The Richmond Company have given to Plainfield two editions of the directory, for 1912 and 1913, and they have been the first real directories that the city has ever known, having been carefully compiled and as accurate as books of the character can be. It is sincerely to be hoped that those business men who have declined to subscribe this year will reconsider, and notify the Richmond Company that they can again be depended upon to assist in continuing this splendid and valuable work.

It is now explained that those two motorcycles, purchased for the police department, are needed to assist in enforcing the automobile law. If the city's money must be wasted in this manner, why buy two machines? With the small police department we have, is it necessary to have two uniformed men joy riding about town during the daylight hours? Perhaps two machines are needed so that one can always be depended upon to be in fit condition for service. The city has had one experience of the kind, and every patrolman in the department who was unfortunate enough to be forced to ride them breathed a sigh of relief when they were finally sold for a little more than junk. The purchase presents a fine argument for those who say that small extravagances cause the increase in tax rate.

There are so many arguments in favor of consolidation of North Plainfield with Plainfield, that the people of the borough don't care to talk about the matter. They will vote in favor of the move by a large majority, or the present trend of public sentiment is certainly misleading.

By the way, did the police board patronize a home tradesman when they bought the motorcycles, or did some of the city's money go to New York for an article which is supposed to be sold at the same price by dealers everywhere?

PETIT JURY DRAWN.

Elizabeth, June 8—The following Plainfield men was drawn today as members of the petit jury to serve two weeks beginning next Monday: Charles E. Drake, Joseph A. Meyer, Judson Bonnel, Eugene A. Laing and Charles Burnett. Peter Ritter, of Fanwood, was also drawn.

GREECE DENOUNCES CARNEGIE REPORT

Statement Issued Against the Peace Investigators.

Washington, June 8.—The Carnegie peace foundation, whose purpose is the promotion of universal peace, is severely attacked by the Greek government in an official statement issued here from the Greek legation. According to the statement, the Carnegie foundation's commission, sent to Europe to investigate alleged atrocities in connection with the Balkan wars, was so pro-Bulgarian that in an effort to shield the Bulgarians it slandered Greece through misstatement in extraneous matter, ignored documentary evidence regarding the barbarity of the Bulgarians and heaped upon Greece false charges.

The official statement is in reality a preface to a lengthy and detailed report prepared by the Greek government for dissemination in this country within the next few weeks as an indignant answer to the charges made against the Greek armies by the findings of the foundation's commission.

The statement given to the press by Alexander Vouros, the Greek charge d'affaires, replies to statements contained in the portions of the commission's report already given to the public and says:

"In the first place, the commission's report charges that in each instance of atrocities committed the Bulgarians acted under provocation and that in each case the accusation was greatly exaggerated. What does the report mean by 'provocation?'

"It is a notorious fact that in Nigrita more than 400 inhabitants were slaughtered and the town was sacked by the Bulgarians.

"In Doran the Bulgarians killed the Greek bishop and thirty Greek citizens.

"In Stronmitza the Bulgarians killed three Greek men, one Greek woman and sixteen Mussulmans."

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR NEW TERMINAL

P. S. C. to Erect Handsome Structure on Park Place, Newark.

A contract has just been awarded by the Public Service Newark Terminal Railway Company for the foundation for its proposed terminal station on Park place and the subway leading thereto in the city of Newark. The successful bidder was the Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Corporation, of New York. Seven firms competed for the work. It is expected that the contract will be executed early next week and that actual operations will be begun within thirty days. One year will be the time limit for the completion of the job and it will be stipulated that the foundation shall be ready to permit of the beginning of work on the building itself not more than nine months after the contract is signed. Sealed proposals will be invited for the building during the coming week and it is hoped to award that contract early in July.

The terminal station and its subway approach are part of an extensive plan for the development of transportation facilities and the relief of street railway congestion in Newark which will involve the expenditure of upwards of $5,000,000. The contract awarded calls for an outlay of between $600,000 and $700,000 and covers the work to be done below the ground level.

The additional facilities which the terminal station will provide will favorably affect all municipalities having trolley service with Newark.

WHEN CAT MEETS CAT

The comic possibilities of not only the female of the species on the stage, but the feline, is the latest realization of playwrights whose chief purpose is to contrive witty comedies of contemporary domestic life. People who ought to know say that when making a play out of the book "Tante" Haddon Chambers not only put Tante on the stage, but blended Tante with a very celebrated artistic cat—a once superb "artiste" who still lives, but whose claws, though long as ever, are considerably dulled. It was a fashion with this "artiste" always eventually to snub most cruelly those who had been kindest to her. And the acme of her personal satisfaction—when an idolater had used the colloquial phrase, "I beg you on my knees"—was to quickly retort before the other person's knee was bent, "Rise; your advice is an impertinence." It is at just such a moment that Ethel Barrymore is shown in the above illustration.

EX-BATTERY LOST AN ERRATIC GAME

Many Errors Feature Dunellen's One-sided Victory Over Somerville.

HARNEY PITCHED WELL

Alberts and Etts do Some Good Fielding for Their Team—Little to Choose Between the Two Teams in the Hitting Department.

Jimmy Montross' Dunellenites took Parker's crack Somerville baseball baseball team into camp on Mauer Oval, Dunellen, Saturday afternoon by the decisive score og 11-5. The game was a loosely played affair, the two teams having an aggregate of fourteen errors between them. Warry McLaughlin and Lou Dixon, the popular ex-Dunellen battery worked for Somerville against their old teammates. Warry pitched a better game than the score indicates as most of the runs that were made off his delivery came after his opponents should have been retired scoreless.

Lon Dixon is rapidly regaining the form lost by him when he contracted malaria and lost forty pounds in weight on his tryout last year with a league down in Georgia. Lou cracked out two clean singles and was robbed of a three-base hit when Alberts collared his fly after a hard run in deep left. He has not gauged his throw to the keystone sack as yet, but it is only a question of a short time before he will be cutting the base runners off with his old time accuracy, while Pierce Harvey, the Bound Brook boy, who was on the firing line for Dunellen, was touched for ten hits, three of which were two sacks he kept the hits well scattered. In the first inning although Purcell and Etts the two first men to face Harvey doubled in rapid succession, Somerville only obtained one run during that session. Another example of Harvey's remarkable pitching in the pinches was in the sixth inning during which Somerville failed to score although Hickey and Dixon had singled in succession with more gore. Teeling one of the two home players on the Dunellen team had his second tryout in fast company. Teeling who is a catcher, appears to be one of the finds of the season. Joe Alberts played his usual brilliant game in left garden for Dunellen, making five classy catches. Etts, the ex-New England leaguer played a good all around game for Somerville.

HAROLD NEILSON THE STAR OF CONGREGATIONAL MEET

The boys and girls of the Congregational Junior C. E. held an athletic meet at Randolph Field Saturday afternoon, which was much enjoyed by participants and onlookers. The three-inning baseball game between the boys and the girls resulted rather disastrously for the girls, the score being 15 to 3, but perhaps that was due to the fact that two boys played on the girls' team. The battery for the girls was Marjorie Kirkner, pitcher and Roberta Fuller, catcher.

The winners of the hundred yard dash were Robert Fuller, first place, and Harriet Morgan, second place. Albert Renny was second for the boys and Helen Rice for the girls.

In the running high jump Harold Nielsen was first and Harriet Morgan second. In the running broad jump Robert Fuller was first and Harold Nielsen second. In the three-legged race Helen Rice and Elsie Vail won first place and Harold Nielsen and Lawrence Marshall, Jr., second place. The finish of the sack race was in the following order: Robert Fuller, Harold Nielsen, Harriet Morgan. The base race was won by Robert Fuller and Harriet Morgan. A sub-junior race followed in which Gordon Fuller was first, and Lillian Rice second.

As a grand climax there was a "Daddies' Race," which was won by J. F. Fuller with Lawrence Marshall second.

Lemonade an cake were sold and the juniors were much pleased with the amount of money secured.

Winner of Preliminary Matches Between Different Countries Meets American Team For the Trophy In the Late Summer—Antipodeans and Canadians May Play In West.

Tennis players representing the cream of seven nations will contest in the 1914 Davis cup matches to be held in this country and abroad, and definite arrangements are now under way to make this the best season ever experienced in international competition.

England, Australia, Germany, Canada, France, Belgium and the United States will be represented in this year's Davis cup matches, the first six being the challenging nations.

It is generally thought that Australia will be challenger for the cup when the final round is reached, but there may be a few surprises in store. Canada drew Australia in the preliminary tie, but the northern players are not discouraged, and they look forward to the match with pleasure. Canada disposed of both Belgium and South Africa last year and lost the matches with the United States.

As two of the star Canadians live on the Pacific coast an effort is being made by Canada to have the preliminary tie played in that section. R. P. Powell, one of the best of the Canadian racket wielders, and B. P. Schwengers both favor Vancouver or Victoria for the matches.

ANTHONY N. WILDING.

Australia has officially named its Davis cup tennis team as the players are on their way abroad, and a number are on their way to the scene of the Davis cup matches. From Melbourne comes the report that Anthony F. Wilding, the world's greatest player; Norman E. Brookes, Alfred W. Dunlop and Stanley N. Doust will make up the team. The sailing of A. W. Dunlop was to have been delayed, owing to the burning of the Colosseum, one of the drapery stores owned by the company in which Dunlop is a director. But almost at the last minute Dunlop decided to sail on the original date and did so.

Among the leading players in the 1914 matches will be J. C. Parke, England, the great Irish player, who has been ranked by many as being on a par with our own Maurice E. McLoughlin, champion of the United States; H. Kleinsroth, the German; Anthony Wilding and Stanley Doust, Australia; R. B. Powell, Canada, and our own Davis cup stars, Maurice McLoughlin, R. Norris Williams and Wallace E. Johnston.

The players who will probably be selected to represent the various nations are as follows:

United States—McLoughlin, Williams, Johnston, Hackett.

England—Dixon, Lowe, Barrett, Parke.

Canada—Schwengers, Powell, Mayes, Foulkes.

Australia—Wilding, Brookes, Dunlop, Doust.

Germany—Rahe, Kleinsroth, Freitzhelm, Kreutzer.

France—Decougis, Gobert, Laurentz, Germot.

SETS SPEEDWAY RECORD.

Boillot Circles Indianapolis Track In 1 Minute 35 4-5 Seconds.

Georges Boillot, the French automobile race driver, set a new record for one lap at the Speedway, Indianapolis, when he circled the two and one-half mile track in 1 minute 35 4-5 seconds. This is the second time that the record has been broken in three days.

The old record of 1 minute 37 seconds, made in 1910, was lowered by Joe Dawson, who circled the track in 1 minute 36 2-5 seconds. Later Boillot equaled Dawson's mark and afterward circled the course in three-fifths of a second less time.

Hope Chapel Ran Away With the Contest in the Last Half of Game.

Hope Chapel came through with a 7 to 3 victory over the Levgar A. C. Saturday afternoon, better hitting being responsible for the Sunday-school Leaguers' verdict. Dick Schott, twirling for the victorious side, allowed but two hits and fanned fifteen of the opposing batters.

McFadden, on the other hand, was no puzzle to the Chapelites and his delivery was touched up for ten swats. He succeeded in disposing of eleven along the strikeout route.

WOMEN'S SINGLES TITLE PLAY ON P. C. C. COURTS

The club championship for women will be started Monday morning, June 15, at 10 o'clock, on the Plainfield Country Club courts. Play will continue throughout the week and the finals are scheduled to be played Saturday, June 20, at 3:30.

Entries close Sunday evening June 14, at 8 p. m., with Miss Barbara Fleming, 'phone 683-W.

DECIDING GAME THURSDAY BUT WHERE WILL THEY PLAY?

Announcement was made this morning that the third and deciding Interscholastic League game between Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools would be played next Thursday afternoon, but there is some hitch regarding the field on which the contest is to be played. Captain Smalley, of N.P. H. S., has offered to flip a coin for the field and this appears to be the only logical way to settle the argument but the Plainfield coach has balked at the idea.

Plainfield naturally holds out for Parker Field and North Plainfield likewise favors Hyde Oval, both being the respective contenders' home fields. It is no more than fair, however, to give each team an even chance at the deal and coin proposition will eventually have to be resorted to.

BAPTISTS SQUELCHED BY MONROE PLAYERS

Heavy Hitting Marks Contest Waged in the Sunday School League Saturday.

Superior stick work annexed a one-sided verdict for the Monroe avenue Sunday-school League team at the expense of the First Baptist Leaguers on the West End avenue diamond Saturday afternoon by a score of 15 to 6. Pennoyer and Beekman led the hitting for the winning side and their fielding work was also above the ordinary.

Many errors were chalked up by both aggregations during the nine rounds of play and the frequent misplays accounted for a majority of the runs. Many of the winning side's hits came at opportune moments and little trouble was experienced in taking the upper hand and holding it.

KNOCKS HOME RUN, THEN DIES

Boy's Exertion In Stretching Double Into Homer Kills Him.

New York, June 8.—Charles Clarke, eighteen years old, of 114 East Ninetieth street, died of heart disease just after making a home run in a ball game in Dyckman street, between Nagle and Post avenues.

Clarke was the catcher of the St. Stephen's Roman Catholic church baseball team, known as the Lyceums. This club was playing a game in a vacant lot with the Knights of Columbus team of St. Vincent de Paul's church. When Clarke went to bat in the fifth inning he knocked what seemed to be a two base hit. In the excitement he kept on running and stretched his two bagger into a homer.

After crossing the plate he sat on an embankment. Suddenly he began to wave his arms. His companions called a policeman, who summoned Dr. Scholer from the Washington Heights hospital. The boy died before the surgeon arrived.

AMONG THE HYDE OVAL BLEACHERITES

Even "Canadians" are willing to admit that Ernie Stahl failed to exhibit the steam of a Johnson or the cunning of a Mathewson against the red and blue rivals, but the eight men he had in the field made up for any deficiency in the hurling department. Stahl was on the winning side, but his exhibition of curvology was not superior to that of Sminck.

Speaking of Sminck we are forced to admit that he has a deplorable habit of taking lofty flights at crucial intervals, but when traveling at his best Saturday aftternoon he put some steam pressure on his assortment of benders.

Then again, being called out after covering 100 yards of territory on a healthy wagon tongue lick for not registering at one of the stations, is enough to take the pep out of any individual. Sminck is one of the players who has the good of his team at heart from start to finish and his little thoughtlessness plainly disconcerted him during the remainder of the contest.

Once more we are going to wield the hammer on this regrettable practice of offering loving cups as an incentive to interscholastic league batting. Very few of the schoolboys have been made to realize that a free ticket to first counts as much as a safety to them in figuring up batting averages, and as a result every man who came to the plate swung his bat with the one thought and that was to register a hit.

The inevitable hit, when it can be clouted out at the right moment is a good thing, but the trouble with thse schoolboy games is that the trick can never be pulled at the right time. Both sides had plenty of chances to draw walks from the pitchers and in many cases a batter, with three and one on him, took a whack at the sphere and sent it to a fielder, this resulting in his being retired. He didn't get the hit and his team didn't benefit by his time at the plate. The sooner the schools do away with this batting trophy business the better it will be for the game.

Yougottahandit to that man Victorson as a first baseman. The Plainfield High School youth is the cleverest performer at the first station in this section. In the league game he made a number of hair-raising stops that were ticketed for the outfield and he was the center of attraction for the fans who dote on good fielding. He can also come across with a hit when the bingle is needed. It might be well for some of these semi-professional team managers who are deploring the fact that Plainfield hasn't any home talent, to give this youngster the "once over."

Wrangling with the umpire is another thing that will have to be stopped in the Interscholastic Leagu if it is going to live to a ripe old age. All hands were ready to pick quarrels with the officials in Saturday's contest and although several of the decisions were questionable it would have looked a whole lot better if the suffering side had given in. The quicker the schoolboys are brought to the realization that pestering an umpire profits them nothing the better it will be for them.

In baseball, as in basketball, the officiating task is a difficult one and the first infallible umpire or referee will have to be discovered. In our opinion neither of the men who umpired Saturday's important issue would intentionally deprive a side of its rightful belongings and a majority of the kicks were of the petty variety and wholly unwarranted.

Many there were on the sidelines Saturday who wondered why Bill Peacock did not get into the game and we are still among those who are doing a little wondering on the side. Taken as an all around player, Peacock is far superior to several of the men who took part in the engagement and his presence would have materially strengthened a faltering lineup. Someone probably harbors the idea that Peacock is needed next year and for that reason he is being saved for we know not what.

PLAY FOR CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP

Three Sixteens Qualify for Match Play Round at Country Club.

GLENNEY WINS MEDAL

Makes Best Gross Score in Competition and Divides Points with H. T. Eaton for Golf Committee Cup.

The blue ribbon event of the year, the golf championship of the Plainfield Country Club, was started on Saturday, and as usual, attracted an unusually large field for the qualifying round. There were three sixteens to qualify, and the competition throughout was exceedingly close, the scores being low on the average. Will T. Glenney, who by his playing on Saturday, proved conclusively that he is now at the top of his game, won the bronze medal for the lowest score of the day in this competition. He made the eighteen holes in 76. He was particularly good on driving and accurate on his approaches and putting.

It has been arranged to continue the competitive, first round match play, Saturday, June 20, to allow those who wish to attend the Princeton game on June 13, but those who prefer can play their first round next Saturday.

Those who qualified in the three sixteens and their pairings for first round play are as follows:

First sixteen—J. Whitney Baker, 93, vs. S. H. Patterson, 89; Arthur Murphy, 84, vs. A. J. Watson, 89, W. Lester Glenney, 88, vs. R. S. Rowland, 88, Charles A. Reed, 88, vs. L. G. Carman, 85; H. R. HARNEY BACK FROM GREENSBORO TEAM

Central New Jersey Player Will Perform for Plainfield for the Rest of Season.

Percy Harney, Bound Brook's pride as a twirler, returned Saturday from the Greensboro team, of the North Carolina League, where he has been trying out during the last two months. Hot weather conditions are assigned for the Bound Brook youth's return from the bushers and he has decided that Central New Jersey promises a good deal more for the young twirler than the sunny south.

Immediately upon his return Harney communicated with Manager Dorflinger, of the local team, and was given a job in right field Saturday afternoon against Westfield. He cracked out two beautiful bingles in his eastern engagement and will be a permanent occupant of that berth in the Queen City fold during the remainder of the season.

All that remains to put a fitting finale on the schoolboy baseball season in Plainfield and North Plainfield is the playing of a contest between an all-Star Interscholastic League cast and Manager Ernest Dorflinger's Plainfield Pets and present indications are that this will be the bill at Parker Field next Saturday afternoon. Dorflinger has announced that he will send Russell Stewart, a Plainfield boy, against the interscolastic representative in this all-important contest but otherwise his lineup will be the same that beat Westfield by such a decisive margin last Saturday.

A game of this calibre would interest hundreds of local and borough fans and at the same time would give Dorflinger an opportunity to get a line on some possible talent to represent the city during the summer months. He has long been waiting for just such an opportunity and welcome a chance to send his present lineup against the schoolboys. The all-star cast is a strong one and capable of giving a good account of themselves against any aggregation in this section. The Plainfield team is admitted to be of first-class calibre and in order to pull out on top the youngsters will have to put up a stiff argument.

Nothing remains but to pick the best nine out of twenty-seven representing Leal School, North Plainfield High School and Plainfield High School and that task has been assigned to us. It is an unpleasant duty to single out any nine men when so much is involved and has in some cases engendered considerable hard feeling from different quarters. The picking in some cases has been close but careful consideration has been accorded each player and the team as mapped out looks like a representative one.

To do the hurling we have reserved two men, Donald Sminck, of P. H. S., and Daniel Denney, of the Borough School. Although he did not get into the game Saturday Denney is a good man and in our estimation is a little better than Stahl. Sminck should be used to start the game but Denney would prove an able man to relieve the Plainfield box artist about the fourth or fifth inning.

As a catcher Ralph Smalley, captain of North Plainfield, looks like the one best bet? He can handle any of the twirlers sent in to do duty and his throwing is better than that of any other man in the league. Ralph is also recognized as somewhat of a hitter and his field generalship cannot be equalled.

At first Victorson is alone. This position is one that is easy to fill. The Dunellen youth, performing for P. H. S., has covered himself with glory in the field and at the bat. His fielding has been little short of miraculous and he will probably be one of the players first to be gobbled up by the semi-pros. Burner is also good but his work is not on a par with that of the Plainfield boy.

Conroy is picked over his other two opponents for the second base job. This is one of the hardest decisions to arrive at, as O'Leary has been a close contender for the berth. Conroy is a consistent fielder and can usually be relied upon for a tingle.

At short Dilts has loomed up strongly in the interscholastic battles and although not as experienced as Captain Rosenson, of P. H. S., he is a more consistent performer. Rosenson has not been playing up to his usual good standard of late and it would not be fair to concede him the job on his work in the league race. Dilts has developed wonderfully in the past few weeks and can handle all that comes his way around the short field.

Warren Townley is without an equal as a third baseman in the league. One of the smallest performers of the twenty-seven, he may well be classed as the most valuable to his team. Place him on third and you have an infield that will handle all that comes from the Plainfield Pets' bats. He is a speedy fielder, a good hitter and has a wonderful little whip as demonstrated by his many lightning sweeps from third to first.

In the outfield Dunning looks like the guardian for the left-hand territory, Van Deventer could be easily shifted to center and Peacock looks like the best right fielder. Because of his hitting and natural qualifications for left field, Dunning is given the choice over Van Deventer. The Plainfield man, in our estimation, would do far better work at all times if shifted to center field as a regular. He has a liking for long straight flies and can leg it with the best of them. He is a good hitter and a timely one. Although he did not play in the last game we have yet to find a reason for keeping Bill Peacock on the bench. An experienced player he would fill in excellently in the right garden and his hitting would no doubt be a big help. Van Mater, like Rosenson, was far better at the beginning of the season than he is now and while he has been suffering a temporary letup Peacock has forged his way to the front.

Although we have consented to pick the team we balk at the task of selecting a captain and it is now up to the schoolboys to get together and select the right man as a leader.

MATTY'S "KID" BROTHER HELPS LOCALS TO DOWN OLD CENTRAL NEW JERSEY RIVAL

Facing the slants of the heralded Cowperwaite, Manager Ernest Dorflinger's Plainfield Pets exhibited their best baseball of the season Saturday afternoon and took the Westfield aggregation into camp by a score of 9 to 1 on the latter's grounds. There was nothing to the issue but Plainfield from start to finish and four runs pulled across the platter in the three opening rounds gave the invaders a lead that was never overhauled. Although thirteen of the locals fell victims to the home twirler's cross-fire, dying on strikes, ten safe bingles were clouted out during the nine rounds of battling and these were ample to sew up the game.

"Hank" Mathewson, a brother of the world famous Christy, adorned the Plainfield rifle pit, and held the home sluggers at bay during the entire contest. He allowed but five clean hits and whiffed five. Just by way of variation he also contributed a brace of two station licks and personally supervised seven fielding chances. The entire Pet aggregation put up a splendid game and the Plainfielders' tight fielding and clever base running came as a complete revelation following the blow-up of the previous week.

Not a Westfield uniform crossed the scoring depot until the ninth session when Matty's temporary let-up allowed Worth to garner this laurel for his side. Harney, fresh from the Greensboro team of the North Carolina League, graced a Plainfield uniform and looks like a valuable addition to the local combination's roster. He was put in to cavort about the left field garden at the eleventh hour by Manager Dorflinger and played his role to perfection. Harney, Wonders, Mathewson and Stewart led the Plainfield team's hitting, each garnering a brace of safeties during the encounter. The fielding honors of the contest were unusually evenly divided up, all of the eighteen men on the field putting up a faultless brand of the national pastime.

The engagement brought out one of the largest gatherings of fans of the season at Westfield, a meeting between Plainfield and the home boys being of vital interest to every fan in that burg. A large amount of the old time rivalry was exhibited from the sidelines and the home rooters expect to see their favorites reverse matters when thy come to Plainfield for a return game.

FANS AT SOUTH PLAINFIELD TREATED TO DIAMOND SPORT EXTRAORDINARY

Baseball fans who like the brand of diamond competition featured by lots of hitting and a big harvest of runs got all they were looking for at South Plainfield, yesterday afternoon, when Manager McDonough's aggregation took a crack at the Dunellen baseball clan, weakened, bolstered and cut to pieces by substitutions. The final score favored South Plainfield by a margin of 17 to 12 and incidentally was their first victory of the Sunday baseball regime in that burg.

A throng of fans numbering nearly 500 took advantage of the conveniences offered for reaching the field and plenty of good excitement was given the gathering during the afternoon. Auto buses traveling from Plainfield to South Plainfield at ten minute intervals took charge of a large mob of Sunday baseball goers and none were sorry they made the trip.

Otto Frederickson, the local boy, who has been keeping so much under cover of late, did the twirling for the villagers, and although touched up at times he demonstrated his ability to hold the rival side in check at crucial moments. Freddy was laboring under adverse conditions yesterday, all of the eighteen men on the field being noticeably slow on their feet for some reason or other. When he so chose, Freddy handled the situation in a masterly way and at other times contributed his little share to the entertainment by letting the Dunellenites engage in an occasional batting bee.

Good healthy licks to the cabbage patch in deep left field featured the contest and the guardians of this territory doubly earned their money in chasing the illusive horsehide through the weeds. The long hitting brought forth considerable enthusiasm from the crowd and the visitors to the village were given plenty to keep them awake during the contest. The score, while large, was always close and it was anybody's game up to the final inning. Burlesque pastiming was evident in some stages and this lent the needed spice to the affair from a spectator's point of view.

Although fourteen out of the eighteen players got in at least one healthy lick, Coyle was the laurel winner with the bat. The little third baseman garnered a single, a two-bagger, a three-bagger and a home run.

SAURERS BLOW UP AND ROYALS WIN

Late Rally Proves Fatal to Factoryites Chances of Getting Away With Game.

After holding the Royal Giants scoreless for five innings the Saurer Club blew up Saturday afternoon, at Parker Field and was defeated by the score of 6 to 3.

Saurer began the scoring in the second innings when Alberts walked, was sent to third on Garretson's long single to right field, Garretson stole second and Dixon knocked the ball into left field for two bases, scoring Alberts and Garretson. Wilson struck out, Conshay singled and stole second, Dixon was thrown out at home, Wilson running for Conshay, stole third. Jaeger's fly to Williams left two on bases. Saurer also scored a run in the fifth inning on the wild throws of Hall and Valentine.

In the sixth innings the Royals tied the score by a splendid rally and took advantage of costly errors by Alberts and Harriman. Banks singled and was sent to third on Williams's two-base hit. At this point of the game Dixon replaced Conshay on the mound, the latter taking Dixon's place in right-field. Klein fouled out to the catcher and Valentine struck out. Alberts misjudged Ford's long drive and Banks and Williams crossed the plate. Maiden singled, sending Ford home and was put out stealing second. In the eighth inning Royal increased its lead by three points. Valentine's triple scored Williams and Klein and he was sent home on Ford's single.

The features of the game were Valentine's three-base hit and the spectacular one-hand catch pulled off by Wilson when he ran down the embankment after Coleman's long drive.

Saurer played the more consistent ball but its players were unable to bunch their hits at the right time. Few Royal men were left on bases.

Wonderful fielding on the part of Ernie Stahl's teammates and some timely bingling, intermingled with the opposition's contribution of misplays, gave North Plainfield High School a well deserved victory on the baseball diamond over the city High School youths on Hyde Field Saturday afternoon. The final count of 5 to 2 indicates plainly the superiority of the boroughites over their conquerors in the previous title clash and at no stage of the contest were the home team's chances of ringing up a verdict seriously impaired. Fielding, batting and rounding the bases in a style that overshadowed the local team's playing the "Canadians" early rang up an advantage that was never squelched.

Although he twirled gilt-edged ball in the opening stanzas Sminck was plainly unnerved after he was called out for not touching first, when he had clipped the pill for a three cushion trip in the fifth canto, and during the last four session at the gutta percha North Plainfield indulged in a swatfest. There were frequent intervals when the Plainfield pitcher's teammates handled the pellet like a ball of quick-silver dipped in vaseline, and these erratic stages were gobbled up by the boroughites in a peppery fashion. Opportune hitting also played a conspicuous role and taking a casual resume of the contest from curtain rise to curtain fall the two teams exhibited complete reversals of form from that demonstrated in the opening game. Plainfield took the toboggan and North Plainfield mounted the ladder with the firey little Tommy Mullin ever on the job acting as a booster when he youngsters appeared to be slipping.

Red and blue cohorts clung to a last dying hope, well remembering North Plainfield's likeliness to take an aerial ascension but the light failed to shine in the invaders' camp. North Plainfield performed consistently and with a tantalizing confidence from start to finish and little short of a miracle could have deprived them of a decision. Brilliant flashes of good playing were exhibited by both sides in spasmodic intervals but Plainfield's never came at the right moment. When the final punch was called for it could not be delivered by a P. H. S. bat weilder and in other instances inexcusable spills in the field let markers trickle across the pan. Black and red stocking sprinters dented the home platter in the first, fifth, sixth and ninth chapters while the local boys supplied the entertainment to the angry mob of scholastic fans in the fourth and eighth.

No excuse can be advanced for the downfall of the Plainfielders but there is every reason to believe that better baseball was responsible for North Plainfield's decision. To attempt to give credit to an individual for winning th game or monopolizing the limelight would be folly for every man on the victorious side contributed his little might toward evening up matters with the Queen City representatives. It would be equally as difficut to place the responsibility for Plainfield's defeat save by handing it to the conquering crew. Bitter rivalry was apparent at times and both teams fought tooth and nail for everything that bobbed above the horizon in the way of a possible advantage. At times the engagement was interrupted while a war of words was waged and in one instance matters grew hot around the home station while coaches and captains met in a wrangle. Everything was settled after a few minutes of arguing, however, and when the final out was handed in there remained no doubt in the minds of the spectators of the rightful claimant to the victory.

CAPTAIN CHEAPE.

Hardest Hitter on the English Polo Team Injured In Practice.

Captain Cheape, the hardest hitter on the English polo team, was hit in the face with a ball in the final practice of the team at Westbury, N. Y., and for awhile it was feared that his nose was broken and that he would be incapacitated for the first game of the international series on Tuesday. Later the doctor who examined the injured player said that the bridge of the nose was not broken and that Captain Cheape would be in condition to play on Tuesday. The cartilage of the nose was torn, and that caused it to bleed profusely

KRAFT LURED AWAY BY $18 A CONTEST

Quits Somerville Team to Pitch Week-end Ball for Delaware League Team.

Eddie Kraft, for the past three years star twirler for the Somerville team and one of the best hurlers on the Central New Jersey League circuit, has been gobbled up by the Delaware League and during the remainder of the season will twirl week-end ball for that combination. The Delaware League operates Saturday afternoons and this has necessitated the retirement of Kraft from the Somerville fold. Manager Parker has signed Warry McLaughlin, the former Dunellen pitcher, to take his place and Warry worked in his first game Saturday.

Kraft was offered his contract during the fore part of last week and will receive the sum of $18 for each game in which he works. He is a slightly built hurler and pitching one day aweek is just suited to him. Kraft has a neat assortment of curves and a good head, the factors which will probably land him a permanent job.

HACKETTSTOWN TREATED HIGH BRIDGE TO DRUBBING

Hackettstown, June 8:—Hackettstown played its third game Saturday afternoon and won its third victory in an easy contest in a return game with High Bridge at that place. Hackettstown's players batted Peterson heavily throughout the whole game, and there were many two-baggers, and the opponents were not in the game at any time. Loosening up in the fifth inning allowed High Bridge to score five tallies. The score:

NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

AN ATTRACTIVE WREATH SUITABLE FOR EMBROIDERING MANY THINGS

Dainty little wreaths may be used when just a small quantity of hand work is required. Often they may be combined with a bit of lace or a cluster of tucks, or they may be used for enclosing an initial.

This simple little wreath is from pattern No. 14089, which includes a sheet of wreaths and sprays. They are suitable for trimming waists, dresses, underwear, neckwear, infants' clothes or fancy articles, and should be developed in solid work and eyelets. Fine white or colored mercerized cotton should be used for embroidering this design on cotton or linen fabrics, and filo silk should be used on crêpe de Chine or other silk fabrics. Do not use silk for embroidering any article that is frequently laundered, as it is apt to crack and become ruffled.

The size of this sheet is 12 by 12 inches and it contains two small wreaths and ten sprays which may be combined in any way desired.

Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer pattern will be supplied to readers upon receipt of price, 10 cents.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

Bordered materials, batiste, voile and crêpe will be much used for simple little summer frocks. This design, No. 7620, is excellently suited to any of these materials. The blouse crosses surplice fashion, in the front and closes in the back. The "V"-shaped opening may be filled in with a short net guimpe. The skirt is a three-piece model, gathered slightly at the top and having three large tucks at the bottom which give the effect of a three tiered skirt. If this dress were developed in a plain material, taffeta, silk poplin or voile, it would be a very attractive frock for afternoons during the summer and early fall. The old-fashioned quillings and plaitings of grandmother's day are coming into vogue again for trimming purposes. A narrow plaiting of a contrasting silk could be effectively used to outline the "V" on the front and back of this bodice and to finish the sleeves. It could also be used at the top of the skirt instead of the sash, if preferred. Six yards of 36-inch material will be needed to make this dress in size 36. The pattern is cut in five sizes, 34 to 42.

This is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. If may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

DANDELION SALADS.

DINNER MENU.
Corn Chowder.
Roast Ribs, Gravy.
Baked Potatoes.
Apple Sauce. Green Beans.
Dandelion Salad.
Lemon Ice. Cherry Pie With Cheese.
Coffee. Tea. Milk.

CRISP young dandelions, which may be bought in the market or found on almost any lawn at this season, make tempting and wholesome salads.

Novel Combination.

Mixed Herb Salad.—Wash in some cold water some dandelion leaves, an equal quantity of young dock leaves, some wood sorrel and young mint. Shake the water from the herbs, put them in a salad bowl with chopped herbs, season with salt and pepper, squeeze in the juice of a lemon and pour in some olive oil. Mix the ingredients and garnish with olives.

Dandelion and Egg Salad. — The young, tender leaves only should be used for this salad. Wash them carefully, break in lengths of about two inches, arrange in a cold dish and dress with French dressing. Hard boiled eggs or beet roots, chopped fine and sprinkled over it, are a pleasant addition to dandelion salad.

Salad With Bacon.

Dandelion Salad With Dressing.—Wash dandelions and pour over them this hot dressing and allow them to wilt. Put one tablespoonful finely cut bacon and one teaspoonful finely cut onion over the fire and let cook three minutes. Add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of water, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of sugar and a dash of pepper.

German Dandelion Salad. — Take a quart of white dandelions, pare and wash well, using several waters; drain on a cloth, arrange in a salad bowl and season with salt and pepper. Cut into dice shaped pieces two ounces of bacon and put into a frying pan over the fire until they become a golden color, which will take about five minutes. Add the dice to the dandelions. Then pour into the pan in which the bacon has been fried two tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Let it heat for half a minute, then pour it over all, mix and serve.

She Let Them Walk Everywhere.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Queer Old Woman and Her Pets.

DADDY had heard of such a funny old woman that day, and, of course, his very first thought was to tell Jack and Evelyn about it.

"This old woman," commenced daddy, "lived all alone. Her house at one time had been beautiful, and her garden, although not large, had been very pretty.

"But she had let everything rather fall to pieces, and, besides, she had grown poorer.

"Her chief delight in life was to have all the chickens, geese and ducks she could, and she let them walk anywhere they pleased. They could go right into the parlor or into the kitchen, whichever suited their fancy. Luck fly, for the sake of the parlor, they really preferred the kitchen. All the food was there, and they liked to eat better than anything else.

"Now, this old woman was very peculiar, too, and she looked it. But the funniest thing about her was that all the animals she had were queer looking too. The geese seemed to be a little different from any other geese. The ducks had even more hideous feet than most ducks have, and they were all of rather strange colors.

"One day not very long ago there flew around the neighborhood a strange looking bird. He seemed to be quite alone.

"He seemed so lonely that people wondered where he came from and whether he would stay with them long. They imagined he might have forgotten where his home was or that he had lost his way.

"But soon, to their great surprise, they saw him playing with the strange looking geese, ducks and chickens that belonged to the old woman. He never wanted to fly in the house, but they saw that she brought out water and crumbs to him.

"And he seemed perfectly happy. The people around thought that all queer animals like to be together. Maybe they feel then that no one will think they are queer if they stick together and show that there are a number of them. It was very nice for them that the old woman liked queer animals, for they had a good home, whereas people who would have cared about having good looking animals would not have bothered about them.

"Well, it made the funniest looking place, for it didn't seem natural to see quite so many strange looking creatures. They all did seem to be happy and to be enjoying life. They all acted as if the coming of the bird was a great compliment for them. They made a great fuss over him, and he in turn was much pleased with their praise and flattery, for he had never been flattered in his life before.

"And the old woman welcomed with joy one more strange creature."

THE MAN WHO WOULD BE KING

By Rudyard Kipling

RUDYARD KIPLING

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. The choice of Irvin S. Cobb was "The Man Who Would Be King," by Rudyard Kipling. Three other noted authors think this is the best short story.

IRVIN S. COBB

PART II.

THE wheel of the world swings through the same phases. Summer passed, and winter thereafter, and came and passed again. The daily paper continued and I with it, and upon the third summer there fell a hot night, a night issue and a strained waiting for something to be telegraphed from the other side of the world, exactly as had happened before. At 3 o'clock I cried, "Print off!" and turned to go, when there crept to my chair what was left of a man. He was bent into a circle, his head was sunk between his shoulders, and he moved his feet one over the other like a bear. "Can you give me a drink?" he whimpered. "For the Lord's sake, give me a drink!"

I went back to the office, the man following with a groan of pain, and I turned up the lamp.

I looked at him intently. Once before had I seen eyebrows that met over the nose in an inch broad black band, but for the life of me I could not tell where.

"I don't know you," I said, handing him the whisky. "What can I do for you?"

He took a gulp of the spirit raw and shivered in spite of the suffocating heat.

"I've come back," he repeated. "And I was the king of Kafiristan—me and Dravot—crowned kings we was! In this office we settled it—you setting there and giving us the books. I am Peachey—Peachey Taliaferro Carnehan, and you've been sitting here ever since—oh, Lord! Poor, poor, Dan, that would never take advice, not though I begged of him!"

"Take the whisky," I said, "and take your own time. Tell me all you can recollect of everything from beginning to end. You got across the border on your camels, Dravot dressed as a mad priest and you his servant. Do you remember that?"

I leaned forward and looked into his face as steadily as I could. He dropped one hand upon the table and I grasped it by the wrist. It was twisted like a bird's claw, and upon the back was a ragged, red, diamond shaped scar.

"No, don't look there. Look at me," said Carnehan.

"You went as far as Jagdallak with that caravan," I said at a venture. "To Jagdallak, where you turned off to try to get into Kafiristan."

"No, we didn't neither. What are you talking about? We turned off before Jagdallak, because we heard the roads was good. But they wasn't good enough for our two camels—mine and Dravot's. When we left the caravan Dravot took off all his clothes and mine too and said we would be heathen, because the Kaffirs didn't allow Mohammedans to talk to them. So we dressed betwixt and between, and such a sight as Daniel Dravot I never saw yet nor expect to see again. That was in a most mountainous country, and our camels couldn't go along any more because of the mountains. They were tall and black, and coming home I saw them fight like wild goats—there are lots of goats in Kafiristan."

"Take some more whisky," I said very slowly. "What did you and Daniel Dravot do when the camels could go no further because of the rough roads that led into Kafiristan?"

"What did which do? There was a party called Peachey Taliaferro Carnehan that was with Dravot. Shall I tell you about him? He died out there in the cold. Slap from the bridge fell old Peachey, turning and twisting in the air like a penny whirligig that you can sell to the almeer.

"And then these camels were no use, and Peachey said to Dravot, 'For the Lord's sake let's get out of this before our heads are chopped off!' And with that they killed the camels all among the mountains, not having anything in particular to eat, but first they took off the boxes with the guns and the ammunition till two men came along driving four mules. Dravot up and dances in front of them, singing, 'Sell me four mules.' Says the first man, 'If you are rich enough to buy you are rich enough to rob.' But before ever he could put his hand to his knife Dravot breaks his neck over his knee, and the other party runs away. So Carnehan loaded the mules with the rifles that was taken off the camels, and together we starts forward into those bitter cold mountainous parts and never a road broader than the back of your hand."

He paused for a moment while I asked him if he could remember the nature of the country through which he had journeyed.

"I am telling you as straight as I can, but my head isn't as good as it might be. They drove nails through it to make me hear better how Dravot died. We came to a big level valley all among the mountains, and the mules were near dead, so we killed them, not having anything in special for them or us to eat.

"Then ten men with bows and arrows ran down that valley, chasing twenty men with bows and arrows, and the row was tremendous. They was fair men—fairer than you or me—with yellow hair and remarkable well built. Says Dravot, unpacking the guns: 'This is the beginning of the business. We'll fight for the ten men.' And with that he fires two rifles at the twenty men and drops one of them at 200 yards from the rock where we was sitting. The other men begin to run, but Carnehan and Dravot sits on the boxes picking them off at all ranges up and down the valley. Then we goes up to the ten men that had run across the snow, too, and they fires a footy little arrow at us. Dravot he shoots above their heads and they all falls down flat. Then he walks over them and kicks them, and then he lifts them up and shakes hands all round to make them friendly like. He calls them, and gives them the boxes to carry and waves his hand for all the world as though he was king already. They takes the boxes and him across the valley and up the hill into a pine wood on the top, where there was half a dozen big stone idols. Dravot he goes to the biggest—a fellow they call Imbra—and lays a rifle and a cartridge at his feet, rubbing his nose respectful with his own nose, patting him on the head and saluting in front of it. He turns round to the men and nods his head, and says: 'That's all right. I'm in the know, too, and all these old jim-jams are my friends.' Then he opens his mouth and points down it, and when the first man brings him food he says 'No,' and when the second man brings him food he says 'No,' but when one of the old priests and the boss of the village brings him food he says 'Yes' very haughtily, and eats it slow. That was how we came to our first village."

"Take some more whisky and go on," I said. "That was the first village you came into. How did you get to the king?"

"I wasn't king," said Carnehan. "Dravot he was the king, and a handsome man he looked with the gold crown on his head and all. Him and the other party stayed in that village, and every morning Dravot sat by the side of old Imbra, and the people came and worshiped. That was Dravot's order. Then a lot of men came into the valley, and Carnehan and Dravot picks them off with the rifles before they knew where they was, and runs down into the valley and up again the other side and finds another village, same as the first one, and the people all falls down flat on their faces, and Dravot says, 'Now, what is the trouble between you two villages?' and the people points to a woman, as fair as you or me, that was carried off, and Dravot takes her back to the first village and counts up the dead—eight there was. For each dead man Dravot pours a little milk on the ground and waves his arms like a whirligig and 'That's all right,' says he. Then he and Carnehan takes the big boss of each village by the arm and walks them down into the valley and shows them how to scratch a line with a spear right down the valley and gives each a sod of turf from both sides o' the line. Then we asks the names of things in their lingo—bread and water and fire and idols and such, and Dravot leads the priests of each village up to the idol and says he must sit there and judge the people, and if anything goes wrong he is to be shot.

"Next week they was all turning up the land in the valley as quiet as bees. 'That's just the beginning,' says Dravot. 'They think we're gods.' He and Carnehan picks out twenty good men and shows them how to click off a rifle and form fours and advance in line. He takes out his pipe and his baccy pouch and leaves one at one village and one at the other, and off we two goes to see what was to be done in the next valley. That was all rock, and there was a little village there, and Carnehan says: 'Send 'em to the old valley to plant,' and takes 'em there and gives 'em some land that wasn't took before. Then Carnehan he went back to Dravot, who had got into another valley, all snow and ice and most mountainous. There was no people there, and the army got afraid, so Dravot shoots one of them and goes on till he finds some people in a village, and the army explains that unless the people wants to be killed they had better not shoot their little matchlocks, for they had matchlocks. We makes friends with the priest and I stays there alone with two of the army, teaching the men how to drill, and a thundering big chief comes across the snow with kettledrums and horns twanging, because he heard there was a new god kicking about. Carnehan sights for the brown of the men half a mile across the snow and wings one of them. Then he sends a message to the chief that unless he wished to be killed he must come and shake hands with me and leave his arms behind. The chief comes alone first, and Carnehan shakes hands with him and whirls his arms about, same as Dravot used, and very much surprised that chief was, and strokes my eyebrows. Then Carnehan goes alone to the chief and asks him in dumb show if he had an enemy he hated. 'I have,' says the chief. So Carnehan weeds out the pick of his men and sets two of the army to show them drill, and at the end of two weeks the men can maneuver about as well as volunteers. So he marches with the chief to a great big plain on the top of a mountain, and the chief's men rushes into a village and takes it, we three Martinis firing into the brown of the enemy. So we took that village, too, and it gives the chief a rag from my coat and says, 'Occupy till I come,' which was Scriptural. Then I sends a letter to Dravot, wherever he be, by land or by sea."

At the risk of throwing the creature out of train I interrupted. "How could you write a letter up yonder?"

"The letter? Oh, the letter! Keep looking at me between the eyes, please. It was a string talk letter that we'd learned the way of it from a blind beggar in the Punjab.

"I sent that letter to Dravot and told him to come back because this kingdom was growing too big for me to handle, and then I struck for the first valley to see how the priests were working. They called the village we took along with the chief Bashkai and the first village we took Er-Heb. The priests at Er-Heb was doing all right, but they had a lot of pending cases about land to show me, and some men from another village had been firing arrows at night. I went out and looked for that village and fired four rounds at it from a thousand yards. That used all the cartridges I cared to spend, and I waited for Dravot, who had been away two or three months, and I kept my people quiet. One morning I heard the devil's own noise of drums and horns, and Dan Dravot marches down the hill, with his army and a tail of hundreds of men, and which was amazing—a great gold crown on his head. 'My Gord, Carnehan,' says Daniel, 'this is a tremenjus business, and we've got the whole country as far as it's worth having. I am the son of Alexander by Queen Semiramis, and you're my younger brother and a god too. I've got a crown for you. I told 'em to make two of 'em at a place called Shu, where the gold lies in the rock like suet in mutton. Call up all the priests and, here, take your crown.'

"One of the men opens a black hair bag, and I slips the crown on. It was too small and too heavy, but I wore it for the glory. Hammered gold it was, five pound weight, like a hoop of a barrel.

"'Peachey,' says Dravot, 'we don't want to fight no more. The craft's the trick, so help me!' And he brings forward that same chief that I left at Bashkai—Billy Fish we called him afterward because he was so like Billy Fish that drove the big tank engine at Mach on the Bolan in the old days. 'Shake hands with him,' says Dravot. And I shook hands and nearly dropped, for Billy Fish gave me the grip. I said nothing, but tried him with the fellow-craft grip. He answers, all right, and I tried the master's grip, but that was a slip. 'A fellowcraft he is,' I says to Dan. 'Does he know the word?' 'He does,' says Dan, 'and all the priests know. But they don't know the third degree, and they've come to find out. It's God's truth. A god and a grand master of the craft am I, and a lodge in the third degree I will open, and we'll raise the head priests and the chiefs of the villages.'

"'It's against all the law,' I says, 'holding a lodge without warrant from any one, and we never held office in any lodge.'

"'It's a master stroke of policy,' says Dravot. 'The women must make aprons as you show them. I'll hold a levee of chiefs tonight and lodge tomorrow.'

"I was fair run off my legs, but I wasn't such a fool as not to see what a pull this craft business gave us. We took a great square stone in the temple for the master's chair and little stones for the officers' chairs and painted the black pavement with white squares and did what we could to make things regular.

"Dravot gives out that him and me were gods and sons of Alexander and past grand masters in the craft and was come to make Kafiristan a country where every man should eat in peace and drink in quiet and specially obey us. Then the chiefs came round to shake hands, and they was so hairy and white and fair it was just shaking hands with old friends. We gave them names according as they were like men we had known in India—Billy Fish, Holly Dilworth, Pikky Kergan that was bazaar master when I was at Mhow, and so on, and so on.

"The most amazing miracle was at lodge next night. One of the old priests was watching us continuous and I felt uneasy, for I knew we'd have to fudge the ritual, and I didn't know what the men knew. The old priest was a stranger come in from beyond the village of Bashkai. He fetches a whoop and a howl and tries to overturn the stone that Dravot was sitting on. 'It's all up now,' I says. 'That comes of meddling with the craft without warrant!' Dravot never winked an eye, not when ten priests took and tilted over the grand master's chair—which was to say the stone of Imbra. The priest begins rubbing the bottom end of it to clear away the black dirt, and presently he shows all the other priests the master's mark, same as was on Dravot's apron, cut into the stone. Not even the priests of the temple of Imbra knew it was there. The old chap falls flat on his face at Dravot's feet and kisses 'em. 'Luck again,' says Dravot across the lodge to me; 'they say it's the missing mark that no one could understand the why of. We're more than safe now.' After that Peachey and Dravot raised such as was worthy—high priests and chiefs of faroff villages.

NEW LAW PUZZLE TO JERSEY CITY

Special Election Tomorrow. Can't Forecast Result.

TO NAME A COMMISSIONER

Tight Race Is Generally Conceded to Be Between T. J. Stewart, County Supervisor J. F. O'Mealia or Henry Byrne—Nine Others In Race.

Jersey City, N. J., June 8.—The city politicians are completely at sea over the probable outcome of tomorrow's special election for a commissioner to succeed the late James J. Ferris. They are puzzled as never before, for they have no other way of prognosticating the result. This predicament is due in a large measure to the fact that the new Hennessy preferential primary law is to have its first tryout in Jersey City.

It is generally conceded that the successful candidate will be either Thomas J. Stewart or County Supervisor James F. O'Mealia, although supporters of Henry Byrne, who owns more real estate in this city than any other citizen, are claiming a victory for their man.

Nine other candidates are in the race. Of these John E. Edelstein is making the liveliest campaign. The other candidates are William E. Heifrich, Henry J. Hill, Joseph Cirrito, Valentine Bausch, Denis Mullins, Morris Sanger, Fred G. Hill and George B. Riley.

Stewart has the backing of the regular Republicans and many voters in the Progressive ranks. The reason that many of the Progressives have become reunited with the G. O. P. is because their leader, State Assessor Record, has joined H. Otto Wittpenn and his Democratic followers on O'Mealia. There is no Progressive candidate.

Byrne is being supported by two members of the board of commissioners, Director of Public Safety Hague and Director of Revenue and Finance Brensinger. County Surrogate Egan, who aspires to the county leadership of the Democrats, is also supporting him.

Edelstein is making the fight alone. This is also true of the other candidates, with the exception of Bausch, who is a Socialist.

In the preferential primary law the names appear on the ballot in alphabetical order without any designation as to what party or faction the candidate belongs. The voter is allowed four choices. If no candidate gets a majority of the votes cast in the first choice column then a total is struck in the second choice column and so on until there is a majority.

There appears to be much doubt that any candidate will get a majority on first choice, and the belief is that it will be the man with the most votes in the second choice column who will win.

GIRL OF 16 REPORTED WED.

Policeman Who Swore Miss Schiendler Is Eighteen Must Explain.

Newark, N. J., June 8.—A girl friend who did not want her name to be made public said that Katherine I. Schiendler, sixteen years old, and Harold P. Ketcham of East Orange, who eloped, were married by a Catholic priest. She refused to say where the ceremony took place. It was said at the Schiendler home that a telegram was received from New Brunswick announcing the marriage and saying that the couple was going to Washington on the honeymoon.

Police Lieutenant Joseph K. Ebert, who swore that Miss Schiendler was eighteen years old when she and Ketcham obtained a marriage license Friday, may have to explain to the police board, and it is possible that the case will go before the grand jury also.

WOMAN TO HELP CONVICT.

Will Fight For Prisoner Who Is Serving Life Term For Murder.

Trenton, N. J., June 8.—When the court of pardons meets during the latter part of June Miss Eleanor R. Gebhardt of Clinton, Hunterdon county, and daughter of Supreme Court Clerk William C. Gebhardt, will make an appeal for the release of Edmond Schuyler, who is serving a life term in the state prison for the murder of Manning Riley at Califon in 1907. Schuyler has now been in prison seven years.

Miss Gebhardt will insist before the court of pardons that her client is innocent, and her contention will be supported by an alleged confession of Frank Burd. It is said Burd has confessed to the murder. He is now serving a term of sixteen months for carrying concealed weapons and burglar's tools.

STATE NOTES.

Peter Kreuger, who was knocked off his bicycle by a trolley car on Friday, died in the Hackensack hospital.

Work will be started today on the construction of a new $135,000 building for the Mountainside hospital in Montclair.

A crusade against cocaine sellers and users has been started by Chief of Police Long of Newark, and as a result two men and three women were arrested.

Every family in Elizabeth was visited and asked if its members are affiliated with a local church. The visits were made by committees under the auspices of the new home visitation campaign.

COMMENCEMENT AT THE SEMINARY

Two Young Women Receive Diplomas This Morning From Miss Arnold.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

Rev. Dr. C. A. Eaton in An Address Attacks Woman Suffrage, But Admits Its Approach—Award of Prizes to Honor Pupils.

The Misses Helen Beatrice Lock and Helen Henrietta Renskorf were graduated from the Plainfield Seminary at the annual commencement at 10:30 o'clock this morning, the exercises being unusually attractive. There was a large attendance of friends and former graduates of the popular school.

Following a splendid recital by Miss May and Mrs. C. W. Bingeman, Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, addressed the graduates. He mentioned the fact that he had previously had the honor of speaking at a former commencement and had for some unknown reason been asked to speak again. The speaker referred to ordinary graduation addresses as deadly and promised that he would deviate from the general course.

Dr. Eaton struck at the Suffragist and social uplifter, who in his opinion, were destroying the privacy of the home. He said in part:

"Every one is mussing in each other's private business. Today a person cannot have dandelions in his own lawn without public comment of the fact. Life has been denuded of the privacy which has formed the foundation of the highest type of manhood and womanhood for many generations. The world is magnificent, but keep it outside of the private life. Most of us are creatures of immitation. The world is filled with middle age idiots trying to learn the tango—trying to flop around like a giggling schoolgirl. Do not surrender to this everpresent madness. Love your own life and do not try to bet what you art not."

Dr. Eaton pointed out the kind of environment in which the graduates were going to live, and compared it to that of their grandmothers' lives after graduation. He characterized this age as one of unrest—in home, in church, in school—an age of bad dreams—of class distinction and hatred. He criticized the world-wide movement of suffrage, but he admitted that the women in the end would get the vote. This movement in his opinion, would put a strain on womanhood.

"You are to be citizens of the world, not Plainfield," said the speaker. "All questions of the soul, problems are settled by the spirit. You are what you are and what you are is a question in the spirit." This was the message which the address carried to the graduates.

As a conclusion Dr. Eaton gave them three practical words—first, work; second, thought; third, worship. Work, in his opinion, was the most beautiful thing in the world. "Half of the women in this world would be happier if they washed dishes instead of burning up gasoline," said the speaker.

Mrs. C. W. Bingeman next rendered two pieces on the violin, after which Miss Arnold presented diplomas to the Misses Lock and Renskorf. Miss Arnold addressed the two young women, telling them of the meaning of the world before them and of the necessity of concise thought.

The alumnae prizes of ten dollars for the best work were presented to Miss Mary Gaston and Miss Dorothy Lawrence. Miss Arnold presented the United States history prize to Miss Eleanor Butler for her excellent work in that study. The program was completed with two piano solos by Miss May.

PUPILS TO GIVE RECITAL.

AGED MAN CREATED A GENERAL RUMPUS

Visit to Dunellen Results in Donovan's Ejection From Industrial Home.

Patrick Donovan, a seventy-three year-old inmate of the City Industrial Home on Rock avenue, strolled away from that institution yesterday afternoon, heading for his old haunts in Dunellen. Reaching the village he proceeded to lay in his annual supply of the amber fluid and returned to the home with a cargo too heavy for one man to carry.

As is his custom when intoxicated he started to criticize the manner in which the institution is being conducted and took Manager Culver to task in the matter. He continued his wrangling with other inmates and a general fracas resulted, Donovan being the center of attraction.

When the intoxicated inmate began to get boisterous and threatened to "break up housekeeping," Manager Culver notified police headquarters. An officer was dispatched to the home and the unruly Donovan was escorted to another city building on Sycamore street, where he will remain until tomorrow morning. At that time Donovan will be arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza. The councilmanic alms committee announced this morning that Donovan has made such a general nuisance of himself at the Industrial Home that he would not be taken back under any conditions.

LIVELY RUNAWAY CAUSES EXCITEMENT AT DUNELLEN

A spirited tweam of horses belonging to E. F. Feickert, of the State Trust company, and attached to a wagon, which was standing in the yard of the owner at Greenbrook, ran away this morning, causing considerable excitement. The team ran from the farm to and through the streets of Dunellen, passing through the business section, and continuing as far as New Market.

Two men employed by Mr. Feickert, were in the wagon, when the horses started to runaway. Being unable to control the animals, they succeeded in jumping out. They escaped with slight injuries. The wagon was damaged to some extent, but the horses were not injured.

BLAZE AT SOMERVILLE.

The fire department of Somerville, was called out about 9:30 this morning to suppress a fire in the "lottery field" section of the borough. This was a small frame barn belonging to William Donahue, which was completely destroyed. Neighbors prevented the fire from spreading to nearby dwelling houses by the aid of bucket brigades. Mr. Donahue was away from home at the time of the fire, working with a team of horses on the Pluckamin road, and his cows were grazing in the fields. What caused the blaze is not known. The loss was not heavy, but as Mr. Donahue is a hard working young man, he feels the loss keenly.

TAX BUDGET PASSED ON FINAL READING

Special Meeting of Common Council Held to Approve Ordinance.

The Common Council held a special meeting last night, the shortest of the year, it being called to pass the tax ordinance on final reading. It required less than five minutes to transact the business. Although the usual call for the session was sent out there was some diffculty in securing a quorum and it was nearly 8:30 o'clock when a sufficient number of members put in appearance to pass the ordinance.

It was necessary that the ordinance be adopted at this time to allow the Council to borrow in anticipation of taxes and also to certify to the tax authorities the amount to be raised for the coming year. The Board of Assessors are now on the field making the usual rounds and every property owner is being visited by the assessors for the purpose of making a revision of all assessments.

FEW ORDERS RECEIVED FOR SPRAYING TREES

Boro Shade Tree Commission Urge That Attention Be Given to Elms.

The Shade Tree Commission of North Plainfield, desires to call the attention of all property owners to the fact that but few orders have been received for the spraying of elms.

While the elm leaf beetle may be somewhat less numerous than in past years, an examination of the borough shade trees shows that the pest has already begun its damage. It should be remembered that there are two, and sometimes three broods each season, which not only attack the tree upon which they begin work in the spring, but also spread to adjoining trees.

The beauty of the city and borough lies in a great part in the street shade trees. Dead branches in many elms attest the loss caused by neglect to spray.

The borough Commission undertakes this work through experienced and careful operators, at a uniform charge of one dollar per tree—much less than the ordinary charge of private sprayers.

Will not all owners of elms assist the Commission, which is giving its time and labor to the borough without remuneration, by not only having their own trees sprayed, but by calling the atention of their neighbors to the necessity therefor.

Orders should be sent immediately to Henry C. White, 99 Rockview avenue, the chairman of the Commission.

ASSESSORS URGE THE CO-OPERATION OF OWNERS

The Plainfield Board of Assessors is now making excellent progress in its work of levying the annual assessment. Owing to the fact that the work this year means practically a complete revision of assessments the labors of the assessors are more ardous than heretofore. The assessors plan to visit every property, the one aim being to equalize assessments as nearly as possible.

The board is given the authority to make a personal inspection of each house from top to bottom, as well as land, and to obtain from the owner such information as is necessary to make a proper assessment. This being the case the assessors hope that all property owners will lend every assistance to the assessors thereby making the work as easy as possible and at the same time help in the general plan of equalizing the assessments.

SURGEONS OPERATE AS A LAST RESORT

Local Man, Suffering With a Broken Back, Submits to Delicate Experiment.

One of the most delicate operations in the history of Muhlenberg Hospital was successfully performed yesterday afternoon and the patient, Andrew Csohtosaky, of 541 East Second street, is now believed to be well on the road to recovery. His back broken as the result of an accident that occurred in the Pathe Freres factory in Bound Brook, May 28, the victim has been confined to the hospital since that time.

The fractured verterbrae had caused considerable pressure against the spinal column and the lower portion of the man's body was rendered powerless as a result. The object of the operation was to relieve this paralyzed condition and it has apparently been successful.

The operation was a last resort and in the event of its failure to relieve the strain the patient will probably be a helpless invalid during the remainder of his life. Operations of this nature, in most cases, have been successful and if this one alleviates the condition of the patient's limbs it will be a triumph in local surgery.

SYSTEMATIC DRILL FOR FIRE LADDIES

Councilmanic Committee Will Strive for Greater Efficiency in Local Department.

Fire Chief T. O. Doane and Councilmen John H. Cose and Theodore A. Martin, spent yesterday as the guests of the Trenton fire department for the purpose of acquainting themselves with modern equipment the city has installed and also to witness the monthly fire drill of newly appointed men. The drill was for the benefit of visitors, many other fire and civic officials being present. The Plainfielders were greatly impressed with what they saw and will probably include the maneuvres in the training course of the local department.

The principal features of the drill were the use of the scaling ladders and life lines, the application of the life belt in saving lives and the use of the life net for jumping. At the present time Plainfield has no modern life net, the one at headquarters having been sadly left behind in the march of progress, and has no scalers or life belts. The efficacious work of the Trenton men convinced the Plainfield Councilmen that the city needs similar equipment with the accompanying drills for the department members. It is probable that this will be recommended at the next councilmanic fire committee meeting.

The Plainfielders took occasion to look over the new auto apparatus and found everything thoroughly up-to-date. The city has six auto engines and will shortly add another as a building is being erected for that purpose.

DUNELLEN TO HOLD OLD-FASHIONED 4TH

Board of Trade Announce List of Interesting Events Arranged for Celebration.

The Dunellen Board of Trade Fourth of July celebration committee at its meeting in the Borough Hall last night, received reports of the various committees which give some idea as to the details of the event. Chairman Edward H. Dean, of the committee on fireworks, reported that $300 would be spent on the display, which will be better than last year. Chairman J. Newton Apgar, of the finance committee, reported that the merchants and citizens of the borough who had been approached had subscribed liberal amounts. Chairman Deering, of the program committee, stated that the program of events had been arranged.

The first event of the day will be a parade, after which President E. J. Dusel will make the opening address in Washington Park and introduce Mayor E. B. Latham, who will speak for the borough. The Star Spangled Banner will then be sung by the assembly, led by a chorus of school children. The Declaration of Independence will be recited by a Dunellen school boy. S. of A., the personnel of which was Peter Benson, Elwood Gary and George Apgar, Jr., was present.

Those who do not settle with Mr. Brown before the marshal reaches them will be obliged to pay the amount with an additional fifty cents as costs for the serving of the warrant.

Through the persistent efforts of Mr. Brown and Marshal Pope, the list of delinquents has been materially reduced, the latter having personally called on between 300 and 400 tardy tax-payers, the majority of whom have been prompt in settling. Now Marshal Pope hopes to clean up the list and collect the remaining sum due the borough for taxes.

FOUR ARE VICTIMS OF POLICE CRUSADE

Movement Against Offending Bicycle Riders Results in Arrests.

Four local cyclists were hailed to court this morning, the first squad to fall victims to Chief Kiely's crusade against sidewalk riding and wheels without the proper lights at night. Orders have been issued to the patrolmen to corral all offenders and stringent methods will be employed by the court in putting a stop to the practise where the offense is of a flagrant nature. Ignorance of the law and tar-spread roads were the excuses offered by the defendants this morning and their youth and previous good behavior earned for them suspended sentences.

Those arraigned today were Wesley Johnson, Pasty Coranzo and Anton Pritzer, for riding on the sidewalk, and Lawrence Nichols, for riding without a light. All were fined $5 and sentence was later suspended over them to be enforced on their second appearance.

In disposing of the cases Judge DeMeza warned the offenders against a second appearance on the same charge telling them that a fine would be levied the next time. He took into consideration the fact that a number of the streets of the city were covered with an oily coating of tar that has spread considerably as the result of the rain, but, advised the cyclists to choose other thoroughfares. They were taken into custody of Patrolman Baeder.

CANNOT AGREE ON AN ENGINEER

Trunk Sewer Plans Are Temporarily Held up as a Result.

OPPOSITION DEVELOPS

Members of Joint Commission Believe George W. Fuller's Price Excessive—Deal for Darling Farm Not Yet Closed.

The fact that there is a difference of opinion among the members of the Joint Sewer Commission regarding the employment of a constructing engineer for the proposed trunk sewer became known today, and it is likely to hold up some of the plans for the present at least. George W. Fuller has been the choice of some of the members, while others believe that another engineer can be secured at less expense to the three municipalities.

Mr. Fuller has somewhat the advantage in the matter by reason of the fact that he made the preliminary surveys for Plainfield and North Plainfield, and also drafted the plans which were submitted to and approved by the State Board of Health. Being in close touch with the situation, Mr. Fuller is considered to be on the "inside" so far as to detailed information of the work is concerned. However, there are some of the members who believe his figures for constructing the sewer are pretty high and they favor getting a less expensive man.

One of the city councilman has pointed out that Westfield installed exactly the same kind of a system proposed for the trunk sewer here, and that Alex Vars, engineer for Westfield, superintended the work under the supervision of a firm of New York engineers whose charge for the work was $400. It is further argued that there are a number of engineers who would be glad to take the contract on a 6 per cent. basis.

As yet the Commission has not closed the deal for the Darling farm, the matter being held up for technical reasons, it is said. At a recent meeting of the commission the option on the land was extended for thirty days. It is expected that the deal will be closed before that time. It seems to be the opinion that while Justice Bergen's recent decision in the action of the Borough of Middlesex against the city of Plainfield, was favorable to the city, the opposition is likely to do all in its power to defeat the construction of the sewer with the location of the disposal works on the Darling farm.

ALONG CAME AN AFFINITY AND SNATCHED HIS WIFE

Appearing in court this morning against his wife's alleged affinity, George Gilbert, colored, of "Possum Row," related a tale of martial woe that savored of the self-composed variety. He told how Walter Webb, the defendant, had taken his better half away just when they were beginning to patch up old grievances.

Gilbert and his wife have been in court three times because of family troubles and at the time of his last appearance the husband was ordered to remain away from his wife until he could show her that he was ready to lead a good life. Gilbert had just about supplied enough of this kind of proof, according to his own thinking, when along came Webb and "snatched" his spouse, as he expressed it in court.

In disposing of the case Judge DeMeza put Gilbert on another period or parole and ordered Webb to find new living quarters. The defendant is a married man but, according to his own admissions, is not living with his helpmate.

THREAT TO TAKE OVER PRUDENTIAL

Fidelity Trust Co. May Block Mutualization Plan.

OWNS MAJORITY OF STOCK

Counsel Engage in Verbal Battle Before Commission to Appraise Value. Take Up Disputed Questions on the Value of Stock and Try to Fix a Fair Price.

Newark, N. J., June 9.—A threat made at a further hearing of the commission appraising the stock of the Prudential Insurance company, which is now in process of mutualization, that the Fidelity Trust company of Newark would assume control of the insurance company if a suitable value was not fixed caused a lively verbal battle between counsel. The Fidelity Trust company is conceded to control the stock of the Prudential.

Statements made by Thomas N. McCarter, counsel for the Fidelity, were sharply resented by Richard V. Lindabury, counsel for the Prudential, and by Merritt W. Lane, counsel for the policyholders. Mr. McCarter said that the directors of the Fidelity do not expect to get all they believe the stock of the Prudential is worth.

"You gentlemen of the commission," he went on, "must fix a value, however, and if the directors of the Prudential do not accept that figure and the figure is one acceptable to the majority stockholders a board of directors will be elected who will accept it."

In replying Mr. Lane asserted that the Fidelity has threatened to oust the board of directors of the company, step in and divide the profits. Mr. McCarter interrupted and asserted that he didn't say such a thing. Before the proceedings came to a close Mr. Lindabury said that Mr. McCarter had taken occasion to threaten the official life of the present board of directors of the Prudential Insurance company.

The appraisers took up disputed questions on the value of the stock and tried to fix a fair price for the company's stock in the process of mutualization. One question at issue was that relating to an allowance of $7,914,000 which is part of the money invested by the company from the earnings of nonparticipating business in the last seven years for new business which has not yet come back to the company's treasury in premiums. It is contended by the stockholders that this money will eventually come in and allowance should be made for it in fixing values.

GROWTH OF COMMISSIONS.

With the Board of Trade preparing to wage a campaign in favor of Commission Government in Plainfield, many local people will be interested in a report made public this afternoon by the Bureau of the Census at Washington. It shows that 69 out of 195 cities in the United States of over 30,000 population are now working under the new and progressive form of administration. That means that a little over 35 per cent. of the people residing in the big cities are working under the plan. In New Jersey four large cities are included in this classification, Atlantic City, Passaic, Trenton and Jersey City, while Pennsylvania leads the list with thirteen cities. There are many smaller places in other States.

The report gives the cost per capita of general expenses, and also the per capita net debt for each of the 65 in 1912, but no comparisons are made with figures of years preceding, so that little of benefit can be learned from these figures. The average cost of government in all of these communities for 1912 was $17.34 per capita, and the average debt was $68.74. Allentown, Pa., was run most economically, the cost per capita being $6.47, while Washington, D. C., the city which has longest been under the form of government was the highest, with a rate of $25.43 per inhabitant. Denver's indebtedness amounted to but $3.82 per capita, while New Orleans had the highest amount, $122.81, with Atlantic City a close second, the figures in the New Jersey city reaching $116.10.

The report describes the various types of government in detail. It also tells how the commission plan came to be adopted in some of the cities, and how the step was made gradually to the city-manager method, saying that so far as information has been received by the Bureau of Census, the only city of over 30,000 inhabitants organized under the "city manager plan" is Dayton. Some of the smaller cities in Ohio have adopted this plan, and some of the smaller cities of other States have chosen one somewhat similar, one or two having adopted it prior to the enactment of the Ohio statute.

In referring to cities with governments of the type which prevailed in the average American city prior to the year 1900, the report uses the generic designation "Cities governed by mayor and Council;" in like manner, in referring to cities whose governments are such as in the last decade have come to be spoken of as "Commission form" or "Manager plan," the cities are described as "cities governed by commission" or "cities governed by the manager plan." Cities governed by commissions or those under the "city manager plan" may have city "Commissions," and cities of the first class generally give to the chief or mayor the title of "Mayor." The term "Commission form of government" refers to the government of cities administered by a small number of officials exercising both legislative and executive authority. This system of government has been given many distinctive forms in individual cities, and these forms are frequently spoken of by such designations as the "Galveston plan" or the "Des Moines plan," according as they approximate the form of government in operation in the one or the other of the two cities mentioned.

Washington, the National Capitol, was the first city in the United States to be governed for any number of years by a commission, coming under that form of government by the terms of an act of Congress that became effective June 11, 1878. The application of this form of government to the capital of the United States grew out of the relation of the National Government to this particular city, and the city of Washington was not considered as an example to other municipalities with reference to its form of government.

The great need of improvement in sanitary conditions of Memphis, following a severe visitation of yellow fever in 1878, combined with the fact that at the time the city had incurred an indebtedness equal to its authority for borrowing money, led the legislature of Tennessee in 1879 to put an end to the existence of the city as a municipal corporation and to create in its stead a taxing district whose affairs were conducted by a small body of officers having practically the authority of the commissioners in the cities under the new or commision form of government. After the recovery of the city from the difficulties which made this form of government necessary, Memphis was reincorporated as a city, with its earlier form of government, and its experience was not deemed such as to encourage the substitution of this form of government for that of mayor and Council.

A destructive storm having overwhelmed Galveston on September 1, 1900, and left the city prostrate financially, as Memphis had been in 1878, Galveston was placed under a government by a commission in 1901. The experience of Galveston under this form of government was such that in 1905 it was adopted by Houston. Two other cities, having 30,000 inhabitants, adopted it in 1907, two in 1908, eight in 1909, six in 1910, fifteen in 1911, nine in 1912, twenty-one in 1913, and three in 1914.

An act of the Ohio legislature, approved May 6, 1913, provided for a form of municipal government to be known as the "city manager plan," the Council to consist of five members in cities of less than 10,000 inhabitants, of seven members in cities of from 10,000 to 25,000 in habitants, and of nine members in cities having over 25,000 inhabitants, the Council being elected in all cases for a term of four years. This Council is to constitute a governing body with power to pass ordinances, adopt regulations, appoint a chief administrative officer to be known as the "city manager," fix his salary, approve all appointments made by him (except as otherwise provided) and appoint a civil service commission and all boards or commissions created by ordinances.

With the remarkable growth of the system, as shown by the larger communities which have adopted it, even the bitterest opponent will be forced to admit that the time is not far distant when the old "mayor and Council" cities will be in the minority. Plainfield people will soon realize that this plan is the only successful one, and will see to it that we join the ranks of the progressive communities of the country. It must be a success, or such rapid strides would not have been made throughout the entire nation twenty-three states now having laws providing for the form.

THE FORUM

The following, which was read at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Mothers' Association, by Mrs. A. C. Penn, gives a detailed account of what was accomplished in the way of serving penny lunches at the Bryant school during the past year:

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:—

In reading the following report of the chairman of the school luncheon committee, of the Mother's Association, on the penny lunches, conducted for seven months this winter, at the Bryant School, one or two points must be kept in mind, namely:

That, this is the first time these lunches have been tried successfully in as small a town as Plainfield;

That, the money to finance this work was partially raised by contributions from about 71 interested people; the Lenten Luncheon given this spring at the Park Club, and a contribution from the treasury of the Mother's Association. The Board of Education provided the stationary equipment for the kitchen. The money raised was for service and equipment, such as dishes, etc., the food being expected to pay for itself, and nothing more; you will see below how well we have come out:

That, in most cases there has been a deficit at the end of at least the first year, while we have been able to pay something toward our service, and hope next year to be able to pay considerably more toward this part of the work. Many people think that the lunches should be entirely self-supporting, covering the cost of service and supervision. Years of experience has not yet found a way to do this entirely, but in large cities it is being done in a measure, by serving four or five schools from a central kitchen, thus saving on equipment, cook, assistants, fewer storerooms and less supervision. The simple expedient, as has often been suggested, of raising the price of the portions, has not succeeded, for experience has shown that the attendance immediately falls off to such an extent, that the average cost per lunch at once increases. We have figured carefully that we lose money on the 1-cent and 2-cent lunches; come out about even on the 3-cent lunch; and can only look to the very small profit on the 4 and 5-cent lunches to offset the loss in the 1 and 2-cent lunches. In this way only are we enabled to make the food pay for itself, at a penny a portion. Thus it can easily be seen, that we cannot count on a great surplus from this source for service.

The following figures speak for themselves:

From Monday, Sept. 29th, 1913, to Wednesday, April 29th, 1914, seven months:

A large amount of credit for the success of the lunches and the deep appreciation of the committee is due the ladies who gave us so willingly of their time, each day, as voluntary helpers; also to our efficient cook, and her able assistant, who by their intelligent handling of the menus, saved us many pennies.

Now, as to the results: Dr. Maxson Miss Griffin, principal of the Bryant School, and the teachers, all speak with the highest praise of the good done by these lunches, and though it was not practical this year to keep charts as to the actual gain of the children, all the teachers agree that results could be seen and very noticeable ones among the children in the "special" class. They are very desirous of our continuing this work.

We have been asked for specific results. The good accomplished in undertakings of this kind cannot be estimated in dollars and cents, as some would have us do. Let me cite one case, which to my mind has repaid us for all our efforts, and made our lunches well worth while.

There is a poor boy in the Lincoln School, who for several years has been backward in his studies, and a great trouble to his teachers. He heard about the lunches at the Bryant School, and managed to get a penny now and then, and come buy his lunch. Sometimes he would come when he had no penny, and another child would 'treat' him. Finally Miss Griffin noticed him coming, and being interested in the boy, saw that he had a good lunch nearly every day. That boy has become one of the best boys in the school; a helper to his teacher and has shown marked improvement in his studies. He looks at school from a different point of view, and on his teachers as friends willing to help him all they can. How many other similar cases that we might help!

This is a notable work which should not be allowed to drop; for its benefits are manifold, and its results lasting, and of wide-spread good.

Let us have the hearty co-operation of all the parents and the public at large.

STILLMAN-WHITTIER SCHOOLS CHAMPIONS

Pupils Make Best Time in System of Fire Drills.

In order to thoroughly test out the system of fire drills in the public schools the Board of Education arranged for a series of alarms to be turned on in each school this month without notice to any pupil or teacher.

The time of the pupils was taken from the first stroke of the alarm bell to the moment that the last pupil had left the building and the results were as follows:

Three-story schools—First, Stillman, 47 seconds; second, Franklin, 59 seconds; third, Irving, 85 seconds; fourth, High School, 110 seconds.

Two-story schools—First, Whittier, 42 seconds; second, Bryant, 57 seconds; third, Jefferson, 61 seconds; fourth, Lincoln, 65 seconds; fifth, Washington, 80 seconds.

As it would be unfair to expect that a three-story building could be emptied as fast as a two-story building, it was decided to divide the schools into two divisions in making the tests. The Stillman and the Whittier Schools are the champions of their respective classes.

BILL TO STOP BRYAN LECTURES INTRODUCED

Proposes Fine For Official Who Neglects Job.

Washington, June 9.—The announcement recently in Philadelphia that Secretary Bryan and certain members of congress had signed contracts to appear on the Chautauqua circuit this summer has prompted Representative Britten of Illinois to offer a bill making such activities on the part of public officials violation of law. Mr. Britten believes that department heads and members of congress should stick to their public jobs and leave the Chautauqua field to yodelers, tumblers and other performers of that kind.

His bill proposes an amendment to the penal code making it unlawful for any government official or member of congress to deliver an address for pay other than his actual hotel and traveling expenses during the time he occupies such position. The bill provides a fine of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment for not more than two years for violation of the law.

"The recent announcement from Philadelphia that several members of congress, including the distinguished secretary of state, had signed contracts for a series of lectures beginning July 1 is responsible for the introduction of my bill," said the congressman, "and I am at a loss to understand how the secretary can consistently leave his office when a state of war practically exists between this country and Mexico and the foreign policy of our government is being laughed at by every civilized nation on earth.

"This certainly is no time for Mr. Bryan to be hiking around the country doing one night stands with Tyrolean yodelers, contortionists and sleight of hand artists, and I am equally opposed to members of congress doing this sort of thing when congress is in session."

BAIL PLEA FOR THAW.

Petition In Supreme Court Is Resisted by This State.

Washington, June 9.—Application was made to the United States supreme court for bail for Harry K. Thaw pending the determination of his petition for a writ of habeas corpus to release him from the custody of Sheriff Holman A. Drew, who is now holding him by order of the judge of the district court in New Hampshire.

The application was filed by William A. Stone, former governor of Pennsylvania, counsel for Thaw, and was resisted by Deputy Attorney General Kennedy of New York state.

The required presence of Thaw in Pittsburgh regarding litigation over the Thaw estate was assigned as the principal reason for the bail request. Mr. Kennedy asked for a week in which to file a reply brief in opposition to the petition for bail. It was finally agreed that the state of New York should have until next Friday to reply to the Thaw petition.

HIGHEST COURT AIDS RAILROADS

Big Shreveport Case Is Finally Settled.

EPOCH MAKING DECISION

The Authority of the Federal Government to Regulate Interstate Commerce Through the Commerce Commission Is Now Made Supreme.

Washington, June 9.—A decision handed down by the United States supreme court on the so called Shreveport case is the most important that has come from that tribunal in regard to railroad rate making since the creation of the interstate commerce commission.

Under the decision the authority of the federal government to regulate interstate commerce through the interstate commerce commission is made supreme.

State laws and orders of state commissions conflicting with the federal laws must give way, and vexatious orders or regulations promulgated by the state authorities as burdens on interstate commerce can be set aside by order of the interstate commerce commission.

Thus the railroads of the country finally get the means of relief from the harassing and conflicting state laws and order.

The way is opened for the escape from the two cent passenger fare laws when they impose undue burdens on interstate commerce and from other local impositions that have compelled the railroads operating between the states to maintain the high rates for interstate shipments in order to save themselves from losses caused by ruinous rates fixed by state laws.

"Epoch Making Decision."

The decision is regarded as epoch making. It marks a long step in the evolution of federal control not only over interstate shipments, but over the agencies of interstate commerce.

The decision gives the railroads what they hoped to obtain from the memorable Minnesota rate decision a year ago, but which they were denied through the failure of the court to pass on the question of the conflict of power between the states and the federal government when that power has been asserted by the latter through the commerce commission.

Squarely an Issue of Authority.

In the Shreveport case the issue was brought squarely before the court by an order of the interstate commerce commission ordering the interstate railroads affected to cease discrimination and equalize rates.

"The agencies of interstate commerce cannot be used to burden that commerce," said the court.

The important and illuminating passages of Justice Hughes' opinion delivered were the following:

"The invalidity of the order in this aspect is challenged upon these grounds:

"First.—That congress is impotent to control the intrastate charges of an interstate carrier even to the extent necessary to prevent injurious discrimination against interstate traffic.

"Second.—That if it be assumed that congress has this power still it has not been exercised, and hence the action of the commission exceeded the limits of the authority which has been conferred upon it.

Third.—It is unnecessary to repeat what has frequently been said by this court with respect to the complete and paramount character of the power confided to congress to regulate commerce among the several states. It is of the essence of this power that where it exists it dominates. Interstate trade was not left to be destroyed or impeded by the rivalries of local governments. The purpose was to make impossible of recurrence the evils which had overwhelmed the confederation and to provide the necessary basis of national unity by insuring uniformity of regulation against conflicting and discriminating state legislation."

HARVESTER CASES REVERSED.

Trust Suits In Kentucky Annulled by Supreme Court.

Washington, June 9.—Conviction of the International Harvester Company of America—the "harvester trust—of violating the Kentucky anti-trust laws and a half dozen fines of $5,000 each imposed in various Kentucky counties were reversed by the supreme court.

HUERTA'S ACTION RELIEVES WILSON

Clash Near When Dictator Rescinds Order.

WORD SENT BY WIRELESS

United States Offers Compromise. New Plan Will Bring Carranza Into Conference, It is Expected—Proposal Is Submitted to Rebel Chieftain.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN MEXICAN SITUATION.

Two steps toward peace were taken in the Mexican situation.

President Huerta backed down on his plan to blockade Tampico and recalled the order to his gunboats.

The United States government submitted a new proposal to the mediators, which it is expected will admit General Carranza to the conference without an armistice.

Officials at Washington are overjoyed at Huerta's withdrawal of the blockade and say his regime is tottering.

Washington, June 9.—By rescinding the order for the blockade of Tampico to prevent the landing of arms for the rebels by the steamer Antilla the Huerta government dispelled the grave fears that prevailed here of a serious crisis that might end the peace negotiations summarily and even bring on renewed conflict between the United States and Mexican forces.

Word reached the state department before noon through Senor Riano, the Spanish ambassador, who is caring for General Huerta's interests here, that the Mexican dictator had decided to withdraw his declaration of a blockade.

It was not until several hours afterward that it became known that General Huerta's gunboats had arrived off Tampico prepared to carry out the blockade order and had been promptly told by Rear Admiral Mayo that he would not permit this.

According to the reports that reached here, no sooner had the gunboats hove to off Tampico than Admiral Mayo engaged the two commanders in a conference and told them that the United States would not tolerate any interference with the commerce of Tampico.

That talk, without any order from General Huerta, convinced the Huerta officers, for Admiral Mayo at once informed Washington that the Mexican commanders had yielded in the face of superior forces.

It was not until later in the day that he and the two Huerta officers learned that the blockade itself was over and the gunboats would be ordered back to Puerto Mexico.

U. S. Offers Compromise.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 9.—The three mediators have in their possession a new and complete plan for the settlement of the Mexican situation, which was submitted to them by the delegates of the United States. This plan they have been carefully pressing during the greater part of the day.

This new plan is a comprehensive review of all the vital points in the Mexican problem. It contains not only all the points upon which an agreement has already been reached, but also a series of new suggestions, some of which have not yet been discussed.

Although nothing definite has been given out regarding this new note, it was learned from well informed persons that the plan which the American delegates have submitted contains a compromise offer through which it is expected to bring General Carranza into the conference. It is stated on the best authority that the Washington government is determined to do everything within its power to induce the rebel leader to participate in the mediation proceedings.

President Wilson is more than ever of the opinion that no successful plan for the pacification of Mexico can be formulated without the co-operation of Carranza and will spare no effort to arrive at this end.

No mediation will be possible, in the opinion of the Washington government, without representatives from both contending factions, but the conference at the same time will not be interrupted if this government can prevent it.

Washington, June 9.—Decrees declaring New York creditors of Antonio Musica & Co., involved in frauds in 1913 aggregating $900,000, are entitled to $100,000 cash found by the police on Musica and his six children when they were arrested on a steamer at New Orleans in March, 1913, preparing to flee to Central America were in effect affirmed by the supreme court.

OCEAN LINER IN CANAL.

Four Thousand Tonner Makes the Trip Through the Gatun Locks.

Panama, June 9.—The Panama railroad steamship Alliance, a vessel of 4,000 tons, is the first ocean liner to pass through the Gatun locks. Governor Goethals and a large crowd of spectators witnessed the vessel's passage. The trip was made a test of the electric towing locomotives in handling a large ship.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is it true that on Decoration Day, 1913, two players of either Leals or P. H. S. team were injured. If so, who were they and were they seriously hurt? The game was played on Crescent Oval. Would you answer this on the page of your splendid paper, and oblige? R. S.

Answer—James Nash and Jack Schnieder, of the Leal team, were injured on Decoration Day, 1913, the former quite seriously. Nash was chasing a long fly, along the third base line when he collided with Schnieder. The latter player was only slightly injured but Nash was knocked out and removed to the hospital. At that institution it was found that he had a compound fracture of the left leg, between the ankle and the knee and had a deep gash in his head. He was in the hospital for six weeks.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the meaning of the term "table d'hote?" V. F.

Answer—The term means a common table, at which the landlord presides.

Sporting Editor:

Query—How many games were there played in the world's series last year and what was the total attendance? G. L. T.

Answer—Five games were played and there was a total attendance of 150,992.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will the local Y. M. C. A. conduct the summer membership privilege again this year similar to the three month plan of other summers? J. R.

Answer—The offer will probably be repeated but nothing definite has been done in the matter as yet.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there a Millsaps College, and if so, where is it located? V. S. E.

Answer—The Mishaps College is located in Jackson, Miss.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the tropical year? What does it include? B. S. P.

Answer—The Tropical Year is the interval between two consecutive returns of the Sun to the Vernal Equinox. If this were a fixed point, the Sidereal and Tropical Years would be identical, but in consequence of the disturbing influence of the Moon and planets on the spheroidal figure of the earth, the Equinox has a slow, retrograde mean motion of 50 minutes .26 seconds annually, so that the sun returns to the Equinox sooner every year than he otherwise would by 20 minutes 23.6 seconds; the Tropical Year, therefore, consists of 365 days 5 hours, 48 minutes, and 46 seconds. The Tropical Year is not of uniform length; it is now slowly decreasing at the rate of 595 seconds per century, but this variation will not always continue.

FOUND! A REAL, LIVE, LOCAL NINE

Theory That Plainfield is Minus Local Talent Has Been Exploded.

AN ALL-STAR LINEUP

Indications Are that the Daily Press Choice Will Meet a Central New Jersey Team in a Real Diamond Battle as a Trial in Near Future.

AN ALL PLAINFIELD AGGREGATION.

Whaddayamean you can't get a representative baseball team out of purely local talent? Where are those managers who have been proclaiming through the news columns and on the public highways during the past five years that baseball is on the decline hereabouts and it would be utterly impossible to organize a representative aggregation? Take a glimpse at the Daily Press all-star team put down in black and white above this article and see what changes are necessary to make it "representative."

Everyone of the nine performers listed above hangs his hat within the confines of the Queen City and is a born and bred Plainfield ball player. Many of the stars on the roster above earned their reputation on local sand lots and there is not a single slouch in the group. What local fans would delight in seeing just at the present time would be a contest between the all-star combination and Dunellen. As a drawing card this could not be beaten and all that remains to make the dream a reality is to find some good manager who will handle the business end of the proposition for the locals.

Local fans are ready to admit that baseball is not what it has been in the past in these diggins and something radical will have to be done in the near future or all interested in the national pastime will die out locally. This is our solution to the problem and we would like nothing better than to have it pushed to the limit. The Daily Press is ready to lend a helping hand to local baseball and we would welcome any suggestion along this line either from the players mentioned in the lineup or from local fans.

BOUT FOR WORLD'S TITLE.

Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion of the world, and Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of Great Britain, were last night matched to box twenty rounds in London, July 4, for the world's title. The final arangements were made at a meeting held at Considine's, New York. Those directly interested were Bob Vernon, representing the Burge-Cachrane syndicate of London, which will stage the bout at the Olympia; Willie Ritchie, who was his own spokesman; Harry Pollok, Welsh's manager, and Billy Gibson, the stakeholder.

BATTING TROPHY GOES TO STAHL

North Plainfield High School Pitcher Will Receive the Silver Cup.

FIRST NINE LEADERS

Plainfield and North Plainfield Even Up in the Finish Race—Hitch May Occur in the Presentation of the Award.

Nine Actual Leaders.

	G.	A.B.	H.	P.C
Stahl, N. P H. S.	4	8	4	.500
Dunning, N. P.H. S.	4	18	8	.444

Schneider, Leals	4	14	4	.286
Dilts, N. P. H. S.	4	11	3	.273

The abroupt curtailment of the Interscholastic League gives Ernest Stahl, the North Plainfield High School pitcher, the batting championship for the season and also the batting trophy offered as the award for this honor. In the four games in which he has participated, the N. P. H. S. slab artist has faced the Plainfield and Leal School twirlers eight times and has cracked out four safeties, for an average of .500.

Frank Dunning, of North Plainfield, leads in the number of hits garnered, having eight to his credit. His eighteen times at the bat, however, brings his average down below that of Stahl's and places him in second place with a percentage of .444. When and where the trophy will be presented to the winner has not yet been decided, but a date will probably be fixed in the near future and it is not unlikely that members of the other two teams will be guests of the victorious institution on that occasion.

It is rather unusual for a twirler to be awarded an honor of this kind as it seldom occurs that a pitcher gets into all of the league contests of his team and is eligible to the honor. Stahl has hit consistently all season for the boroughites and well deserves whatever laurels may be heaped upon his head. He has also done some creditable work on the mound and this puts a fitting finale on his High School season.

O'Leary is the third man in the race and Hetfield is fourth. North Plainfield has four men in the first nine batters. Leals have one and P. H. S. have four.

SAMUELS WITH SPOTSWOOD.

Bill Samuels, who last year played first base and catcher for the Dunellen and Plainfield Central New Jersey League teams, has signed with the Spotswood Country Club nine for the coming season.

CONCLUSIONS.
There will be no third game.
Collier trophy will not be ordered.
Stahl gets the batting trophy.

North Plainfield and Plainfield High School baseball teams, or at least representatives of these factions, met in the Y. M. C. A. this morning and in an indoor session made a final disposition of the Interscholastic Baseball League controversy. Thus, twenty minutes of indoor wrangling took the place of two hours fighting on the baseball diamond. Nevertheless, all are ready to concede that the Y. M. C. A. pastiming ended rather unsatisfactorily. All efforts to draw up a suitable compromise between the outstanding factions were futile and although the question at stake was settled the respective forces went away in a worried frame of mind.

Representing Plainfield at the indoor fracas were Coach Ralph Patch and Manager Harold Williams. Captain Ralph Smalley, Coach Tommy Mullin and Manager Charles Beckman represented the "Canadians." Taking the stand in defense of the red and black Beckman stated that Manager Wiliams had made a binding agreement with him prior to the playing of the second game regarding the place and date for the deciding argument, should one be made necessary, Coach Patch came to the fore at this juncture and announced that Williams (although manager) had nothing to do with it and had no authority to make such an agreement. Which occasioned no little amount of surprise inasmuch as Williams had heretofore borne the title of "manager."

It was definitely announced that there would be no game Thursday, (on any field) because the Plainfield school was conducting its exams. this week. Coach Patch suggested next Tuesday, but that happens to be a North Plainfield examination date, and all baseball players would rather take indoor examinations that cavort about on the baseball diamond. Patch then offered Saturday morning as a playing date. Mornings are rather unusual times for a game of this calibre and the offer was turned down by the boroughites.

When asked to flip a coin to decide the playing field for the third contest, Patch refused. No reasons extended. A neutral field also met with objections on the part of the Plainfield coach. Hence there is no field in view at the present time and without a field we can't have the game.

Summing up the session we find matters in a badly tangled up mass. Baseball relations between the two institutions for the present year are at an end. Paul Collier, donor of the interscholastic trophy, has been told not to purchase the award. Thus, Collier is in the trifling sum of $50 and has been foxy enough to gather a little free advertising on the side. The Hirsch-Mann cup, according to official averages, goes to Ernie Stahl, of North Plainfield. This, by the way, is likely to produce a little more argumentation, and were it not for the fact that it has already been purchased the donors might be instructed to leave it in the jeweler's care.

LOCAL WOMAN LOST IN PLAY OFF FOR THE PRIZE

Rye, N. Y., June 9.—Although only one Philadelphia player and none from Boston remained over for the one-day invitation golf tournament given yesterday by the Apawanis Club, more than 30 competed in the affair. Only twenty-one cards, however were returned in the handicap. It was a triple tie between Mrs. R. S. Hincks, Bridgeport; Mrs. A. J. Morgan, Apawamis, and Mrs. S. H. Herzog, Fairview. Mrs. Hincks won on the playoff. As usual, it was an eighteen-hole test.

In the afternoon there was an approaching and putting contest, with more than twenty participants. That affair proved to be a tie between two Jerseyites, Miss Bertha Stratton, Cranford, and Mrs. Pendleton Rogers, of Plainfield, who competes for Baltusrol. In the playoff the former won by the count of 10 to 14. Although the weather was threatened all day none fell, a corner of a shower passing in the afternoon that brought a wind storm sufficiently strong to temporarily interrupt play.

LEGAL LIGHTS LOOK LIKE REAL PLAYERS

Doctors Will Have Their Work Cut Out for Them in Big Game June 20.

Aspirants for positions on the lawyer's baseball team that will be organized to meet the local doctors in a game for charity on Parker Field June 20, held their first real practice on the Watchung avenue field last night and the array of talent present on that occasion indicates that the aggregation will be a speedy one. All of the players who limbered up at the bat and in the field last night have played the game at one time or another and with a little more practise should develop into fast performers.

It is the opinion of those interested that the doctors will have considerable trouble in holding down the legal lights on the baseball diamond as the latter aggregation is much stronger than the dental clan that held the pill dispensers to a tie last year. Among those present at the tryout last night were V. W. Nash, Jr., G. W. V. Moy, J. Henry Crane, Charles McNabb, Harry Runyon, Frank Blatz and Charles M. Dolliver. John P. Owens, William G. DeMeza and Augustus Nash are also aspirants for positions in the lineup and will be on hand for tonight's drill.

The Watchung avenue field will be used for the remainder of the week and the practise scene will be shifted to the Parker Field diamond next week when the finishing touches will be put on.

ROD AND REEL

Trout fishermen have about another month to enjoy their sport. The weather is getting better for trout fishing and artificial flies are killing baits. Green Brook, near Scotch Plains, is a good stream, even though it has been fished by many. Dead River, a tributary of the Passaic River, just six miles north of Bound Brook and a mile from Liberty Corner, is full of trout as are many small streams in that vicinity. There are two small streams branches of the Raritan river near Far Hills which will pay the angler that takes the trouble to go there.

Jamaica Bay fishing is far in advance of any other north of Barnegat Bay because of the shallow water which warms up early and makes the fish bite. The best fishing station over there is at the Raunt where Joe Sehy keeps 100 rowboats ready. Weakfish flounders and eels are now being caught in large enough numbers to pay any one who knows how to fish to make the trip over there. This station is reached by the Rockaway Beach division of the Long Island Railroad from Long Island City, or Flatbush avenue. The subway at Broadway, New York, runs direct to the Flatbush avenue station. Wreck Lead on the Long Island Railroad from Long Island City or Thirty-third street is another good place to fish for a day. The inside fishing is fine, as flounders, weakfish, eels, blackfish and small sea bass can be caught from rowboats while fully a dozen large power sloops leave there every morning for the fishing banks. Long Beach is near Wreck Lead, and the same fishing can be had there as at Wreck Lead.

Keansburg fishing is confined to the pier, but anything that is biting in the bay can be caught there. Flounders and eels have been caught this week and a few boys hooked into several king fish.

Flounders and eels are in the Shrewsbury River and rowboat fishermen are catching plenty of them. Row boats are scarcer than fish down that way, so anybody making the trip takes a chance on being able to hire one.

Pickerel fishermen can have some sport by fishing the Passaic River near Stanley. Another good spot is Pine Brook, and the Lower Chatham bridge is a good place for perch and catfish. The north branch of the Raritan river, a mile east of Peapack is good for a dozen pickerel and the same river near Somerville has produced many large pickerel this season.

The black bass season opens in all of the eastern States a week from tomorrow. June 15 is now the recognized opening date, New Jersey having fallen in line with New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

The last of the spring run of ling is along the coast and the anglers who fish from the pier at Long Branch are catching great numbers of them in the evening hours. Whiting and a few sea flounders have also been taken during the last week.

Word was received last week from Corsons Inlet that the channel bass had struck into the breakers at that place and that several very large ones had been taken.

POLO CUP SERIES MATCH POSTPONED

Due to Injury Sustained Saturday by Captain Cheape of English Team.

Hempstead, N. Y., June 9.—Despite the plucky determination of Captain Leslie St. George Cheape of the challenging English polo team, who was injured in a practice game, to play in the first of the international matches today, the American committee, with characteristic sportsmanlike fairness, insisted upon a postponement of the game until Saturday. Chairman H. L. Herbert of the committee issued the following statement:

"Owing to the fact that Captain Cheape of the English team injured his eye very badly it has been decided to postpone the game scheduled for today until Saturday, June 13, when the first game of the series will be played at 4 o'clock."

No request for the postponement was made by Lord Wimborne, who is at the head of the English expedition to attempt to regain the polo trophy.

After examining Captain Cheape the physician reported that the English player's nose was not broken, but that the cartilage was dislocated. In addition, the flying polo ball cut a deep gash under Captain Cheape's eye and the force of the blow closed the optic so tightly that it will be twenty-four hours at least before it will be possible for Captain Cheape to see.

BASEBALL NOTES

Clyde Milan, the speedy outfielder of the Washington team, is out again this season to annex the base-stealing honors.

Del Gainor, formerly of the Tigers, is putting up a fine game at first base and with the stick for the Boston Red Sox.

Three St. Louis teams and all three in the first division of their leagues. Yes sir, this has happened several times this season.

The New York Giants have turned Pitcher Shore over to Jack Dunn's Baltimore Orioles. Shore is a former Guilford College twirler.

The New York Yankees are a bit shy of .300 batters, but they have several boys who threaten to break into the select circle before long.

Ed. Konetchy and Jack Miller the two first basemen who figured in the Pittsburgh-St. Louis deal last winter, are traveling neck and neck in batting.

Baseball critics have claimed that weak hitting has kept the Athletics back. But somehow or other it is hard to figure the Mackmen so very far back.

It begins to look as though it was up to Joe Tinker's Chifeds to give Chicago a first division team this season, as the Cubs and White Sox seem to have curled up.

Washington's young twirlers, Ayres, Shaw and Boehling, are giving good assistance to the only Walter Johnson in keeping the Senators in the spotlight.

Charley Herzog seems to have the Cincinnati Reds well in hand. The Red Birds are hustling all the time and go after the leaders with as much vim as against the weaker teams.

The Inter-State League is the latest minor organization to get under way, the circuit being composed of Jamestown, Olean, Wellsville and Hornell, N. Y., and Warren and Bradford, Pa.

Though he can play short to perfection Terry Turner refuses to shift to the short field for the Cleveland Naps. Terry declares his throwing arm is now in great shape and that shortstopping would put his flipper on the hummer.

Pitchers' records of the Western Canada League recently published show Beer, of the Saskatoon team, to be the leader, with Cann, the Moose Jaw flinger, at the bottom of the list. And it doesn't do the pastime any harm to keep 'em so far apart.

YACHTS IN TRIAL RACES.

Vanitie, Resolute and Defiance, the trio of cup defense yachts, will take part tomorrow in the first of the series of three-cornered trial races over the Sandy Hook course, the spot made famous by the fruitless efforts of English yachtsmen to win the America Cup. It will be the first time that the Defiance has been under sail in competition and it will also be her initial appearance under her reduced rig. Vanitie and Resolute are in first class trim, but the other sloop has only had her sails up in a few preliminary trials off Greenwich.

STAR RIDER KILLED.

Chicago, Ill., June 9—Charles (Fearless) Balke, of Los Angeles, Cal., world's champion motorcycle racer, lost his life in an accident at Hawthorne race track, Sunday, in an attempt to lower the track record. Balke had got into a curve at 85 miles an hour, hit a soft spot and skidded into a steam roller, which had been left standing on the curve after rolling the track. Balkes neck was broken and he died before he could be taken to the hospital.

KID WILLIAMS FAVORITE.

Kid Williams is a favorite over Johnny Coulon in the twenty round boxing bout for the bantamweight championship, that is to be fought tonight at Tom McCarey's Vernon arena at Los Angeles. Williams beat Coulon two years ago at Madison Square Garden, New York, and the record of the Baltimore boy since has been so remarkable that there seems to be no reason to believe that he has lost any of his effectiveness.

DAINTY FRENCH EMBROIDERY FOR COLLAR, CUFFS AND A WAIST

The new blouses for summer show an increase in the amount of embroidery used. They may be made of thin sheer materials such as handkerchief linen, lawn, cotton crêpe and batiste or some of the cool summer wash silks or crêpe de Chine. Cut from a simple pattern, they are very easy to make, as they require no fitting whatever. They should be well put together however in order to stand the laundering, for it is a sad waste of time to embroider a garment which will not last.

The embroidery shown on this waist should be developed in solid work and eyelets in white. It is from pattern No. 14671, which includes transfers for stamping a collar, cuffs and four sprays for the waist. The sprays may also be cut apart and adapted to nightgowns, underwear and negligees. The edge of the collar and cuffs should be firmly padded and worked in buttonhole-stitch, or a soft cord may be used for padding. This is simply laid on top and held in place as the buttonhole-stitch is worked. If desired, a narrow edging of Valenciennes or Cluny lace may be used.

Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer pattern will be supplied for 15 cents.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

The straight-lined, three-gored skirt with a slight bit of fullness laid in soft plaits at the waistline and a rather broad stitched belt, is shown in No. 8327. It is a design that could be suitably made of tweed; one of the new plaids, serge, linen or cloth and could be worn with a heavy linen blouse for sports or business. If developed in cloth, ratine or taffeta, it could be combined with a pretty blouse of chiffon or lace for afternoon wear. It is a simple design showing excellent lines. It could easily be turned out at home with quite as good results as if made to order. For size 24, this design requires 2⅝ yards of 42-inch material. The pattern is cut in five sizes, 22 to 30.

This is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, passing the tape tightly around the smallest part of the waist and loosely around the widest part of the hips. It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

CAKES WITH FRUIT.

DINNER MENU.
Cream of Asparagus Soup.
Cold Sliced Ham. Chowchow.
Baked Potatoes. Baked Spinach.
Raspberries. Pound Cake.
Coffee.

CAKES that are nice to serve with fruit are in demand at this season.

A plain cake that contains no spice and is not very highly flavored is the best for this purpose. Sponge, cup and pound cakes, angel food, etc., are especially useful. Those in which there are raisins or citron should not be served. Cakes on which there is a plain white icing are acceptable, but chocolate or cocoanut cakes introduce flavors that detract from the fine aroma of the fruit.

An Economical Cake.

Simple Sponge Cake.—Beat the yolks of three eggs and one and a half cupfuls of granulated sugar, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, half a cupful of water. Sift in two cupfuls of flour, then add the whites of the eggs, beaten stiff, and two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Line long, shallow pans with paper, turn in the mixture and bake in a moderate oven forty-five minutes.

Angel Food Cake.—Take one cupful milk, one cupful of flour, one cupful sugar, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, pinch of salt and the whites of two eggs.

Heat the milk to the boiling point. Sift other ingredients several times and stir in hot milk, then fold in the well beaten whites. Do not flavor or grease pan, but flavor the icing used on cake.

Old Fashioned Cake.

Poundcake.—Beat one pound of butter and one pound of powdered sugar together until they form a cream. Separate the whites from the yolks of one dozen eggs.

Whisk the whites to a stiff broth and beat the yolks until thick.

Beat the whites into the creamed butter and sugar, then add the yolks and stir all together. Sift the flour and stir in lightly little by little, stirring only enough to mix well and smoothly.

Bake in a moderate oven for one hour and a quarter.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Fairies' Trip to The Stars.

The Fairies Went From Star to Star.

DADDY was in quite a hurry to begin his story, for he wanted to tell the children about the trip the fairies had taken the evening before.

"They did have such a fine trip, for the fairy queen arranged it all," said daddy, "and she certainly knows just how to make everything a success.

"Early last evening she said to the fairies:

"'We have an invitation to visit the stars tonight, and an airship is all ready for us.'

"You can imagine how delighted all the fairies were, but they had no time to talk it over beforehand, for they started at once.

"The airship was made of the loveliest silver cloud, and it was so soft and so comfortable.

"The invitation had come from one very bright little star that always came out just a little ahead of all the others every night. The star had seen the fairies playing in the moonlight and starlight and wanted to tell them how nice it was to watch them play. And so the invitation came.

"When they reached the star the cloud disappeared, and they were right on the bright little creature looking down upon their playground.

"The star told them how much the moon and all the other stars enjoyed giving the brightness to the fairies' evening parties and that they always felt as if they were having a party themselves just watching the good time the fairies were having.

"Then the little star said that they must visit all the other stars, for they all wanted to have the fairies come and see them.

"The fairies went from star to star along the Milky way and thought the way of traveling up in the sky was glorious.

"They loved all the beauty of it, too, and the stars were very proud that the fairies thought they were beautiful, for they in turn thought the fairies were the most exquisite of creatures.

"The fairies spent all the night going from start to star and seeing the life up in the sky.

"In fact, they stayed so long that it was time for the stars to go to sleep and the sun to come out.

"[illegible] the fairies said goodby to the sleepy little stars, and then a gorgeous red [illegible] came along and took them down to the earth again.

"[illegible] as they reached the earth the red chariot slowly vanished back of a [illegible], and in its place a great huge red sun came up.

"'[illegible] the queen of the fairies, 'this has been a trip which we will never fo[illegible] And all the little fairies agreed with her."

THE MAN WHO WOULD BE KING

By Rudyard Kipling

RUDYARD KIPLING

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. The choice of Irvin S. Cobb, was "The Man Who Would Be King," by Rudyard Kipling. Three other noted authors think this is the best short story.

IRVIN S. COBB

PART III.

"I CAN'T tell all we did for the next six months, because Dravot did a lot I couldn't see the hang of, and he learned their lingo in a way I never could.

"They were afraid of me and the army, but they loved Dan. He was the best of friends with the priests and the chiefs, but any one could come across the hills with a complaint, and Dravot would hear him out fair and call four priests together and say what was to be done. They sent me with forty men and twenty rifles, and sixty men carrying turquoises, into the Ghorband country to buy those handmade Martini rifles that come out of the ameer's workshops at Kakul, from one of the ameer's Herati regiments that would have sold the very teeth out of their mouths for turquoises. We got more than 100 handmade Martinis, 100 good Kohat jezails that'll throw to 600 yards, and 40 manloads of very bad ammunition for the rifles.

"Dravot was too busy to attend to those things, but the old army that we first made helped me, and we turned out 500 men that could drill and 200 that knew how to hold arms pretty straight. Even those corkscrewed handmade guns was a miracle to them. Dravot talked big about powder shops and factories, walking up and down in the pine wood when the winter was coming on.

"'I won't make a nation,' says he. 'I'll make an empire! These men aren't niggers; they're English! Look at their eyes, look at their mouths. Look at the way they stand up. They sit on chairs in their own houses. There must be a fair 2,000,000 of 'em in these hills. The villages are full o' little children. Two million people—250,000 fighting men—and all English! When everything is shipshape I'll hand over the crown—this crown I'm wearing now—to Queen Victoria on my knees, and she'll say, 'Rise up, Sir Daniel Dravot.' Oh, it's big! It's big, I tell you! But there's so much to be done in every place—Bashkai, Khawak, Shu and everywhere else. It's a big country, and somehow you can't help me, Peachey, in the way I want to be helped.'

"'Go to your blasted priests then!' I said, and I was sorry when I made that remark, but it did hurt me sore to find Daniel talking so superior when I'd drilled all the men and done all he told me.

"'Don't let's quarrel, Peachey,' says Daniel without cursing. 'You're a king, too, and the half of this kingdom is yours, but can't you see, Peachey, we want cleverer men than us now—three or four of 'em, that we can scatter about for our deputies. There's another thing, too. The winter's coming and these people won't be giving much trouble and if they do we can't move about. I want a wife.'

"'For Gord's sake leave the women alone!' I says. 'We've both got all the work we can do, though I am a fool. Remember the contrack and keep clear o' women.'

"'The contrack only lasted till such time as we was kings, and kings we have been these months past,' says Dravot, weighing his crown in his hand. 'You go get a wife, too, Peachey.'

"'Don't tempt me!' I says. 'I will not have any dealings with a woman, not till we are a dam' site more settled than we are now. Let's lie off a bit and see if we can get some better tobacco from Afghan country and run in some good liquor, but no women.'

"'For the last time of answering I will,' said Dravot, and he went away through the pine trees looking like a big red devil.

"But getting a wife was not so easy as Dan thought. He put it before the council and there was no answer till Billy Fish said that he'd better ask the girls. Dravot d—d them all round. 'What's wrong with me?' he shouts, standing by the idol Imbra. 'Am I a dog or am I not enough of a man for your wenches?' He walked out of the council room, and the others sat still, looking at the ground.

"'Billy Fish,' says I to the chief of Bashkai, 'what's the difficulty here? A straight answer to a true friend.' 'You know,' says Billy Fish. 'How should a man tell you who know everything? How can daughters of men marry gods or devils? It's not proper.'

"'A god can do anything,' says I. 'If the king is fond of a girl he'll not let her die.' 'She'll have to,' said Billy Fish. 'There are all sorts of gods and devils in these mountains, and now and again a girl marries one of them and isn't seen any more. Besides, you two know the mark cut in the stone. Only the gods know that. We thought you were men till you showed the sign of the master.'

"I wished then that we had explained about the loss of the genuine secrets of a master Mason at the first go off, but I said nothing. All that night there was a blowing of horns in a little dark temple halfway down the hill, and I heard a girl crying fit to die. One of the priests told us that she was being prepared to marry the king. 'The girl's a little bit afraid,' says the priest. 'She thinks she's going to die, and they are a-heartening of her up down in the temple.'

"'Hearten her very tender,' then, says Dravot, 'or I'll hearten you with the butt of a gun so that you'll never want to be heartened again.'

"I got up very early in the morning while Dravot was asleep, and I saw the priests talking together in whispers and the chiefs talking together, too, and they looked at me out of the corners of their eyes.

"'What is up, Fish?' I says to the Bashkai man, who was wrapped up in his furs and looking splendid to behold.

"'I can't rightly say,' says he, 'but if you can induce the king to drop all this nonsense about marriage you'll be doing him and me and yourself a great service.'

"'That I do believe,' says I. 'But sure, you know, Billy, as well as me, having fought against and for us, that the king and me are nothing more than two of the finest men that God Almighty ever made. Nothing more, I do assure you.'

"'That may be,' says Billy Fish, 'and yet I should be sorry if it was.' He rinks his head upon his great fur cloak for a minute and thinks. 'King,' says he, 'be you man or god or devil, I'll stick by you today. I have twenty of my men with me, and they will follow me. We'll go to Bashkai until the storm blows over.'

"A little snow had fallen in the night and everything was white except the greasy fat clouds that blew down and down from the north. Dravot came out with his crown on his head, swinging his arms and stamping his feet and looking more pleased than Punch.

"'For the last time, drop it, Dan,' says I in a whisper. 'Billy Fish here says there will be a row.'

"'A row among my people!' says Dravot. 'Not much. Peachey, you're a fool not to get a wife too. Where's the girl?' says he with a voice as loud as the braying of a jackass. 'Call up all the chiefs and priests and let the emperor see if his wife suits him.'

"There was no need to call any one. They were all there leaning on their guns and spears round the clearing in the center of the pine wood. A deputation of priests went down to the little empire to bring up the girl, and the horns blew up fit to wake the dead. Billy Fish saunters round and gets as close to Daniel as he could, and behind him stood his twenty men with matchlocks, not a man of them under six feet. I was next to Dravot, and behind me was twenty men of the regular army. Up comes the girl, and a strapping wench she was, covered with silver and turquoises, but white as death and looking back every minute at the priests.

"'She'll do,' said Dan, looking her over. 'What's to be afraid of, lass? Come and kiss me.' He puts his arm round her. She shuts her eyes, gives a bit of a squeak, and down goes her face in the side of Dan's flaming red beard.

"'The girl's bitten me!' says he, clapping his hand to his neck, and sure enough his hand was red with blood. Billy Fish and two of his matchlock men catches hold of Dan by the shoulders and drags him into the Bashkai lot, while the priests howls in their lingo, 'Neither God nor devil, but a man!' I was all taken aback, for a priest cut at me in front, and the army behind began firing into the Bashkai men.

"I tried to give some sort of orders to my men—the men o' the regular army—but it was no use, so I fired into the brown of 'em with an English Martini and drilled three beggars in a line. The valley was full of shouting, howling creatures, and every soul was shrieking, 'Not a God nor a devil, but only a man!' The Bashkai troops stuck to Billy Fish all they were worth, but their matchlocks wasn't half as good as the Kabul breechloaders, and four of them dropped.

"'We can't stand,' says Billy Fish. 'Make a run for it down the valley. The whole place is against us.' There wasn't more than six men, not counting Dan, Billy Fish and me, that came down to the bottom of the valley alive.

"My own notion is that Dan began to go mad in his head from that hour. He stared up and down like a stuck pig. Then he was all for walking back alone and killing the priests with his bare hands, which he could have done. 'An emperor am I,' says Daniel, 'and next year I shall be a knight of the queen.'

"'All right, Dan,' says I, 'but come along now while there's time.'

"'It's your fault,' says he, 'for not looking after your army better.' I was too heartsick to care, though it was all his foolishness that brought the smash.

"'I'm sorry, Dan,' says I, 'but there's no accounting for natives. This business is our Fifty-seven. Maybe we'll make something out of it yet, when we've got to Bashkai.'

"'Let's get to Bashkai then,' says Dan, 'and when I come back here again I'll sweep the valley so there isn't a bug in a blanket left.'

"We walked all that day, and all that night Dan was stumping up and down on the snow, chewing his beard and muttering to himself.

"'There's no hope o' getting clear,' said Billy Fish. 'The priests will have sent runners to the villages to say that you are only men. Why didn't you stick on as gods till things was more settled? I'm a dead man,' says Billy Fish, and he throws himself down on the snow and begins to pray to his gods.

"Next morning we was in a cruel bad country—all up and down, no level ground at all and no food either. The six Bashkai men looked at Billy Fish hungrywise as if they wanted to ask something, but they said never a word. At noon we came to the top of a flat mountain all covered with snow, and when we climbed up into it, behold, there was an army in position waiting in the middle!

"'The runners have been very quick,' says Billy Fish, with a little bit of a laugh. 'They are waiting for us.'

"'We're done for,' says Dan. 'They are Englishmen, these people, and it's my blasted nonsense that has brought you to this. Get back, Billy Fish, and take your men away; you've done what you could, and now cut for it. Carnehan,' says he, 'shake hands with me and go along with Billy. Maybe they won't kill you. I'll go and meet 'em alone. It's me, the king, that did it.'

"'Go!' says I. 'I'm with you here. Billy Fish, you clear out, and we two will meet those folk.'

"'I'm a chief,' says Billy Fish, quite quiet. 'I stay with you. My men can go.'

"The Bashkai fellows didn't wait for a second word, but ran off. It was cold—awful cold. I've got that cold in the back of my head now. There's a lump of it there."

Carnehan was shivering, and I feared that his mind might go. I wiped my face, took a fresh grip of the piteously mangled hands and said, "What happened after that?"

"What was you pleased to say?" whined Carnehan. "They took them without any sound. Not a little whisper all along the snow, not though the king knocked down the first man that set hand on him—not though old Peachey fired his last cartridge into the brown of 'em. There was a man called Billy Fish, a good friend of us all, and they cut his throat, sir, then and there, like a pig; and the king kicks up the bloody snow and says: 'We've had a dashed fine run for our money. What's coming next?' But Peachey—Peachey Taliaferro, I tell you, sir, in confidence as betwixt two friends—he lost his head, sir. No, he didn't neither. The king lost his head, so he did, all along o' one of those cunning rope bridges. Kindly let me have the paper cutter, sir. It tilted this way. They marched him across that snow to a rope bridge over a ravine with a river at the bottom. You may have seen such. They prodded him behind like an ox. 'D— your eyes!' says the king. 'D'you suppose I can't die like a gentleman?' He turns to Peachey—Peachey that was crying like a child. 'I've brought you to this, Peachey,' says he. 'Brought you out of your happy life to be killed in Kafiristan, where you was late commander in chief of the emperor's forces. Say you forgive me, Peachey.' 'I do,' says Peachey. 'Shake hands, Peachey,' says he. 'I'm going now.' Out he goes, looking neither right nor left, and when he was plumb in the middle of those dizzy dancing ropes, 'Cut, you beggars!' he shouts. And they cut, and old Dan fell, turning round and round and round, 20,000 miles, for he took half an hour to fall till he struck the water, and I could see his body caught on a rock with the gold crown close beside.

"But do you know what they did to Peachey between two pine trees? They crucified him, sir, as Peachey's hand will show. They used wooden pegs for his hands and his feet; and he didn't die. He hung there and screamed, and they took him down next day and said it was a miracle that he wasn't dead. They took him down—poor old Peachey, that hadn't done them any harm—that hadn't done them any"—

He rocked to and fro and wept bitterly, wiping his eyes with the back of his scarred hands and moaning like a child for some ten minutes.

"They was cruel enough to feed him up in the temple, because they said he was more of god than old Daniel that was a man. Then they turned him out on the snow and told him to go home, and Peachey came home in about a year, begging along the roads quite safe, for Daniel Dravot he walked before and said: 'Come along, Peachey. It's a big thing we're doing.' The mountains they danced at night, and the mountains they tried to fall on Peachey's head, but Dan he held up his hand, and Peachey came along, bent double. He never let go of Dan's hand, and he never let go of Dan's head. They gave it to him as a present in the temple, to remind him not to come again, and, though the crown was pure gold and Peachey was starving, never would Peachey sell the same. You knew Right Worshipful Brother Dravot. Look at him now!"

He fumbled in the mass of rags around his bent waist, brought out a black horsehair bag embroidered with silver thread and shook therefrom on to my table the dried, withered head of Daniel Dravot! The morning sun that had long been paling the lamps struck the red beard and blind, sunken eyes; struck, too, a heavy circlet of gold studded with raw turquoises, that Carnehan placed tenderly on the battered temples.

"You behold now," said Carnehan, "the emperor in his habit as he lived—the king of Kafiristan with his crown upon his head. Poor old Daniel, that was a monarch once!"

I shuddered, for, in spite of defacements manifold, I recognized the head of the man of Marwar Junction. Carnehan rose to go. I attempted to stop him. He was not fit to walk abroad. "Let me take away the whisky and give me a little money," he gasped. "I was a king once. I'll go to the deputy commissioner and ask to sit in the poorhouse till I get my health. No, thank you, I can't wait till you get a carriage for me. I've urgent private affairs—in the south."

He shambled out of the office and departed in the direction of the deputy commissioner's house. That day at noon I had occasion to go down the blinding hot mall, and I saw a crooked man crawling along the white dust of the roadside, his hat in his hand, quavering dolorously after the fashion of street singers at home. There was not a soul in sight and he was out of all possible earshot of the houses. And he sang through his nose, turning his head from right to left—

"The son of man goes forth to war,
A golden crown to gain.
His blood red banner streams afar.
Who follows in his train?"

I waited to hear no more, but put the poor wretch into my carriage and drove him off to the nearest missionary for eventual transfer to the asylum. He repeated the hymn twice while he was with me, whom he did not in the least recognize, and I left him singing it to the missionary.

Two days later I inquired after his welfare of the superintendent of the asylum.

"He was admitted suffering from sunstroke. He died early yesterday morning," said the superintendent. "Is it true that he was half an hour bareheaded in the sun at midday?"

"Yes," said I, "but do you happen to know if he had anything upon him by any chance when he died?"

"Not to my knowledge," said the superintendent.

And there the matter rests.

TELLS OF WORLD'S MISSIONARY JOURNEY

Miss Louise Clark Gives Interesting Talks at First Baptist Church.

Miss Louise Clark, former dean of the Baptist Institute Christian Workers of Philadelphia, spoke at the morning session of the First Baptist Bible school, Sunday, and at the evening service in the church. She has just returned from a two years' round-the-world trip for the purpose of visiting Oriental countries and studying Christian missions in Japan, China, Burma and India.

Miss Clark in addressing the Bible school illustrated her talk by several young people in costumes of various lands. She told many things of interest about non-Christian lands and appealed earnestly to the members of the school to take upon their hearts some of the pitiably unfortunate ones across the sea.

The talk Sunday evening included glimpses of the religious conditions in the lands Miss Clark visited, describing her experience in the temples and sacred places, adding that some conditions were so vile that it was impossible to describe them to an audience.

Miss Clark depicted graphically the conditions under Budhistic, Confucian, Mohammeden and Hindu domination, and then told something of what is coming to pass through the agency of Christian missions, and yet she said that with all that is being done missionaries are only grazing the edge of things, and it is only through an awakened church and a Christian constituency in civilized lands is the world to be brought to Christ.

PRESENTED MRS. MAGUIRE WITH TRAVELING BAG

Mrs. Gabriel Reed Maguire, teacher of the Volunteer Bible class, of the Park Avenue Baptist Church Sunday-school, was the guest of honor at the last business session of the class held last evening, at the home of Mrs. Van Doren Van Fleet, of Richmond street. During the evening Mrs. Maguire, who will accompany her husband, pastor of the church, on a trip to Europe, this summer, was presented with a black walrus leather traveling bag as an appreciation on the part of the members of the class of the work which Mrs. Maguire has accomplished.

The presentation on behalf of the class was made by Mrs. Ira Van Arsdale, Mrs. Maguire responding in a few well chosen words. The formal meeting was the last for the summer months, routine business largely engaging the attention of the members. A social time followed the meeting.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Adv.

HOSPITAL BOARD ELECTS OFFICERS

George P. Mellick Again Chosen President of Governing Body.

APPOINT COMMITTEES

Annual Report of President Gives Interesting Review of Past Year's Work—Greater Publicity Urged—Re-adjustment of Charges.

Officers were elected, committees named and the report of the president, George P. Mellick, was presented at the annual meeting of the board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, this week, which was the last meeting of the board for the fiscal year ending June 14. Immediately following the adjournment of the old board, the new body organized and these officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, George P. Mellick; first vice-president, Percy H. Stewart; second vice-president, Charles W. McCutchen; secretary, Clifford M. Baker; treasurer, Arthur M. Collens. President Mellick then appointed these committees for the year:

Executive, Edward H. Ladd, Jr., Frank J. Hubbard, John M. Whiton, S. Durell Lounsbery, John P. Stevens, Mrs. Frank D. Warren, Mrs. John G. Foster; finance committee, Samuel Townsend, Henry A. McGee, Sherman B. Joost, James W. DeGraff; publicity, S. Durel Lounsbery, C. Ames Brooks, H. W. Marshall; auditing, Clifford M. Baker, David T. Kenney; insurance, John M. Whiton; training school committee, Henry L. Hall; committee on contract with cities, Herman Schwed.

President Mellick then presented his annual report of the hospital's activities for the past year, which was as follows:

"There has been much to interest the board of governors in the work of the hospital during the past year, due to the enlarged service which has made necessary the reorganization of different departments; the adoption of new by-laws—the adoption of hospital rules, medical rules, and rules governing the pupil and special nurses has been a gratifying accomplishment.

"After all the care and thought incidental to the erecting of the new private room building, there is reason to believe that no mistake has been made.

"The building committee certainly deserve praise for the amount of thought given to all the details of this new building, which provides today facilities to be proud of. The problem of directing this new building economically, is one that will require great care during the next year, because the building cannot be made a paying one unless the service is kept up in an efficient way so as to give perfect satisfaction to the patients and to the doctors who direct the patients to the hospital. In this regard I believe it to be most necessary for the future success of our institution, that there be hearty co-operation between all physicians associated with the hospital, and the board of governors. Without the enthusiasm of our doctors, we can look for no great success, and at the same time we must expect of the doctors patient consideration in regard to the many difficulties confronting the governors in trying to meet all the problems of administration.

"I strongly advise greater activity on the part of next year's publicity committee, in order to keep the public advised as to the good work the hospital is doing. The newspapers are ever ready to give space to hospital news and the more publicity given, the greater number of friends the hospital will have. I further urge greater activity on the part of the governing board toward a significant increase in the list of annual contributors. The executive committee is offering for consideration a re-adjustment of hospital charges, which if adopted, will add to the annual earning capacity of the hospital, but our contributors list must not be permitted to lag. Co-operation on the part of the governors in their efforts to bring the hospital's needs to the attention of newly made friends in Plainfield, and inviting them to become annual contributors, will lead to big results if determined effort is undertaken.

"We are indebted to our former treasurer, J. E. Erickson, for the preparation of the annual report. This report contains many interesting figures and I hope each governor will find time to examine carefully its details.

"There remain at this time, the sum of $7,500 still uncollected on pledges to the campaign fund. At least one-half of this amount should be collected, and effort must be made to make those who have not paid

LEFT AN ESTATE OF OVER $10,000

Will of Mrs. Linda Roll Offered for Probate in New York Today.

MANY LOCAL BEQUESTS

Deceased, Who Was Mother of Geo. J. Roll, of North Plainfield, Died In New York on May 22 Last—Names of Beneficiaries.

New York City, June 10.—The will of Mrs. Linda Roll, mother of George J. Roll, of No. 9 Rockview Terrace, North Plainfield, offered for probate here today in the office of the Clerk of the Surrogates' Court, disposes of an estate of "over $10,000.00" in personal property, after all debts are paid, as follows:

The sum of $500.00 equally between Charles S., and John B. Roll, grandchildren (children of George J. Roll of North Plainfield; $500.00 equally between Edwin and Carlton Roll, grandchildren, of No. 79 Bainbridge street, Brooklyn (children of Theodore E. Roll, a son, of the descendant); $30.00 to Ella V. Belzer, niece, of No. 235 West One Hundred and Second street; $5,000.00, and all jewelry, wearing apparel, household furniture, and household effects, and also one-third of the residuary, to Emily T. Roll, daughter, of No. 61 West Eighty-Ninth street. The balance of the estate is divided in equal shares between George J. Roll, of North Plainfield, and Theodore E. Roll, of No. 79 Bainbridge street, Brooklyn, the two sons. No date has been set for the proving of the document.

Exactly how large an estate Mrs. Roll left will not be known until appraised by one of the Transfer Tax State Appraisers, under the direction of the court, to see and ascertain the amount subject to tax under State laws and a report is filed with the Clerk of the Surrogates' Court, as a public document.

Mrs. Roll, who was the widow of George A. Roll, passed away here at her late residence at No. 61 West Eighty-Ninth street, on May 22.

PROGRESSIVES WILL HAVE FULL TICKET

Decided Last Night to Even Oppose Senator Carlton B. Pierce.

Elizabeth, June 10—The political pot started to boil in earnest here last night, when the Progressive County Committee met and outlined their program for the coming fall campaign, although nothing of a definite nature was settled except that a full county ticket will be placed in the field. The meeting, which was harmonious throughout, was well attended. While the committee decided for a full county ticket, it was evident that there is a sentiment in the party for the endorsement of Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, should he again become the candidate of the Republican party for the office he now holds.

As yet there have been no booms started for Assembly candidates, the three offices being at present held by Democrats from this end of the county. It is expected that the Progressive committee will try to have their candidates for these places come from various portions of the county in order that the sections will feel that they are represented in the lower branch of the State Legislative body. As yet no one has appeared to seek the office now held by Senator Pierce, but now the committee has expressed itself for a full ticket, it is expected that candidates will be forthcoming in the near future.

LOST SMALL BUT IMPORTANT PIECE OF FIRE APPARATUS

Chief T. O. Doane has asked the newspapers to help him find a small roller, about two inches in diameter, attached to a lug, which belongs to the extension ladder on the truck, stationed at headquarters. It was lost last night while responding to a still alarm of fire at the plant of the Eastern Botling Company. While a small article it is a very important one, and whoever finds it and returns it to headquarters will earn the thanks of the department officials.

$100,000 VOTED FOR NEW SCHOOL

Board of School Estimate Makes Large Appropriation for Structure.

PLANS ARE DISCUSSED

Work on New Building Will Be Started at Once—To Be Erected on Lot Recently Purchased by the Board on Evergreen Avenue.

Members of the Plainfield Board of School Estimate last night voted an appropriation of $100,000 to be expended for the erection and furnishing of a new graded school on the Evergreen avenue lot recently purchased by the Board. All of the members of the body attended the session and all expressed themselves as being heartily in accord with the proposition.

The Board spent four hours last night in discussing the various types of school buildings. Several members of the Board conducted personal investigations in the subject and detailer reports were presented at last night's session. A number of architects have been brought into consultation in an effort to decide on a type that would be most applicable to Plainfield's needs.

The new structure will have twelve class rooms and will be constructed in a way that will make it easy to make an addition of four rooms when this is deemed necessary in the future Work will be started as soon as the bids can be awarded. The architects, Messrs. Wilder and White, have already completed preliminary sketches and it is probable that bids will be advertised early in July.

MRS. SARAH DAYTON, AGED 77, DROPS DEAD

Former Plainfielder Passes Away Suddenly After Attending Entertainment.

Mrs. William Dayton, aged seventy-seven years, a native of this city and well-known here among the older residents, dropped dead at her home in Bonhamtown, at 11 o'clock, last night, just after returning from an Epworth League entertainment at the home of David Meeker in Metuchen, where she accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Peter Meeker, with whom she lived. Heart trouble was the cause of death.

A rather singular co-incident is that Mrs. Dayton and Alexander M. Runyon, whose death occurred last Saturday night, and who were lifelong friends, passed away in about the same way. During their younger days they both sang in the same church choir.

Mrs. Dayton was in her usual good health last evening while attending the entertainment at Metuchen, but almost immediately upon going to her bedroom upon returning home, she suffered an acute attack of heart trouble and passed away before medical aid could be summoned or even members of the family could reach her room.

Mrs. Dayton's maiden name was Miss Sarah Eliza Randolph and she lived in Plainfield until her marriage. Her husband died several years ago. Mrs. Dayton was a member of the Stelton Baptist church, where for many years she was a faithful attendant at the services. She was a devout Christian and was beloved for her many excellent womanly qualities.

There survives a daughter, Mrs. Peter Meeker, of Bonhamtown, and a son, Samuel Dayton, of Dunellen. The funeral will probably be held at the late home on Saturday.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ADJOURNS UNTIL FALL

The Civic Committees of the Chamber of Commerce met in the body's headquarters in the Babcock building last night and concluded the year's work. An accummulation of routine business was disposed of during the meeting and plans discussed for opening of the next year.

As is the annual custom the Chamber will discontinue all active work and monthly meetings until September 1. During the summer months the various committees will keep in touch with each other and the general routine of work will be carried through until fall.

DUNELLEN WOULD LIKE TO CONSOLIDATE

At Least Many Residents Believe That It Would Mean a Financial Saving.

With the recent action of the North Plainfield Common Council in calling for an election on the consolidation question, several business men of the Borough of Dunellen, as well as many of the rank and file of the voters and taxpayers of that town, have raised the question as to why the same issue should not be seriously considered by that town. Shortly after the joint sewerage election of last summer, the same query was raised, as it was brought out at that time that if the borough could save money and reap benefits by joining forces on the sewerage proposition, money could be likewise be saved by joining other departments of municipal activities.

It is known, however, that there would be considerable opposition to any such program especially on the part of Middlesex county. As to whether or not the Borough Council and Board of Trade anticipate any action at their next meetings relative to this mater could not be learned, but it is probable that the Trade Board will endeavor to find the concensus of opinion among the boroughites without making it necessary for the town to hold a special election on the matter.

PLEASING MUSICALE GIVEN AT WESTFIELD

Plainfield Artists Present Attractive Program Before Large Audience.

Under the auspices of the Anti-Cuffrage League a pleasing musicale was given Monday evening, at the home of Mrs. Frank Southmayd, the State secretary, at 785 Clark street, Westfield, in which several Plainfield artists took part. One of the enjoyable features was the singing of Randall Trumpe, of this city. Another charming number was given by a sextette led by Miss Doris Sattels, of this city, as first violinist. Miss Sattels is the fourteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sattels. The program follows:

Instrumental—"Felice" Canzonetta, Langley; Arabs Dream Kendall, orchestra; contralto solo, "My Heart is Weary," Thomas, Mrs. Robert W. Harden; recitation, "The Soul of the Violin," Alphonse J. Mueck; tenor solos, "L Adieu du Matin, Pessard, "Elegie" Massenet; "Obstination," de Fontenailles, Randall H. Trumpe; instrumenta; "Melody," Frimi, "Shepherd's Dance," German, orchestra; contralto solos "Gavotte from Mignon," Thomas; "Evensong," Homer; "Song of Spring," Von Fulity, Mrs. Robert W. Harden; tenor solos, "Allah Be With Us," Finden; "Florians Song," Godard; "I Hear You Calling Me," Marshall Randall H. Trumpe; instrumental, "The Cavalier," Harris, orchestra.

The orchestra was composed of the following artists: Violins, Miss Doris Sattels, Messrs. Arthur Mosher and Joseph Sattels; 'cello, Oliver King; French horn, George Naylor; flute, Walter Sampson; accompanists, Bert Harold, the Misses McClintock and Whitten.

BOY SCOUTS INVADE STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

The three troops, five, seven and eleven, of the local Boy Scouts, met last evening at seven o'clock in front of the First Presbyterian church from where they marched in a body to the headquarters of the recently organized troop twelve on Grove street. Here the scouts showed the newer members the barrier climb and the essentials of "First Aid to the Injured."

Later the three troops marched back to the First Presbyterian church where the Young People's Society was giving a strawberry and ice cream festival. When the officers in charge gave the order of "break ranks," there was a rush to the entrance. The entertainment committee however welcomed the raiders since nearly every one had the necessary dime to purchase the ice cream or cake. The proceeds went toward the Sunday-school building fund and Camp Endeavor the church's fresh-air camp at Scotch Plains. Peter Sweeney demonstrated the Vitaphone with several pleasing selections.

CLAIMED THAT HE MISUSED FUNDS

Somerset Freeholders Allege That Former Judge Schenck Appropriated $600.

THREATEN DISBARMENT

Motion by Freeholder Kirch That Money Be Returned is Lost by Vote of 8 to 4—District Court for Boro Progressing.

It was claimed at the meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, at Somerville, yesterday, that former Judge Louis H. Schenck had devoted to his own use the sum of about $600, which had been paid to him in installments of about $90 per year by the estate of a Miss Moser, now deceased, who was an inmate of the State Hospital, at Trenton. This matter has been pending before the Board for almost a year, and it was stated at the meeting yesterday that the money was paid to Mr. Schenck by representatives of the estate of Miss Moser on the belief that Mr. Schenck was a representative of the county and entitled to receive the money, as at one time he was counsel for the Board of Freeholders.

A motion was offered by Freeholder Kirch to the effect that Mr. Schenck be requested again to turn over the money due the county at once, and upon his failure to do so that disbarment proceedings be instituted against him. The motion was lost, however, by the vote of 8 to 4, the members being recorded on the question as follows: Yes, Messrs. Poulson, Kirch, Codington and Douglass; No, Messrs. Hoagland, Dilts, Brown, Van Cleef, Remsen, Smith and Mobus. Just what action will be taken now in the matter is not known The money it was claimed, was due the county for the care of the late Miss Moser while an inmate of the State institution.

taken in the matter is no known. which was principally devoted to the payment of claims, argument ensued when the Board convened in the afternoon over the payment of two claims for the burial of deceased soldiers. These amounted in each case to $50, and the members before ordering the bills paid wished it understood that no further sum should be paid for the erection of grave markers, $15 being the usual sum paid for this purpose.

Edward Thatcher, of New York city, made a personal claim before the Board that his patents for concrete bridge structures were being infringed, and he named particularly the West End bridge, in North Plainfield, and while he made no specific demand against the county for damages for work done in the past, he wanted the Board to recognize his rights in the making of future contracts. The matter was referred to Counsel Case and Engineer Doughty for investigation.

The special committee appointed to consider the matter of a district court at North Plainfield, reported progress through Freeholder Kirch, its chairman.

Warden James P. Major was sworn into office by former Judge Case, and his bond in the sum of $1,000, with T. I. Honeyman and C. L. Voorhees, of Somerville, as sureties, was acepted by the Board. His term of office is for five years from June 8, at a salary of $75 per month.

Request was made by the County Board of Taxation that the budget for the year be fixed at the next monthly meeting but counsel informed the Board that this matter, according to the law in the case, should be arranged for at the August meeting, which will be done.

Freeholder Codington wished to know positively whether or not the contractor was responsible for damages that might ensue if a bridge in his township, which the Board recently ordered rebuilt and a contract signed for the work, should collapse. It was stated by the counsel that the county would be held liable, where the contractor had not actually started work, and that he (Mr. Codington) should have the bridge attended to until such time that the contractor began work. This referred to the Flammer bridge, in Warren township, the contractor, John C. Cooper, having until July 15 to build a new structure

Complaint was made by State Commissioner of Roads Stevens that certain roads were not being constructed according to specifications by the contractors, and he also called attention to the work of the contractor on the Beden bridge in Montgomery township. It developed that there was a difference of opinion in the matter between County Engineer Doughty and the State commissioner, and an effort will be made to get together on the matters complained of.

It was voted to meet tomorrow on the Green Brook road bridge, in North Plainfield, and Freeholder

QUESTION HIS RELIGIOUS BELIEF

James Howard Meets Interrogation About Moses With Scriptual Text.

HERESY CRY IS RAISED

Candidate Declines to Commit Himself as to Whether Plans for Tabernacle Came Direct From God or Not—Stormy Debate Follows.

James M. Howard, who has been connected with the institutional work of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church, New York, and who on May 29 was married to Miss Gertrude Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hunter, of West Fourth street, is meeting with considerable difficulty in being ordained as a minister of the Presbyterian church, because of his religious beliefs.

Further protests against his ordination and also that of Charles Hall Wicks, a Cornell graduate, before going to Union Seminary, were made by members of the New York Presbytery following a stormy debate on Monday, at which the cry of heresy was raised again over expressions of religious belief uttered by the candidates.

Both candidates were examined at the April meeting of the presbytery, accepted and their ordination as Presbyterian ministers was ordered. Rev. D. John Fox made a protest in April and it was replied to on Monday by a committee. The reply is said to have been prepared by Rev. Dr. George Alexander. Immediately there was a reply to the answer, and a further answer to this reply was demanded and agreed to at the time.

Mr. Howard was asked whether he believed that Moses saw God on the Mount. The young man pitted St. John's statement against that of Exodus, "No man hath seen God at any time." Asked whether he believed that Moses got the pattern for the tabernacle from God direct, Mr. Howard said that he would not commit himself to so mechanical view of inspiration.

In recent years there have been several instances where candidates for ordination in the Presbyterian church have been held up for their expessions of religious beliefs, Rev. Gilbert Lovell, of this city, now a missionary in China, being one whose religious beliefs on certain matters were questioned by the Elizabeth Presbytery. Mr. Howard is quite well-known here, where he has visited many times. His wife is also well-known here. She is a graduate of the Plainfield High School and Barnard College and since then has been engaged in institutional work in New York.

MYSTERIOUS FIRE DESTROYS CHAPEL

Willow Grove's Worshipping Place Burned to Ground Entailing Loss of $2,000.

The substantial Willow Grove chapel, located in the lower end of Fanwood township, was totally destroyed by fire shortly before 12 o'clock last night. The flames were well under way before discovery was made and nothing could be done to save the building. An estimate places the loss at fully $2,000.

What might have started the blaze is only a matter of conjecture. Services are held in the chapel only on Sundays and so far as known no one had been near the place last night. It is not wired for lights and the blaze broke out long before the heavy thunderstorm occurred. The building was mostly of stone and the loss of it will be keenly felt by the litle congregation which paid for it.

The Fanwood fire department was notified of the blaze, but as the location is beyond the hydrant zone no response was made beyond that of several members living nearby. The reflection was plainly noticed in Plainfield.

WALPOLE MAY GET TERM IN ELMIRA

Changes His Plea to One of Guilty When Arraigned on Two Counts Yesterday.

THIRD CHARGE DROPPED

Abductor of Ruth E. Naylor to Be Sentenced Monday—Assault and Abduction Counts Are Answered by the Defendant.

Arraigned before Judge Rosalsky in New York yesterday, Lynus Walpole, Jr., of Scotch Plains, retracted his plea of not guilty to two indictments being pressed against him by District Attorney Charles Whitman, and entered one of guilty. He will be sentenced next Monday and present indications are that he will get a term of thirteen months in the Elmira Reformatory.

Walpole was indicted by the Grand Jury on three counts as the result of confessions made by himself and Ruth E. Naylor, his alleged victim but the third charge has been dropped by Whitman He plead guilty to assault in the second degree and abduction in the first degree. The indictment found against him by the Union County Grand Jury has been dropped and his arraignment in New York State will eliminate any possibility of his being brought up for trial in this State.

The defendant was implicated in the Ruth E. Naylor case that created a sensation in this city February 3. The girl was taken from the city, to New York by Walpole. They went from this city to Westfield by trolley and from that place to New York by rail. After spending the afternoon in that city they returned to Westfield and separated, Walpole giving the girl twenty-five cents to return to her home in Plainfield, according to the two confessions.

Instead of going home the girl, affrighted at what might result from her day's outing, went to New York city and drifted about for two days securing employment through the Harriet-Judson branch of the Y. W. C. A. in Brooklyn. In the meantime her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Naylor, of 322 Lee place, became nearly distracted with grief and the police assisted in a search, finally locating the girl in Brooklyn where she was working as a domestic. Arrested on evidence secured by Chief Kiely and Detective Sergeant Flynn, Walpole was lodged in a cell at police headquarters and made a clean breast of his crime. When found in Brooklyn the Naylor girl also made a confession corroborating all that her abductor had said in his. He was released on $1,000 on the Union County charge and lated rearrested, and extradition to the Tombs Prison where he has since been a prisoner.

PLAN MEMORIAL FOR DR. WHITNEY

Former Students to Erect Tablet at Centenary Collegiate Institute.

Plainfield graduates of the Centenary Collegiate Institute, of Hackettstown, have an interest in the movement to present to their alma mater a tablet as a memorial to the first president of the school, Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney. The fund is well advanced and the alumnae expect that the tablet will be installed in Whitney Hall, the chapel of the institute, soon after the opening of the school in September. The tablet is of Tiffany favile glass mosaic with a bronze frame about thirty-six by forty-eight inches. From the inscription it is to be erected by the former students and friends of the school. It characterizes Dr. Whitney with the words, "He was a just man."

The price of the tablet is $1,000, but $200 has been subscribed by a personal friend of the secretary, making the amount to be raised for the execution and installation, $750. The contributions from this city have varied from one dollar to ten dollars. Generous checks have also been received from James W. Jackson, of Plainfield, a trustee of the school, and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, who was Dr. Whitney's last pastor.

George H. Whitney, D. D., LL.D., was born July 30, 1830, and died June 6, 1913. He was highly regarded especially by those who knew him as their school president. He served the Centenary Collegiate Institute from 1869 to 1894. John R. Evans, '94, secretary of the Alumnae Association, of Belvidere avenue, is on the memorial fund committee.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal church held a business meeting and social last evening at the residence of W. W. Giddes, on Lincoln avenue.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church held a business meeting at the manse yesterday afternoon. After the transaction of the business of the afternoon a social hour was enjoyed, during which selections were played on a piano by the Misses Matilda Muller and May Fuller. This meeting was the last one that the society will hold until the fall. At the conclusion of the meeting the women were taken to their respective homes by Rev. E. R. Brown in his large touring car.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kope, of Center street, left this morning for Bethlehem, Pa., where they will remain a couple of days with friends.

The house of Frank Pence, at New Market, was struck by lightning during the terrible thunder storm last night. The bolt hit the chimney and then shot towards the ground, bringing slate and brick in its wake. In its progress towards the ground it entered the bedroom in which Mr. and Mrs. Penrose were sleeping, below one of the windows circled about the room and then left by the way of entry. This morning the lawn of the Penrose place was covered with brick, slate and branches off a nearby cherry tree, all a silent witness to what had occurred.

While crossing the Brooklyn Bridge at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon with six tons of varnish, which he was going to deliver for the F. O. Pierce Varnish Works, at Rock avenue, Brooklyn, H. C. Smith's large auto truck, with Mr. Smith himself at the wheel, was run in from the rear by a Gates avenue car and skewed out towards the river. Mr. Smith had no more than turned his truck from the driveway on to the trolley tracks on account of a displayed red flag, when the smash occurred. Thinking at first that the smash occurred by the giving away of the rear construction of his truck, Smith immediately applied his brakes and jumped out, when he learned what had happened. While the trolley car was found to be splintered badly Smith's truck was none the worse for the accident. After being questioned by the police and a trolley inspector he was allowed to proceed. The passengers of the car sustained no injuries.

The party reached Morristown all right, but the machanism of the machine which makes the motor go refused absolutely to work just after entering the main thoroughfare of that city. This happened around 9:30 o'clock. In response to an "S. O. S." Jules Margentino was on his way to the scene in Mr. Smalley's Ford by 11:30 o'clock. The party all returned home by 2 o'clock.

TELLS ON THE KIDNEYS.

Plainfield People Have Found This To Be True.

The strain of overwork tells on weakened kidneys. The hurry and worry of business men, the heavy lifting and stooping of workmen, the women's household cares, tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they can no longer filter the poison from the blood and the whole body suffers from the waste matter that accumulates. Weakened kidneys need quick assistance. Doan's Kidney Pills are prepared especially for weakened kidneys; tired, worn-out backs have proven their merit in thousands of such cases. Convincing proof of their worth is a Plainfield citizen's statement.

Mrs. C. B. Coriell, 60 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I suffered from kidney disorder for years and the principal symptom was a severe backache. Since I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, I have taken them off and on and they always acted like magic, giving me prompt relief."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Coriell had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat Also Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble. Adv.

SWIMMING LESSONS.

Probably no better evidence of the advantages gained by having a swimming pool in the public schools has been presented recently than a lesson of the Empress of Ireland disaster, which shocked the nation such a short time ago. That knowing how to swim saved the lives of at least two little girls is testified to in a news dispatch. One child was seven years old and the other ten. They became separated from their parents in the mad rush for safety, but when they found themselves in the water were able to keep afloat until picked up by one of the rescuing boats. As the New York Tribune says:

Both girls had learned to swim at school and undoubtedly are alive today solely because of their training in the water. This is a small ray of light in one of the most terrible of modern tragedies. But it is significant and has a message for every one. The notion that no one should embark on the water in anything from a row boat to a liner, without a fair ability to swim, is a pretty sensible rule which no amount of safeguards and invention can destroy.

The bitterest critic of the Board of Education for placing a swimming pool in the High School building, would now be praising its installation had either of those children been taught to swim in public schools of Plainfield. The Board of Education has announced that at first swimming lessons will not be made compulsory, but every parent who reads of this little incident of the Empress of Ireland disaster, will undoubtedly see to it that his or her child takes a full course of swimming lessons. If one life is saved at some future date as a result of the swimming instruction given in the tank in the Plainfield High School every cent spent for its installation will have been justified.

BUSINESS REVIVAL ON WAY.

When the master minds of industry as well as leaders of the union labor movement agree on a given point, it can generally be conceded as being close to the truth, if not the truth itself. A few weeks ago, the Daily Press printed the views of two leaders in the labor movement, who stated that they believed prosperity to be on the way. On the building page of May 29, were printed interviews with captains of industry who had come to the same conclusion, except that they observed the situation from a different viewpoint. How true their forecasts may have been, is indicated in the following editorial from the New York Globe:

Signs of an early and healthy revival in business are not entirely lacking. Most significant of these, perhaps, are the large orders for equipment given by some of the railroads in the last few days. The Illinois Central has just contracted for 3,000 freight cars, the New York Central for 7,300, and the "Big Four" for 5,000. In addition to this a firm in Pittsburgh has just given an order for 2,000,000 tons of Bessemer pig iron, the largest placed by one buyer in the Pittsburgh district for years.

If there is any truth in the saying that the prosperity of the country depends on the railroads these figures should lend encouragement to all. The railroads evidently see good times not far distant, and they want to be prepared against the day when they arrive. Not only the railroads, but practically every line of industry has been pursuing a hand-to-mouth policy for months. Stocks of merchandise, perhaps, never have been lower, and, in fact, production in practically every direction has fallen far behind consumption. A solid foundation has been prepared on which to rear a structure of world-wide prosperity. The railroads, apparently, are about ready to lay the cornerstone.

In New Jersey all of the charitable and correctional institutions, except the State Prison, are managed by representative citizens of the State who give their time and service to the work, without thought of recompense. Several Plainfielders, are or have been on the boards in the past, and have done valuable work of a character which would have cost thousands of dollars were it necessary to pay for the ability and brains enlisted. It is purely a spirit of citizenship and a desire to do something for the less fortunate among their fellow men which prompts these public spirited people, and that explains why New Jersey has been particularly free from scandals alleging graft and mismanagement in its institutions. On Saturday a local resident who has performed splendid service for one of the state hospitals, will be the contributing editor, and like all of the other editorials which we have printed, what he has to say will be well worth reading.

The police board has decided to purchase but one motorcycle at the present time, and it will be bought from a local dealer. It will be kept at headquarters and used to get to places where a policeman is needed in a hurry, and at certain times when the automobile traffic through town is heavy, will be used to capture speeders. The use of it will not be permitted to interfere with the routine of the department, and several men will be taught to drive it, so that one will not be assigned to the work. At least that is what the police board contemplates doing with the machine. That they have awakened to the fact that two motorcycles are too many, at least for the present, is gratifying, for probably it will be found that so little is gained by the use of one that it will be abandoned after a try-out.

Kirch promised the members a good time, especially requesting that Counsel Case attend the session. A meeting will also be held on Wednesday of next week in reference to the road leading from the new Marconi plant to New Brunswick, and the session will be held near that institution.

County Collector Allen reported receipts of the month from all sources as being $16,219.65, including $13,000 borrowed money. WILLIAM LEE'S HOTEL STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

In the midst of the heavy thunderstorm which passed over Plainfield and vicinity at 3 o'clock this morning, lightning struck William H. Lee's West Side hotel at Scotch Plains. The bolt entered where an addition to the structure is being built and passed through the main part of the hostelry. Plaster, lath and boards were ripped off but fortunately no fire was started.

Mr. Lee and the members of his family were partially stunned by the effects of the lightning and did not recover for several moments. The damage to the building is placed at about $50.

The storm was one of the hardest Scotch Plains has experienced in several years, but reports indicate the property loss was slight.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF A. M. RUNYON HELD

Many Friends Attend Obsequies at the Late Home of Departed.

The funeral services of Alexander M. Runyon, who died suddenly Saturday evening, were held yesterday afternoon, at the home of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elmer E. Runyon, of Madison avenue. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Mr. Runyon was a member, officiated.

The services were largely attended, many of the older citizens being present, among whom were Captain S. C. Peck, Joseph Hubbard, Charles Stimpson, Joseph Randolph, Charles Smith and several members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., and Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M. Among the many floral tributes sent by the friends, were large set pieces from the two fraternities. Three selections were sung by the Lotus Glee Club. The interment, which was private, was made this morning in Hillside cemetery.

A WOMAN, TWO RUNS, BUT NO REAL FIRE

Reflection From the Gas Company's Plant Resembled a Big Conflagration.

Local fire fighters were aroused to action at 3 o'clock this morning when an East Second street woman telephoned to headquarters that a bad fire was raging in the east end. Chief Doane dispatched his laddies to the designated territory but when they arrived no fire could be found.

Returning to headquarters the fire authorities notified the woman of their "wild goose chase" but she still insisted that a conflagaration was visible. At the invitation of the informant a fireman was sent to her home and he also saw the flames shooting skyward from the Washington street section. Again the fire fighters and apparatus turned out only to find that the flames were coming from the gas company's plant on East Fourth street.

METHODIST WOMEN GIVE SUCCESSFUL DUTCH SUPPER

The "Dutch Supper" held at Vincent chapel last evening from 6:30 to 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, proved very successful. The menu was a unique one and Dutch in its makeup. It was thoroughly enjoyed by the many friends of the society present. The waitresses, all of whom were members of the society, were dressed appropriate to the occasion, all wearing Dutch caps and costumes.

Mrs. Albert B. Meredith, was chairman of the committee and had charge of the details of the supper. The several women who acted as waitresses were also volunteers.

HALT GIRL'S FUNERAL FOR NEW AUTOPSY

Brother Doubts Sister Died by Drowning.

Baltimore, June 10.—The funeral of Miss Ella G. Winter was held up pending a new autopsy into her death in the waters of Curtis bay.

State's Attorney Green of Anne Arundel county gave orders for a thorough investigation. He demanded of Dr. T. B. Horton an explanation of why he had not examined the girl's lungs when the first autopsy was made. Dr. Horton immediately agreed to a second surgical examination, which will be made to-night.

Dissatisfaction over the verdict of the coroner's jury, which was held last night in Brooklyn, was explained by members of the young woman's family.

"There was evidence of an accident," said George A. Winter, a brother, this morning, "and yet the jury said it was probably accidental drowning. Ella had a cut over one eye, and it is not known whether she had water in her lungs or not. I think the matter should be investigated further."

Miss Winter was last seen by Dr. Meredith Reese, Jr., with whom she had an appointment at a landing near Flood's Park, on Thursday night. After a short ride in his motorboat Miss Winter, according to his statement, left him at the landing and he went back to his houseboat.

"I do not think that it was proved conclusively that my sister died by drowning," said Mr. Winter. "No one saw her on the pier where Mr. Reese testified he landed her after a short cruise in a motor launch, and the testimony was to the effect that several men were on the landing during the entire period of time from the time she left until she returned.

"Then, again, Dr. Horton, who made the autopsy, did not examine my sister's lungs to find out whether or not any water had entered them."

STOPS ALL ARMS GOING TO MEXICO

Cabinet Bent on Preventing More Antilla Incidents.

HALT CARGO AT GALVESTON

Will Also Hold Up All Others—Direct Shipment Can Thus Be Checked, but Not Those Sent Through Foreign Ports.

Washington, June 10.—The Wilson administration put its foot down on the shipment of any more arms and ammunition from American ports to Mexican ports. The whole question was thrashed out in a meeting of the cabinet, where it was definitely decided to prevent any repetition of the Antilla incident.

The immediate result of the cabinet's decision was the issuance of orders to hold up 45,000 rounds of ammunition which was conveyed from New York city to Galveston on the Morgan liner El Sud for transshipment over the Wolvin line to Tampico for the use of the rebels.

A letter from the collector of customs at Galveston forced the issue. The letter reached Washington while the cabinet was in session. It was sent over to Secretary Redfield and read in cabinet session. This letter stated that El Sud had arrived with the ammunition, which was shipped by Flint & Co. to Galveston for transshipment to an unnamed consignee at Tampico. The collector asked for instructions.

So far as marine lawyers here could ascertain there was no authority of law by which the cargo of El Sud could be stopped, and it became necessary for the cabinet to act at once. No proclamation has been issued restoring the embargo on arms, but the decision of the cabinet was sufficient, with the approval of President Wilson, to enable Secretary Redfield to send a telegram to the collector, which read substantially as follows: "Do not allow any vessel with arms and ammunition to clear for Mexican ports. This order is effective until further notice."

No Orders About the Cargo.

Washington, June 10.—Administration officials are expecting General Carranza to announce the appointment of delegates to the mediation conferences at Niagara Falls within the next forty-eight hours.

In the words of Secretary Bryan the situation, especially Carranza's participation in the proceedings, "looks hopeful"—so hopeful, in fact, that after a lengthy conference at the White House the secretary of state announced his intention of leaving Washington to make a speech to the graduates of a preparatory school at Pennington, N. J.

Later the cabinet met for its usual session, and the reports made by the president and Secretary Bryan regarding the Mexican situation gave rise to an optimism which only the memories of past flarebacks could temper.

Administration officials denied that any orders were under contemplation which would require Rear Admiral Mayo to prevent the landing of the Antilla's cargo of arms and ammunition at Tampico for use by the Constitutionalists.

There is nothing to show that the president disapproves of the ease with which the rebels are getting supplies.

On the other hand, it is stated authoritatively that, having entertained the formal protest of the Huerta delegates against the landing of these arms, the mediators are not going to permit this question to interrupt the proceedings at Niagara Falls.

T. R. GUEST OF SPAIN'S KING.

Ambassador Takes Him to Summer Palace Outside Madrid.

Madrid, June 10.—Accompanied by Ambassador Willard and the American embassy staff, Colonel Roosevelt left Madrid for the summer palace of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria at La Granja, forty miles distant.

He was scheduled to be the guest of the king and queen for four hours. Luncheon was to be served while he was there.

Colonel Roosevelt and King Alfonso were already acquainted, having met in London at the funeral of King Edward VII.

DUFFY CONVICTION UPHELD.

Police Sergeant Took Protection Money From Julius Roth.

Albany, N. Y., June 10.—The court of appeals affirmed the conviction of Police Sergeant Peter J. Duffy last year for taking protection money from Julius Roth, a gambler.

Duffy was sentenced to state prison for not less than three or more than four years.

PARIS SNOWBOUND.

Paris, June 10.—Snowdrifts on the boulevards of Paris was a novel June sight here. More than two inches of snow and hail fell, and along the Champs Elysees cab horses had trouble dragging their vehicles through piles of snow, which drifted in the high winds. Yesterday morning piles of snow still remained in many quarters. The temperature during the storm fell to 40 degrees.

SENATOR ROOT.

New York Member Against First Hay-Pauncefote Pact.

Senator Root and Senator Smith of Michigan clashed in the canal tolls repeal debate in the senate. "I wish that the senator from New York were here now," thundered Senator Smith, "so that I might ask him were the first Hay-Pauncefote treaty pending now, would he vote for it?" "Mr. President," called Senator Root, who had slipped in just as the sentence was being uttered, "I would like to say that I was and am opposed to the first Hay-Pauncefote treaty, but that I heartily favor the second, which provides that the Panama canal must be operated so that the ships of all the world will be on terms of absolute equality."

THE INVINCIBLE CULLOM.

Ineffectual Attempts to Retire Him From the Senate a Standing Joke.

When the late Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois relinquished his office he was the oldest United States senator in point of continuous service. He was eighty-three, and his retirement marked the passing of a generation of statesmen who entered congress during the civil war and remained there or in other public service almost continuously. President Taft once said of him:

"Why, here's my old friend, Uncle Shelby. He comes nearer connecting the present with the days of Washington than any one else whom I know."

Cullom's living contemporary is Joseph G. Cannon, whose public career has extended over forty-seven years and who is now seventy-eight.

Time and again Senator Cullom's defeat was predicted, even by friends, but he would win when the election came. When John R. Tanner ran for governor against Cullom's wishes and was elected he tried hard to defeat Cullom, but could not do so.

Friends of Governor Tanner urged him to plan so that on the death of Mr. Cullom he could succeed him in the senate. It is said that Tanner led them to the window of his office and, pointing to a distant graveyard, said:

"That plot of ground is full of men who tried to retire Shelby Cullom from the senate."

Mr. Tanner has long been buried in the cemetery he pointed to.

STRIKE PARALYZES ITALY.

Stores Closed and Newspapers Not Published In All Cities.

Rome, June 10.—The Socialist strike, called as a protest for the killing of several of their faith at Ancona, has spread to practically all the principal Italian cities.

In nearly all, as in Rome, the street cars and cabs were not running, newspapers were not publishing, stores were closed down and business in general was at a standstill. Troops patrolled the streets.

Here in Rome a formidable army force was concentrated about the Quirinal and the ministries. Cavalry was utilized to clear the Piazzi del Popolo, where the Socialists attempted a meeting.

Gets Whisky as Loan Security.

Washington, June 10.—Edward M. Pattison of Germantown, O., won title to 210 barrels of whisky as security for a loan of $5,500 claimed by trustees in bankruptcy of David Rohrer, a Germantown distiller, who borrowed from Pattison and failed.

A Human Foot Warmer.

It is interesting to learn that Julius Caesar found our Celtic ancestors just suffocating themselves with smoke. Giraldus, the early Welsh historian, describes a family as sitting around their smoky central fire by day and lying around it by night. But they could have had little comfort from it, for the same historian tells us that one of their princes eked out his fire with a human foot warmer. This officer's duty was to keep his master's feet warm by cherishing them in his bosom during meals. For this purpose he squatted under the table, and no doubt it "did him proud" so to nurse the royal moccasins.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Popular Peanuts.

Popcorn or peanuts—which is the favorite gastronomic consolation or resource of young America in its hours of sadness or gladness? Peanuts, it seems, have a large majority of the votes, for 20,000,000 bushels of peanuts are produced annually as against only 1,000,000 bushels of popcorn. But together these delectable delicacies are headliners at the 1,000 amusement parks and 1,500 county fairs of the United States.—Exchange.

Many Athletes Ruined by Too Much Specialty Work.

SYRACUSE CREW LOOKS GOOD

May Repeat In Hudson Regatta—Dauss a Ringer For Kid Nichols—Jennings Has Tigers at Top Speed—Fed Pitcher Jumps Back to Organized Baseball—World's 120 Hurdle Record.

When a trainer finds a recruit with peculiar qualifications for becoming a first class sprinter or distance runner or shot putter—or whatever his natural specialty may be—the case may be dealt with in one of two ways, according to the skill and common sense of the athletic instructor. One who lacks a great deal of that scientific knowledge of physical man which a trainer is supposed to have but does not always possess is likely to tempt fate by seeking through special exercises to cultivate and develop to the last degree the young athlete's natural specialty. On the other hand, the really wise trainer, suspecting that overdevelopment will throw other parts of the body out of harmony, will take pains to secure that harmony by suitable general exercises. In the one case a prodigious athlete may be produced in a single athletic event, but more often the man will turn out an utter failure even in that for which nature qualified him, whereas in the other the novice will make safer and surer progress toward increased ability.

Colleges and universities are sprinkled with men who have thus been ruined by mishandling either in college or the preparatory schools. Dr. Sargent, the Harvard physical director, in writing upon this subject some years ago urged that all athletes indulge in "indirect training," as he termed it. The runner, he said, would find it to his advantage to practice rowing and to use the gymnasium for building muscles used in forced respiration; the oarsman would add greatly to his breathing capacities by long distance running and would acquire vigor and dash through playing football and lawn tennis; the jumper would add to his ability by riding a bicycle and sprinting, and the gymnast would be helped by indulging more freely in out of door sports.

E. Hammitt, a sophomore in Pennsylvania State college, equaled the world's record in the 120 yard hurdle event in the interclass field meet, covering the distance in 15 1-5 seconds. He also made a new State college record of 24 3-5 seconds in the 220 yard hurdles.

"One advantage of a boat race on Lake Carnegie," said a Columbia rowing enthusiast, "is that you can see the faces of the men in the racing boats. This adds a great deal of interest to a regatta, because you get the personal note, which is lacking when you are a mile or two away from the shells and see only a bunch of toothpicks going down a stream. I believe that if spectators could be brought closer to the crews at New London and Poughkeepsie the races would be much more enjoyable."

Syracuse has filled her varsity shell, save in two places, with Poughkeepsie veterans. As a consequence hopes for a repeat victory on the Hudson this year run high. Both Jim Rice and Charles E. Courtney, however, will probably be willing to take oaths that if Syracuse does win this year it will not be because Columbia and Cornell have entered into a struggle to kill each other off. Washington university take notice also.

Veteran fans who remember Kid Nichols, who pitched for the late Frank Selee's champion Bostons twenty years ago, see his double in Dauss, the Tiger's young boxman. Dauss not only looks like Nichols, but he has the same delivery. He pitches for the plate a greater part of the time and tries to put the batsman in the hole as soon as possible. The only difference is that Dauss frequently uses a puzzling slow ball, while Nichols depended entirely on rifle shot speed.

Hughey Jennings has finally whipped the Detroit Tigers into a team that is sure to take a lot of beating before the American league pennant race is over. The infield has been materially strengthened with Kavanaugh at second and Burns at first, while the pitchers in their present form make up a staff second to none in the league. It is not likely that they can hold their present pace, but just at present Hughey Jennings and his clan are held in high respect.

Pitcher Frank Smith, who jumped to the Baltimore Federal league team and has won several games for that club, wants to jump back again to Montreal. He has gone there to talk it over with President Lichtenhein, whose club is badly in need of pitchers, and says he will play again for the Royals if Lichtenhein will treat him right.

Smith's desertion marks the first break in the Federal league ranks since the season opened.

Tom Darmody, director of the Los Angeles baseball club and friend of John J. McGraw, is authority for the statement that Arthur Shafer may be seen cavorting around third base for the Los Angeles team in the near future. Darmody has forwarded a petition to McGraw to release Shafer from suspension. It is believed Shafer would play on the coast, especially for his home town club, as a matter of civic pride if nothing else. Darmody believes if his automatic suspension is raised Shafer will don the spiked shoes to help Los Angeles out of its rut. Shafer knows how badly his services are needed, but refuses to talk until McGraw has been heard from.

Pending his return to pitching form, Jack Coombs, the Athletic twirler, has been assigned by Connie Mack to do scouting work among the university teams. He is expected at New Haven soon. John Reilly, who is said to have an understanding with McGraw, Brown, the pitcher, and Le Gore of the freshman nine are the men to whom Coombs, it is said, will devote the most of his attention.

THERE'S GOING TO BE A BREAK

North Plainfield and Plainfield Controversy Has Come to Climax.

PROTESTS ARE LODGED

Howls From Those Who Have the Interests of the Two Institutions at Heart—Some Talk of Going to City Officials for Redress.

Howls of protest have been unearthed following the decision of the Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools' baseball managements to leave the Interscholastic League controversey unsettled and communications of every variety came in this morning's mail to the Daily Press. A fair specimen of the sentiment expressed in the various missles is given in the one published below.

Although nothing has been heard in a direct way from the Plainfield management it is a well known fact that the boroughites are greatly peeved and may resort to the Mayor of Plainfield to bring about a satisfactory settlement. In an interview with one interested in the proposition this morning a Daily Press reporter learned that the matter will be dropped as far as Coach Patch and the other officials of the local team are concerned and the North Plainfielders will direct what other protests they have to follow to the Mayor in the hope of bringing about some kind of a satisfactory settlement.

Whether this will do any good or not remains to be seen but the present state of affairs cannot be made any the worse by action along another line by the North Plainfielders. Never before have matters reached a similar crisis in interscholastic endeavor hereabouts and unless something is done in the matter before the present term of school closes the eruption is bound to result disastrously to the basketball league next year.

The boroughites are prepared to go the limit to make the Plainfielders come to terms and if satisfaction cannot be secured from the school officials, the city authorities will be approached by those at the head of educational work in the borough. Following is a sample of the communication as received by us today.

Sporting Editor:

We have read with much interest the articles entitled "No Third Game for Title," referring to the deciding game of baseball between N. P. H. S. and P. H. S., which appeared in last night's Courier-News. It does not seem fair that this game should be forfeited for what seems to us personal reasons. Since N. P. H. S. will not play on Parker Field and P. H. S. wil. not play on Hyde Oval, why not play on a neutral field. Think what this will mean to both schools to have the game forfeited. We have been looking forward to victory to N. P. H. S. and undoubtedly those interested in P. H. S. have looked forward to victory for their school also.

We are of the opinion that the game should be played on a neutral field.

LOCAL PLAYER ELIMINATED FROM JERSEY TENNIS MEET

Two surprises marked the second day's play in the men's singles in the New Jersey State championship yesterday on the courts of the Englewood Field Club at Englewood. In the first upset of form Charles M. Bull, Jr., of the Crescent Athletic Club scored a three-set victory over Ralph L. Baggs after dropping the first love set to his opponent. Baggs, who has been playing a strong game this season, went to pieces in the second and third sets, and Bull carried off the honors.

In the third round T. O. Gavett, of this city, fell before Louis Graves, thereby being eliminated from the championship race.

WITH THE BOXERS

Jack Dillon and Battling Levinsky got $3,440 apiece out of their recent bout in Indianapolis.

New York promoters are figuring on a match between Charley White and Willie Beecher, the New York lightweight.

Jess Willard, the erstwhile heavyweight hope, says he is willing to tackle Gunboat Smith, Frank Moran or Jack Johnson.

P. H. S. TEACHERS REPEAT HISTORY

Put the Usual Finale on the Scholastic Season by Whipping the "Grads."

COMEDY VS. BASEBALL

Varied Regalia Introduced by the Class Room Superiors Lends Interest to the Encounter—Hits and Errors Figure Prominently.

Members of the Plainfield High School faculty made good use of a last chance to get a crack at the outgoing class of athletes on the baseball diamond yesterday afternoon, trimming the seniors in the annual assault on the horschide by a score of 7 to 5. Opportune hitting intermingled with frequent erors on the part of the schoolboys gave their superiors the lead in the early stages and the teachers held the upper hand from start to finish.

Although the teachers had a wonderful array of material bedecked in varied regalia yesterday afternoon, they lacked the essential feature of a nine, the battery. Rather than have a one-sided contest the seniors loaned their rivals a pitcher and catcher, Irving Schenck, a post-graduate, doing the receiving, and Denny, a lower classman, furnishing the benders.

Fighting togs varying from white flannels and peek-a-boo shirts to knickerbockers were ushered into the conflict by the classroom rulers and with the teachers on the field the diamond was one of many hues.

Lindsey Best, in keeping with his position as principal, headed the batting list and took remarkable good care that none of the little seniors soiled his white flannels which were very much in the limelight during the conflict.

Coach Patch, respected by the seniors as an athletic coach, followed Best's lead, holding down the initial cushion. While he managed to lead in three columns of the box score Patch did his best work in crowding seniors off the firt base bag. He made three safe bingles, one of them good for a half-way trip, cantered across the plate with three markers and balanced up his work by checking off two errors during the afternoon.

"Bill" Dodd, sometimes accused of being a "good umpire," trampled the weeds in center field. He pulled in three flies that came buzzing in his direction and scooped in all that passed Best at the keystone sack. He was also there with the wagon tongue, poling out a three sacker and a triple.

Wriston, the speed-king of the faculty, exhibited some good sprinting when pursued around the sacks by one of the fourth year men. His gait was a sight worth seeing and when he managed to get on the paths a general scramble for the home plate was the usual result. The triangular shape of certain portions of the diamond is said to have been responsible for Wriston's ability to elude his rivals.

Broadbent and Hauck, the Mutt and Jeff of the faculty, cavorted about third and short. Neither the long nor short got a hit nor a run, but their presence around the difficult corner was a caution to young seniors who chanced to meander in that direction. In one instance the shortstop and third baseman managed to combine their efforts and hold a three-base clout to a home run.

The fracas was curtailed in the eighth inning when darkness intervened.

BENEDICTS TROUNCE SINGLE OPPONENTS

Volley of Runs and Plenty of Misplays Give Married Men the Decision.

Married men, in baseball togs and protected by the usual amount of baseball armour, scored a 15 to 7 verdict over the "unfortunates" on the diamond yesterday afternoon, putting the single crew to rout with timely bingles. The benedicts' fusilade while not as large in bulk as that of the opposition, was well-timed and brought the necessary amount of counters across the home station in the opening rounds.

The victor's visits to the scoring pan were well scattered and counters were always forthcoming when needed. Nine miscues chalked up by the unbound performers gave the other side sufficient cause for sewing up the decision in the early stages and the latter part of the encounter resolved itself into a mere formality, the married players fattening their box score and the single men going out in one, two, three fashion.

GOOD GAME PROMISED FOR FANS AT SOUTH PLAINFIELD

The attraction next Sunday, at South Park will be the Maurer A. C. the same team that defeated the locals in the first game of the season three weeks ago. The local team is considerably stronger now and will give the visitors a hard battle this time. Tommy Mullin will be missing for a couple of weeks on account of injuring his knee while sliding into second in the St. Anthony's game.

Mullin's absence will be felt badly by the locals but he expects to be in the lineup again in a week or two. The pitcher for next Sunday's game has not yet been announced but the rest of the lineup will be the same. "Red" Grimes will play second and "Billy" Coyle third.

WAGNER'S 3,000TH HIT.

Philadelphia, June 10—"Hans" Wagner, the veteran shortstop of the Pittsburgh National League team, yesterday made his 3,000th hit in seventeen years of major league baseball. It was a two-bagger off Pitcher Mayer with no one on base in the ninth inning. He subsequently scored Pittsburgh's only run of the game on two outs. He was applauded when he made the hit and again when he crossed the plate.

JERSEY GOLFER WINS.

Archie Graham, Arcola, former New Jersey champion and national runner-up of 1907, yesterday afternoon won gross prize in the semi-annual handicap of the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange at the Salisbury links, with the card of 88. That was not anything like his usual going, however. Only last Sunday at Arcola, with five balls out of bounds, he did 77. The par at Salisbury is 38-34-72.

ADDRESSES GRADUATES.

INTEREST IS RIFE IN DUNELLEN EVENT

Female Bowlers Supply Plenty of Good Competition in Opening Games.

The games of the Woman's Two-team Bowling Tournament were started on the Presbyterian alleys last evening. When the tournament was opened with the rolling of the first game at 8 o'clock between the Mrs. H. B. Arnold and Mrs. J. N. Apgar combination and the Mrs. F. R. Wynkoop and Mrs. E. B. Latham duo, both sides of the alleys were lined with the aristocracy of Dunellen. The Arnold and Apgar and the Vail and Johnson combinations both captured two games apiece at the expense of the Wynkoop and Latham duo, who failed to win a game during the evening.

The Arnold and Apgar and the Vail and Johnson teams split even in their games. The exciting feature of the evening was when the first ball rolled by Mrs. Fred Vail, in her team's initial game with the Wynkoop and Latham duo, struck the gutter and bounded at right angles towards a group, of which Mayor E. B. Latham was one, all of the group jumping to their feet as if their lives were in danger.

The games were rolled in the following manner:

Mrs. H. B. Arnold	90	123
Mrs. J. N. Apgar	96	64

Hand-Braided "Rag Rugs" But Made of New Materials

The old New England Rugs that our grandmothers made from scraps out of the rag bag, were lovely, but hardly sanitary.

These hand-braided rugs are just as lovely, but entirely clean and new, because made out of new materials—remnants of dress goods and woolens straight from the mill.

Of course, these rugs are made entirely by hand, which makes them extremely durable, and also rather high in price. But this special lot is now offered which brings them down to the price of rugs that cannot compare with them in beauty and wear.

BYRNE WINS OUT IN JERSEY CITY

O'Mealia, Wittpenn's Candidate, Runs Second.

SUCCEEDS LATE J. J. FERRIS

Jersey City's First Election Under New Hennessy Preferential Ballot Law, Which Permits a Voter to Indicate His First, Second, Third and Fourth Choice of Candidates.

Jersey City, N. J., June 10.—Henry Byrne, Democrat, was the victor at the special election in this city as successor to the late James J. Ferris in the city commission. James F. O'Mealia, candidate of the followers of H. Otto Wittpenn, naval officer of the port of New York, was second; Thomas J. Stewart, Republican, third, and John E. Edelstein fourth. There were eight other candidates in the field, or an even dozen in all.

It was Jersey City's first election under the new Hennessy preferential ballot law, which permits a voter to indicate his first, second, third and fourth choice of candidates.

By the provisions of the act if a candidate does not receive a majority of votes cast for first choice his second choice totals are added in. If he fails to get a majority on first and second choices the third choice total is added, etc. Nobody had a majority counting all choices.

The totals as shown by the returns of the four leading candidates on first, second and third choices were as follows:

	First.	Second.	Third.	Total.
Byrne	7,135	1,440	490	9,065
O'Mealia	6,133	1,410	468	8,011
Stewart	5,726	853	348	6,927
Edelstein	1,901	2,044	707	4,652

The citizens were apparently surfeited by the unusual large number of elections held in the past two years as only 22,891 took the trouble to vote. There were over 42,000 on the registry list, therefore only a little over 50 per cent went to the polls.

Henry Byrne, the new commissioner, is the largest holder of real estate in this city. He is a contractor and transferred to employees his contract with the city for the removal of ashes and garbage in order to become eligible for commissioner. Much of the land he owns was redeemed from meadows and swamps by filling in with ashes collected in the years gone by. He is about fifty-three years old and served as a member of the New Jersey assembly from Hudson county in 1890 and 1891.

Mr. Byrne was backed for election by Surrogate John P. Egan, who is contesting with ex-Mayor Wittpenn for the honor of being the real power in the Democratic organization in the county. He also had the support of City Commissioners Frank Hague and George F. Brensinger, with whom it is expected he will vote, thus controlling the commission. The minority members of the commission are Mayor Mark M. Fagan and A. Harry Moore, who is a Wittpenn man.

FIELDER'S SECRETARY RESISTS

Tells Pennsylvania Road to Sue—He Won't Pay Fare.

Trenton, N. J., June 10.—The Pennsylvania railroad threatens to sue for transportation certain New Jersey state officials, alleging that they should pay for every time they have ridden during a given period on passes. Such notice has been served upon Edward Herrmann, Governor Fielder's secretary, and he has decided to make a test case of it.

As soon as he received his notice Mr. Herrmann wrote to the railroad company that he did not intend to pay the $50 transportation bill sent him and that if the road wanted to sue it could do so. He said he would carry the case to the court of errors and appeals or the United States supreme court if necessary. It is understood that the Pennsylvania will make its fight on the alleged unconstitutionality of the general railroad act of 1873 with all amendments down to and including the 1914 legislature.

100 LOST WHEN GALE SWEEPS BAY

Sixty Fishing Boats Are Believed Sunk.

MANY BODIES RECOVERED

In Most Cases Father and Sons Go to Death Together—Schooner Captain Gives Thrilling Description of Disaster—Big Financial Loss.

St. John, N. B., June 10.—It is estimated that from 100 to 125 lives have been lost in the gale that swept the bay of Chaleur, between the north coast of New Brunswick and the Gaspe coast of Quebec. Meager and disconnected stories received here tell of the terrible tragedy.

The victims were fishermen, and a particularly sad feature of the tragedy is that in most cases more than one member of a family was taken. The bay of Chaleur fishermen ply their craft in families—the father owns the boat, and his sons sail with him as assistants. Thus it was that practically every one of the fifty or sixty boats hailing from Quebec and New Brunswick fishing villages which put to sea on Thursday last carried father and sons or older and younger brothers in their crews.

There is but indifferent telegraphic communication with the fishing villages nestling around the coast of the bay, and for this reason there has been but little opportunity to get a connected idea of what happened. The boats, however, estimated at between fifty and sixty, put to sea on Thursday last, and but very few of them have since been heard from, while scores of bodies have either been brought in by other vessels or have washed on the shores. The first connected story of the tragedy is told by Captain Samuel Breau of the schooner Warren P. The Warren P. reached Chatham from Shippegan in the track of the storm, and her captain gives some slight idea of the great loss of life.

Many Missing.

Captain Breau himself was out in the gale, but, not being so far from land as the fishermen, managed to make Shippegan without damage. He says the wind blew 150 miles an hour during the worst part of the gale. Looking seaward from his vessel just before the storm broke, he saw eight fishing boats, each of which would carry four or five men. After the clouds lifted a little he looked again for the craft, but they were gone. Later, when the storm subsided somewhat, he sent boats near the spot, and some of the fishing boats were found bottom up, with bodies of men still on them.

From Paspebiac, Que., comes word that thirty boats are missing and that they averaged three men each. Some of them have probably made shelter in other villages, and owing to the difficulty of getting communication their safety has not been learned of previously. It is estimated that probably forty fishermen from Paspebiac have drowned. From Ste. Simon there comes a vague report that four vessels, each manned by fathers and sons, are lost. If true sixteen lives have been lost there. The bodies of eight Caraquet fishermen have already been picked up. in Shippegan six are known to have been drowned in addition to the bodies found by Captain Breau's men. In all it is feared that from 100 to 125 lives have been lost and thousands of dollars' damage done. The disaster is the worst that has ever overtaken the bay of Chaleur fishing fleet.

JOHN D.'S GRANITE HELD UP.

Blocks a Tarrytown Street and Can't Move Back or Forward.

Tarrytown, N. Y., June 10.—John D. Rockefeller is having further trouble with his 250 ton block of granite, now slowly making its way to Pocantico Hills, where it is to be chiseled into a fountain.

New York Central engineers refused to permit Mr. Rockefeller to move the gigantic stone across the Beekman avenue railroad bridge. They said that if the stone fell through to the tracks trains might have to stop running for a week. The Tarrytown trustees have declined to let Mr. Rockefeller's men drag the stone back to Willy street unless he furnishes a bond. It is possible to make a five mile detour through the Sleepy hollow country in order to reach the estate, but this plan, it is understood, meets with no favor.

In the meantime the stone is holding down Beekman avenue, and nobody fears that it will disappear overnight.

COUNTESS BASERWITZ.

Has Gained Consent of Kaiser to Wed His Son.

Countess Ina de Baserwitz, maid of honor to the empress of Germany, has just been made happy through the withdrawal of the kaiser's objections to her morganatic marriage to Prince Oscar, the fifth son of the emperor of Germany. Though the countess is not of royal blood, she is a member of one of the oldest families in the German empire. The kaiser at first strongly opposed the alliance and threatened to banish Prince Oscar.

RAID ON MILITANTS; CHOP FINE PAINTING

Police Clean Out Headquarters and Arrest Women.

London, June 10.—Both the militants and their bitter enemies, the police, became active with growing exasperation and disgust on the part of the British public as a background.

A suffragette armed with a meat chopper badly damaged Romney's "Portrait of a Boy" in the art gallery at Birmingham and was arrested later.

The woman gave her name as Bertha Ryland when arraigned in court. Officials at the art gallery said that the Romney portrait which she slashed could probably be restored for $500.

At about the same time the authorities, aroused by the recent outbreak of violent attacks by militant suffragettes, raided the temporary headquarters of the Women's Social and Political union in Tothill street. Eight suffragettes were arrested and the office retained in possession of the police. The women arrested were all subsequently released.

The regular W. S. P. U. headquarters on Gingsway have been in possession of the police since May 23, when a raid similar to that executed Tuesday was said to have given the authorities valuable information of suffragette coups planned to back up their demand for equal rights.

Everywhere there were abundant signs that London, and indeed all England, has lost patience with the "furies" and that the worm is about ready to turn.

Several prominent church leaders are out in interviews today counseling radical treatment of outbreaks by militants from now on. "Let them die" seems to be the general slogan of these interviews.

BIGGEST YIELD OF WHEAT.

Statistics Show That 1914 Crop Will Break All Records.

Washington, June 10.—The greatest wheat crop ever grown in the United States in one year, amounting to almost half the total world's production, is the prospective yield for the year 1914, according to official figures just announced by the department of agriculture in its June crop report.

The report shows that the estimated crop of spring wheat will amount to 262,000,000 bushels from 17,990,000 acres of land, and the winter crop will approximate 638,000,000 bushels. The total production is estimated at 900,000,000 bushels of wheat, or 136,000,000 bushels of wheat more than was ever grown in the United States in one year.

The condition of the spring wheat crop at the time of making the report was given at 59.5 per cent, with an indicated yield of 14.6 bushels an acre. The condition of the winter wheat was given at 92.7, with a probable yield of 18.1 bushels an acre.

WANTS U. S. SCHOOL SUBSIDY

Representative Says It Will Remove All Illiteracy.

Washington, June 10.—A federal subsidy of 3 cents a day per pupil to every public school teacher in the United States was advocated before the house education committee by Representative Park of Georgia.

Mr. Park said that if the bill is enacted it will remove all the illiteracy in the United States, contending that public school teachers are too poorly paid to teach properly.

ROD AND REEL

Some good catches of pickerel have been made at Split Rock pond this season and some good bass fishing is predicted when the season opens next Monday morning.

Flounders continue to hold their own in the waters along Long Island. Two local fishermen were out from Wreck Lead on Sunday, and brought in thirty-nine flounders and fourteen blackfish. The flounders were of a good size, none of them running below the half-pound mark. The blackfish were small, the heaviest weighing about a pound and a half.

The record pickerel, which was caught several days ago by William Kunz, of Orange, and which weighed twelve and a quarter pounds, measured 37 1-2 inches in length. But what it lacked in length it more than made up in bulk. The body was about six inches square, just back of the head, and this bulk continued all the way through until just before the tail was reached, where there was a slight tapering.

The channel bass are in at Corson's Inlet, as was predicted in this column a week ago. Two were taken on Monday, the largest going to fifty-one pounds. Kingfish are also plentiful, and some good sport can be had with these gamy little fish.

Fishermen have been having some enjoyable sport with the pickerel in Beaver Lake. They bagged a big mess of them at that place on Saturday, and one went to four and a half pounds.

The use of shrimp as fish bait is about the extent of knowledge we of this section have of the dainty morsel. It is not generally known that 300,000 cases, valued at $1,000,000, were shipped from canneries along the Gulf of Mexico in the States of Louisiana and Mississipi. The supply is far below the demand, and the Japanese have developed an industry along this line that is fast assuming the proportions of their wonderful canned crab industry. The first shrimp were canned in this country in 1875, at Barataria Bay, a large body of shallow water south of New Orleans. The fishing is from about February 15 to May 15 and during September and November. Dried shrimp form a large part of the Chinese diet in the Far East, and now the Chinese in New Orleans are drying and packing them for market. An average of 5,000 barrels are sold each year, having a value of $250,000. One hundred pounds of green shrimp will produce thirteen pounds of cleaned and dried shrimp and thirteen pounds of heads and shells for fertilizer.

BOUND BROOK BOY A COLLEGE CAPTAIN

Richardson Elected to Lead Rutgers on the Courts Next Year.

At a meeting of the members of the varsity tennis team of Rutgers College Tuesday afternoon, Roy M. D. Richardson, of Bound Brook, was chosen captain for the season of 1915. Richardson has played on the team for the past two season and is at present the only varsity member from the Senior class. His specialty is doubles. In partnership with David B. Van Dyck, of Greenville, N. Y., he has played and won many matches for Rutgers. This is the second big honor bestowed on the Bound Brook boy in the past three weeks, as he was recently elected Editor-in-Chief of the Targum, the weekly student publication of the college.

Chester Wells, another Bound Brook boy, was also a member of the Rutgers team this year. Wells played singles on the second court and also participated in several doubles matches. He is one of the best players in college and is assured of a position on the team next season.

MISS WILDEY AND PARTNER VICTORS IN FIRST ROUND

Philadelphia, June 9.—New York players made an excellent showing today in the women's singles and doubles national championships on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket Club at Wissahickon Heights. Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer was the only New York player to be defeated in the singles. She won her way into the second round by defeating Miss M. E. Wilcox, but failed to maintain her form against Mrs. Willard Sullivan of Richmond, Va., who won in straight sets after a hard battle. Miss Claire Cassel played a good game, as did Mrs. Edward Raymond. The latter won the singles, doubles, and mixed doubles Eastern States titles last week.

In the first round of the doubles championship Miss Edna Wildey, of this city, and Mrs. Edward Raymond, of New York, defeated Miss Willie Chester and Mrs. G. H. Henry, Philadelphia, 6-0, 6-2.

BASEBALL NOTES

The Phillies are doing fine work in the field and at bat, but are weak in the pitching department.

The Kearney team, pennant winner in 1913, is a bad last in the Nebraska State League championship race.

It is said the Federal League has offered Umpire Rigler of the National League, $6,000 a year for three years to join their circuit.

Guy Cooper and Walter Tolson, two young pitchers from the Virginia League, have been signed by the Boston American League Club.

Mike Balenti, ex-Brown and member of the Chattanooga Southern League team, is out of the game for the season because of a broken leg.

Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics has signed "Dad" Moulton, a Boston High School pitcher. Connie seldom overlooks a promising schoolboy player.

The National League seems to have it on the American League in the matter of sluggers, having nearly twice as many hitters in the .300 class.

Manager Callahan of the White Sox, is trying to trade Harry Lord for a second baseman. As Lord insists he has retired from the game big league managers are a little shy in dealing with the Sox boss.

Umpire "Silk" O'Loughlin has designed a new mask with ear muffs attached for his own use. "Silk" has grown tired of so much loose chatter on the ball field, hence the ear muffs.

In Carl Ray the Winston-Salem team of the North Carolina League has a pitcher who looks to be headed for fast company. Ray has won ten straight games this season, and is still going.

Recent batting averages show the Brooklyn Superbas with the largest number of .300 hitters in the big show. McCarthy, Dalton, Elberfeld and Daubert are the Superbas' representatives in the charmed circle.

Two cast-offs of the Giants, "Red" Ames and "Doc" Crandall, are pitching excellent ball this season. Ames is doing his share in keeping Cincinnati in the running and Crandall is winning his games for the St. Louis Feds.

Baseball history for young ball tossers. Sam Crawford, Detroit's star clouter and leading batsman in the American League, will be thirty-four years old next August and is playing his fifteenth consecutive season in major league company. Clean living is the answer.

COULON KNOCKED OUT.

Vernon, Cal., June 10—Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion of the world, lost his title last night to "Kid" Williams, of Baltimore, who knocked him out with a stiff right-hand punch to the chin in the third round of their twenty-round contest. The fighting was all Williams' own from the start. Coulon seemed to be unable to solve the problem of landing anywhere in the short interval of the first two rounds, and was saved at the close of the second round only by the timely ringing of the bell.

Some Cookery Suggestions

FRUIT AND NUT SALAD.

LIGHT and wholesome foods for warm weather are salads combined with nuts. The fruits serve to cool the blood, while the nuts supply the nourishment required by the system. Any nuts are available in the making of salads, but English walnuts are most generally used for the purpose.

Nutritious Salads.

Prune and Walnut Salad.—Take half a pound of prunes and half a pound of walnut meats, one head of lettuce and half a cupful of French dressing. Soak the prunes in cold water overnight; then let them simmer till tender. Cool them and take out the stones. Arrange the nuts, meats and prunes on lettuce leaves or watercress and pour the dressing over them.

Mixed Fruit and Nut Salad.—Combine the pulp of one grapefruit, one orange, one-half pineapple or two apples with one-half teacupful of chopped nuts, preferably walnuts and pecans. Serve in glasses with slightly sweetened whipped cream to which a pinch of salt has been added. Garnish with two or three candied cherries on the top of each glass.

To Tempt the Appetite.

Combination Salad.—Remove the stones from some dates, cut in two lengthwise and put in a thin strup. The nuts should be left in sherry or grape juice a night, then skinned and cut into thin slices. Line a salad bowl with leaves of lettuce which have been washed and dried. Upon these lay slices of apple, peeled and cored, and upon the apple another layer of lettuce leaves, then slices of orange. When the bowl is nearly full drop in the dates and screen with the slices of nuts. Decorate with little mounds of whipped cream. Send to table with a dish of halved oranges and a bowl of powdered sugar.

A Handsome Salad.

Brazil Nut and Fruit Salad.—Take a half dozen bananas, two oranges, six Brazil nuts, a bunch of chervil, watercress, nicely picked, washed and dried, and the petals of roses. Skin the bananas and cut into slices lengthwise; then arrange them around a salad bowl. Peel the oranges and cut into rounds, removing all pips.

Arrange these upon the banana slices and place bits of watercress and sprigs of chervil here and there. When all are nicely arranged make a mound in the center of sliced Brazil nuts, fill the center with slices of orange, slices of nuts, half blanched and split almonds and then cover the side with a thin orange jelly made with gelatin and screen the whole with whipped cream. Decorate with watercress.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Tea Party For the Pekinese Dog.

JACK and Evelyn had met the smallest dog they had ever seen that afternoon. Of course when daddy came home they told him about it.

"He was so cunning," said Evelyn.

"Yes," said Jack, "and he was all fixed up in a little brown coat which exactly matched his own brown coat."

"Was he a little Chinese dog?" asked daddy.

"Yes," replied Evelyn; "we couldn't help but stop and talk to his mistress, and she told us he was a little Chinese dog. She also told us that he had his full growth, and that certainly was very little."

"That reminds me," said daddy, "of the story I have meant to tell you for some time of the little Pekinese dog who was given a tea party in honor of his first birthday by his mistress.

"Chung Wang was his name, and it was his first birthday. His mistress' name was Edith, and she was more devoted to little Chung Wang than to almost anything else, and he was just as fond of her. He would follow her around wherever she went.

"But to continue about his birthday party. He was one whole year old, and, of course, he must have a birthday party. So Edith thought a tea party would be the very nicest kind. Besides, Chung Wang had always seemed to like tea better than any other meal.

"So for that reason Edith thought to give Chung Wang a party all for himself and to have it a tea party would be quite the nicest thing she could do in honor of his first birthday.

"Edith invited a few of her friends who owned little dogs to come to the party. When they came in all the other little dogs carried in their mouths presents for Chung Wang. One brought a beautiful flower, which was fastened to his collar. Another little dog brought a new red sweater, still another brought a cushion for Chung Wang to sleep on.

"Chung Wang barked his 'Thank you!' each time Edith opened the parcels for him, and then the other dogs wagged their tails, which meant, 'You're very welcome.'

"And then the tea table was brought in with a big cake in the center upon which was burning brightly a tall red candle.

"All the little dogs barked some more. They wanted to say 'Many happy returns of the day.'

"But how they all did enjoy the tea party! First they had little saucers with cream, a little sugar and a drop of tea all mixed up together. Then they had little chunks of buttered toast with sugar on the top. Then they all had several little cakes, and each got a piece of birthday cake."

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

THE PROGRESS OF THE CAUSE.

The Biennial Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs which is now in progress in Chicago represents an enrollment of 1,000,000 women; 6,000 clubs; 48 State Federations. One whole session will be devoted to a discussion of suffrage; among the speakers at the evening banquet will be Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the International Suffrage Association, Miss Jane Addams First Vice-President of the National Suffrage Association, Mrs. Desha Breckenridge, its Second Vice-President, Mrs. Grace W. Trout, President of the Illinois Suffrage Association, and Miss Sophronisba Breckenridge, Vice-President of the Illinois Suffrage Association. Mrs. Catt will speak on "The Progress of Women" at one of the evening sessions.

A significant feature of the May ninth celebration in Washington, was the line of twenty-five prominent Senators and Congressmen who acted as a Redemption Committee at the Capital, standing in the rotunda and greeting most cordially the delegations which had come from forty-eight States to present 583 petitions asking Congress to vote upon the woman suffrage amendment to the National Constitution. Only a few of these men came from equal suffrage States, and one and all they assured the suffragists that they were going to continue doing all in their power for the passage of the amendment.

At the close of a debate arranged by the Trenton Anti-Suffragists at a little place near Columbus, N. J., on June third, at which Mrs. Oliphant and Mrs Feickert spoke, Mrs. Feickert organized the Woman Suffrage Committee, of Columbus, chairman, Mrs. C. S. Ridgway.

The Street Railway Men's Union, of Providence, R. I., has come out strong for the passage of the act now before the General Assembly of that State giving women the right to vote in presidential elections. In a letter sent to Senator Wilbour the railway men say: "Perhaps it would be well to inform you that this question of equal political rights is an established doctrine on which 99,000 members of our organization stand indivisible." This is in line with the action of the Building Trades Union of New Jersey, which passed unanimously a motion in favor of woman suffrage at its recent annual convention in Camden. This organization has a membership of 25,000 and its president is Mr. Cosgrove, of Elizabeth.

The Lower House of the Danish Parliament has just passed an act to give the women of Denmark the same political rights as the men of that country.

Sir Conan Doyle has been widely misquoted on the suffrage situation in England since his arrival in New York a few days ago. A Boston paper quotes him as saying that he supposes it is a hopeless task to try to correct the false impressions which have been given of his attitude toward suffrage, and that he said practically nothing which was credited to him. Lady Doyle is not a suffragist, but she told the reporters that it took a great deal of courage to leave her three boys at home and come to this country for a tour of several months. Now that she has summoned courage to leave her home and children for so long for a pleasure trip, we may hope that she may be brave enough and find time enough to take fifteen minutes a year to vote.

Vice-President Marshall claims that he decides questions according to the views of his wife and that Mrs. Marshall is, therefore, represented politically without having a vote of her own. This is hard on Mrs. Marshall, but it is part of the double responsibility which the anti-suffragists thrust on women. The suffragists feel that women should decide political questions for themselves, but the antis insist that they shall decide questions for their husbands also. The enfranchisement of the women of New Jersey next year will mean the halving of this burden for the women of our State.

The Moorestown Anti-Suffrage organization has recently been formed, and in the article telling of its formation the Antis said that they were supported by the seven doctors and two druggists of the town. A mare suffragist has written to the paper that if it took seven doctors and the drugs from two durgstores to bring the anti club to life, it is probable that the two undertakers of the town are waiting expectantly for a call.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

8160

For sports wear, there is nothing quite as comfortable and practical as the middy blouse. This design, No. 8160, shows a kimono shoulder, the back extending over the fronts to form one of the new yokes which appear in so many frocks and blouses this season. This waist may be made of heavy linen, duck or serge if it is intended for sports wear; it is quite a fad to make them up in colored silks to wear with tailored suits. Another feature of this design, which makes it perhaps a little more dressy than the regular middy, is the low-hung stitched belt. If white serge were used, collar and cuffs would be effective made of black satin. White bone buttons extending down the front would add another pleasing note. To make this waist in size 36, 2⅝ yards of 36-inch material are needed. The pattern is cut in seven sizes, 30 to 42.

This is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

THE NOTORIOUS JUMPING FROG OF CALAVERAS COUNTY

By Mark Twain

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. The choice of Owen Johnson was "The Notorious Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," by Mark Twain, whose complete works are published by Messrs. Harper & Brothers.

MARK TWAIN

OWEN JOHNSON

IN compliance with the request of a friend of mine who wrote from the east, I called on good natured, garrulous old Simon Wheeler and inquired after my friend's friend, Leonidas W. Smiley, as requested to do, and I hereunto append the result. I have a lurking suspicion that Leonidas W. Smiley is a myth; that my friend never knew such a personage, and that he only conjectured that if I asked old Wheeler about him it would remind him of his infamous Jim Smiley, and he would go to work and bore me to death with some exasperating reminiscence of him as long and as tedious as it should be useless to me. If that was the design it succeeded.

I found Simon Wheeler dozing comfortably by the barroom stove of the dilapidated tavern in the decayed mining camp of Angel's, and I noticed that he was fat and baldheaded and had an expression of winning gentleness and simplicity upon his tranquil countenance. He roused up and gave me good day. I told him a friend of mine had commissioned me to make some inquiries about a cherished companion of his boyhood, named Leonidas W. Smiley, Rev. Leonidas W. Smiley, a young minister of the gospel, who he had heard was at one time a resident of Angel's Camp. I added that if Mr. Wheeler could tell me anything about this Rev. Leonidas W. Smiley, I would feel under many obligations to him.

Simon Wheeler backed me into a corner and blockaded me there with his chair and then sat down and reeled off the monotonous narrative which follows this paragraph. He never smiled, he never frowned, he never changed his voice from the gentle flowing key to which he tuned his initial sentence, he never betrayed the slightest suspicion of enthusiasm, but all through the interminable narrative there ran a vein of impressive earnestness and sincerity which showed me plainly that, so far from his imagining that there was anything ridiculous or funny about his story, he regarded it as a really important matter and admired its two heroes as men of transcendent genius in finesse. I let him go on in his own way and never interrupted him once.

"Rev. Leonidas W.—h'm—Rev. Le—Well, there was a feller here once by the name of Jim Smiley in the winter of '49, or maybe it was the spring of '50, I don't recollect exactly somehow, though what makes me think it was one or the other is because I remember the big flume warn't finished when he first come to the camp. But anyway he was the curiousest man about always betting on anything that turned up you ever see if he could get anybody to bet on the other side, and if he couldn't he'd change sides. Any way that suited the other side would suit him. Just so's he got a bet he was satisfied.

"But still he was lucky, uncommon lucky. He most always come out winner. He was always ready and laying for a chance. There couldn't be no solit'ry thing mentioned but that feller'd offer to bet on it and take any side you please, as I was just telling you. If there was a horse race you'd find him flush or you'd find him busted at the end of it; if there was a dog fight he'd bet on it; if there was a cat fight he'd bet on it; if there was a chicken fight he'd bet on it. Why, if there was two birds setting on a fence he would bet you which one would fly first, or if there was a camp meeting he would be there reg'lar to bet on Parson Walker, which he judged to be the best exhorter about here, and so he was, too, and a good man.

"If he even see a straddle bug start to go anywheres he would bet you how long it would take him to get to—to wherever he was going to, and if you took him up he would foller that straddle bug to Mexico but what he would find out where he was bound for and how long he was on the road. Lots of the boys here has seen that Smiley and can tell you about him. Why, it never made no difference to him—he'd bet anything—the dangest feller. Parson Walker's wife laid very sick once for a good while, and it seemed as if they warn't going to save her. But one morning he came in, and Smiley up and asked him how she was, and he said she was consid'able better, thank the Lord for his inf'nit mercy, and coming on so smart that, with the blessing of Prov'dence, she'd get well yet. And Smiley before he thought says, 'Well, I'll resk $2.50 she don't anyway.'

"Thish yer Smiley had a mare—the boys called her the fifteen minute nag, but that was only in fun, you know, because, of course, she was faster than that—and he used to win money on that horse, for all she was so slow and always had the asthma or the distemper or the consumption or something of that kind. They used to give her two or three hundred yards' start and then pass her under way, but always at the fag end of the race she'd get excited and desperate-like and come cavorting and straddling up and scattering her legs around limber, sometimes in the air and sometimes out to one side amongst the fences and kicking up m-o-r-e dust and raising m-o-r-e racket with her coughing and sneezing and blowing her nose, and always fetch up at the stand just about a neck ahead, as near as you could cipher it down.

"And he had a little small bull pup that to look at him you'd think he warn't worth a cent but to set around, look ornery and lay for a chance to steal something. But as soon as money was up on him he was a different dog. His underjaw'd begin to stick out like the fo'castle of a steamboat, and his teeth would uncover and shine like the furnaces. And a dog might tackle him and bullyrag him and bite him and throw him over his shoulder two or three times, and Andrew Jackson—which was the name of the pup—Andrew Jackson would never let on but what he was satisfied and hadn't expected nothing else and the bets being doubled and doubled on the other side all the time till the money was all up, and then all of a sudden he would grab the other dog jest by the j'int of his hind leg and freeze to it, not chaw, you understand, but only just grip and hang on till they throwed up the sponge, if it was a year.

"Smiley always come out winner on that pup till he harnessed a dog once that didn't have no hind legs, because they'd been sawed off in a circular saw, and when the thing had gone far enough, and the money was all up, and he come to make a snatch for his pet holt, he seen in a minute how he'd been imposed on and how the other dog had him in the door, so to speak, and he 'peared surprised, and then he looked sorter discouraged-like and didn't try no more to win the fight, and so he got shucked out bad. He give Smiley a look as much as to say his heart was broke, and it was his fault, for putting up a dog that hadn't no hind legs for him to take holt of, which was his main dependence in a fight, and then he limped off a piece and laid down and died. It was a good pup, was that Andrew Jackson, and would have made a name for himself if he'd lived, for the stuff was in him and he had genius. I know it, because he had no opportunities to speak of, and it don't stand to reason that a dog could make such a fight as he could under them circumstances if he hadn't no talent. It always makes me feel sorry when I think of that last fight of his'n and the way it turned out.

"Well, this yer Smiley had rat tarriers and chicken cocks and tomcats and all them kind of things till you couldn't rest, and you couldn't fetch nothing for him to bet on but he'd match you. He ketched a frog one day and took him home and said he cal'lated to educate him, and so he never done nothing for three months but set in his back yard and learn that frog to jump. And you bet he did learn him too. He'd give him a little punch behind, and the next minute you'd see that frog whirling in the air like a doughnut—see him turn one summerset or maybe a couple, if he got a good start, and come down flatfooted and all right, like a cat. He got him up so in the matter of ketching flies and kep' him in practice so constant that he'd nail a fly every time as fur as he could see him.

"Smiley said all a frog wanted was education and he could do most anything, and I believe him. Why, I've seen him set Dan'l Webster down here on this floor—Dan'l Webster was the name of the frog—and sing out, 'Flies, Dan'l, flies!' And quicker'n you could wink he'd spring straight up and snake a fly off'n the counter there and flop down on the floor ag'in as solid as a gob of mud and fall to scratching the side of his head with his hind foot, as indifferent as if he hadn't no idea he'd been doing any more'n any frog might do. You never see a frog so modest and straightfor'ard as he was, for all he was so gifted. And when it come to fair and square jumping on a dead level he could get over more ground at one straddle than any animal of his breed you ever see. Jumping on a dead level was his strong suit, you understand, and when it come to that Smiley would ante up money on him as long as he had a red. Smiley was monstrous proud of his frog, and well he might be, for fellers that had traveled and been everywheres all said he laid over any frog that ever they see.

"Well, Smiley kep' the beast in a little lattice box, and he used to fetch him downtown sometimes and lay for a bet. One day a feller—a stranger in the camp he was—come acrost him with his box and says:

"'What might it be that you've got in the box?'

"And Smiley said, sorter indifferent-like, 'It might be a parrot, or it might be a canary maybe, but it ain't—it's only just a frog.'

"And the feller took it and looked at it careful and turned it around this way and that and says: 'H'm! So 'tis. Well, what's he good for?'

"'Well,' Smiley says, easy and careless, 'he's good enough for one thing, I should judge. He can outjump any frog in Calaveras county.'

"The feller took the box again and took another long, particular look and give it back to Smiley and says very deliberate, 'Well, I don't see no p'ints about that frog that's any better'n any other frog.'

"'Maybe you don't,' Smiley says. 'Maybe you understand frogs, and maybe you don't understand 'em. Maybe you've had experience, and maybe you ain't only a amateur, as it were. Anyways I've got my opinion, and I'll resk $40 that he can outjump any frog in Calaveras county.'

"And the feller studied a minute and then says kinder sad-like, 'Well, I'm only a stranger here, and I ain't got no frog, but if I had a frog, I'd bet you.'

"And then Smiley says: 'That's all right: that's all right. If you'll hold my box a minute I'll go and get you a frog.' And so the feller took the box and put up his $40 along with Smiley's and set down to wait.

"So he sat there a good while thinking and thinking to hisself, and then he got the frog out and pried his mouth open and took a teaspoon and filled him full of quail shot, filled him pretty near up to his chin and set him on the floor. Smiley he went to the swamp and slopped around in the mud for a long time, and finally he ketched a frog and fetched him in and give him to this feller and says:

"'Now, if you're ready set him alongside of Dan'l, with his forepaws just even with Dan'l's, and I'll give the word.' Then he says, 'One—two—three—git!' And him and the feller touched up the frogs from behind and the new frog hopped off lively, but Dan'l give a heave and hysted up his shoulders so, like a Frenchman, but it warn't no use, he couldn't budge. He was planted as solid as a church, and he couldn't no more stir than if he was anchored out. Smiley was a good deal surprised, and he was disgusted, too, but he didn't have no idea what the matter was, of course.

"The feller took the money and started away, and when he was going out at the door he sorter jerked his thumb over his shoulder, so at Dan'l, and says again, very deliberate, 'Well,' he says, "I don't see no p'ints about that frog that's any better'n any other frog.'

"Smiley he stood scratching his head and looking down at Dan'l a long time, and at last he says, 'I do wonder what in the nation that frog throw's off for! I wonder if there ain't something the matter with him! He 'pears to look mighty baggy somehow.' And he ketched Dan'l by the nap of the neck and hefted him and says, 'Why, blame my cats, if he don't weigh five pound!' and turned him upside down, and he belched out a double handful of shot. And then he see how it was, and he was the maddest man. He set the frog down and took out after the feller, but he never ketched him, and"—

(Here Simon Wheeler heard his name called from the front yard and got up to see what was wanted. Turning to me as he moved away, he said, "Just set where you are, stranger, and rest easy. I ain't goin' to be gone a second."

But, by your leave, I did not think that a continuation of the history of the enterprising vagabond, Jim Smiley, would be likely to afford me much information concerning the Rev. Leonidas W. Smiley, and so I started away.

At the door I met the sociable Wheeler returning, and he buttonholed me and recommenced:

"Well, this yer Smiley had a yaller one eyed cow that didn't have no tail, only jest a short stump like a bannanner, and"—

However, lacking both time and inclination, I did not wait to hear about the afflicted cow, but took my leave.

Proclamation

BOROUGH OF NORTH PLAINFIELD.

Whereas numerous complaints have been made concerning dogs running at large in violation of an ordinance of the Borough concerning dogs:

Now therefore, I, by the authority vested in me, do order and direct by public notice, that no dog shall be allowed to leave the premises of the person owning or entitled to the custody of such dog, unless securely confined upon a leash and accompanied by a person over the age of twelve years.

HOSPITAL BOARD ELECTS

realize their moral obligation to make good their pledge.

"The governors and the public at large must not grow weary of the constant reminder of the hospital's needs. What is this work being done for? Certainly it is not for the sake of the individuals who are giving their time and labor to the welfare of the institution, but simply for humanity's sake. It is only the intimate knowledge of the needs of the institution which brings to our minds from time to time the ease with which all features of the hospital could be made more satisfactory, if the amount of money were at hand to create these improvements. I believe that there will come a day, when further gifts on the part of the public in the way of contributions and endowments will make it possible to have Muhlenberg Hospital more efficient than ever before. Our endowment fund has been slow to increase, and the more that can be done to win the affection and interest of our citizens the greater will be the possibilities of funds being directed to our treasury.

"It is appreciated that the Women's Auxiliary Board has shown a keen interest in the affairs of the hospital during the past year. There is much more important work which many women of this board are doing which goes along week by week, and month by month without special notice. It has been an advantage to have the representatives of the auxiliary board members of our governing board, and present at the meetings of the executive committee. Knowledge of the service rendered by our institution can best be gained by those women of Plainfield who are willing to give time and thought to this charitable work.

"The training school committee, in operation during the past year only, has done much effective work. This is a most important committee, working in hearty co-operation with the executive committee and the directress of nurses, will bring the standard of efficiency on the part of our training school to a better condition than ever before.

"The graduating exercises of the Hospital Training School occurred on the evening of May 21, at the Hartridge Auditorium, when the following nurses received their diplomas: Susan Curtis Whitney, Ruth Kenny, Gertrude E. Tabbert, Anna Louise Connant, Mary Katherine Kyle, Sarah M. Nevins, Mary Isabelle Scott, Margaret Penn, Norah D. Abbe.

"The building committee for the new year will have the gratification of completing the children's ward and alterations in the administration buildings as planned during the campaign.

"I am sure the fund still remaining for these expenditures will be used wisely. It is sincerely hoped that in the near future it will be possible to create at the hospital, a new and modern up-to-date kitchen, as we cannot give the proper food service to the patients unless the required facilities are at hand.

"The hospital records show the work of the past year to be as follows, with comparison of the work done of the previous year:

"Total number of patients admitted 1913-14, 1253; total number of patients admitted 1912-13, 1,025; increase of patients, 228.

"Total number of hospital days 1913-14, 18,109; total number of hospital days 1912-13, 14,277; increase of days, 2,832.

"Total number of visits to dispensary 1913-14, 2,595; total number of visits to dispensary 1912-13, 2,827; decrease of visits, 232.

"This decrease is due to the fact that in the reorganization of the out-patient department greater care has been exercised to see that only worthy cases receive treatment. The Charity Organization Society has given important aid in this regard.

"Total number of patients treated in all departments 1913-14, 2,165; total number of patients treated in all departments 1912-13, 1,864; increase of patients treated, 301.

"Total number of operations performed in the hospital 1913-14, 1,065; total number of operations performed in the hospital 1912-13, 957; increase of operations, 108.

"The diseases and injuries treated in the different departments are as follows: Medical, 358 cases; surgical, 784 cases; eye, ear, nose and throat, 464 cases; contagious, 75 cases. Operations performed: General surgical, 610 cases; eye, ear, nose and throat, 455 cases. There has been since the opening of the obstetrical building, twenty women cared for there, resulting in fifteen births and five still born.

"The establishment of a dental clinic by the Plainfield Dental Society in the out-patient department of the hospital, has shown very satisfactory results. During the last year this clinic has been held on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 3 until 6 p. m, with an average of from six to eight patients.

"The foregoing figures demonstrate the fact that the work of the hospital is increasing, which is encouraging to those who direct its management for renewed effort to make the hospital a greater blessing to the community than ever before.

"I wish to thank each governor, and all those who have rendered service, for their cordial support given to me during my term of office."

WILBUR PETITION IN CIRCULATION

Local Freeholder Starts Campaign for Republican Nomination for Sheriff.

WRIGHT VS. CALVERT

Popular County Clerk to Have Sheriff as Opponent in Primary—Prominent Signers of Calvert Petition.

The contest for the shrievalty nomination on the Republican ticket has been further enlivened by the appearance of Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur's petition. He was mentioned as a possibility some time ago in the Daily Press, but little credence was given his reported candidacy until the petition was placed in circulation. His home being in this city, friends believe that he will poll a large vote throughout the county against the three Elizabeth aspirants.

Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur
(Seeks Shrievalty nomination.)

Mr. Wilbur has been a member of the Board of Freeholders from this city for the past eight years, succeeding the late Captain Hubbard, who was director of the Board at the time of his death. Mr. Wilbur was first appointed by the Common Council and has been re-elected to the office each time since. It is said that he has the support of many of the Board members as individuals in his candidacy.

James C. Calvert
(Seeks re-election as County Clerk.)

County Clerk James C. Calvert, who is seeking the Republican nomination for re-election, has his petitions in circulation in every municipality in the county. Charles W. It was reported that seven new branches were organized during twenty-one days in May and other branches are now being formed. The membership of the local branch is more than one thousand and is constantly increasing. On account of the increased amount of work it was decided to have two secretaries, a recording and corresponding. The treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand, although no special efforts have been made to raise funds, outside of two bridge parties and in that case the profits were sent to the State organization. F. W. GODDARD HEADS LOCAL COMEDY CLUB

Amateur Organization Selected Officers Last Night—Had a Prosperous Year.

Frederick W. Goddard was chosen last night at the annual meeting of the Comedy Club of Plainfield, as the president of the organization for the year 1914-1915. The meeting was held at the Park Club. Mr. Goddard succeeds Brown Rolston, who has held the office for the past two years, and under whose leadership the club has developed rapidly into one of the best amateur dramatic organizations in the State. Henry L. McGee was re-elected as vice-president; Dr. F. E. DuBois as secretary; Leslie R. Fort as treasurer, and Alson M. Abbott as business manager. On the executive committee will be the five officers, Mr. Rolston, Hugh Jarvis, Robert H. Cox and Maxwell E. Perkins. A vote of thanks was passed, extending to Mr. Rolston the congratulations of the other members upon the success of the club under his leadership.

For the nominating committee for 1915, Mrs. Brown Rolston, Dewitt Brokaw and Charles P. Titsworth were selected. Two members will be named from the executive committee to assist in this work. Aside from the election of officers routine business was transacted, and a plan was discussed for strengthening the club next year in such a way that there will be no necessity for a public sale of tickets for the annual performance at the Plainfield Theatre. To work out the details of this plan the retiring president, Mr. Rolston, a few days ago appointed a committee drawn from the active and associate members, who will take the matter in charge. This committee consists of Charles W. McCutchen, O. T. Waring, Robert H. Cox; Maxwell E. Perkins, Wilbur H. Rogers, Mr. Goddard and Mr. Rolston. It is hoped that two hundred and fifty associate members will be procured, there being about twohundred at the present time, and forty-five active members.

The club was reported as being on a sound financial footing, there being a substantial balance in the bank after all of the year's bills were paid. Copies of the constitution and the treasurer's report will be mailed to all members within a few days.

SUDDEN DEATH OF GEORGE BALL

Well Known Lawyer Passes Away at His Home in Scotch Plains.

PRACTICED LAW HERE

Was Admitted to Bar in 1897 and Passed Counselor's Examination in 1900—Survived by a Mother, Sister and Brother.

George Ball, aged about forty-five years, widely known in this section and throughout the county as a lawyer, died suddenly at his home on Front street, Scotch Plains, this morning from heart trouble. Although he had been in poor health for the past three months, his general condition was not considered serious. Early this morning he complained of severe pains about the heart and he passed away suddenly about 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. Ball was a native of Scotch Plains, where he always resided. He was admitted to the Bar in November 1897 as an attorney and passed his councilor's examination in 1900. He was also an advisory Master in Chancery. After his admission to the Bar Mr. Ball opened an office in Plainfield where he continued the practice of law up to the time of his death. For many years his office was in the First National Bank building, and more recently in the Schwed building.

Mr. Bell was a familiar figure in this city, and while he did not have an extensive court practice, he was very successful in his chosen profession, being employed at various times in the settlement of large estates. He was of a quiet retiring disposition and he had a large number of friends at Scotch Plains and this city. In politics Mr. Ball was a staunch Republican, and although he never held public office he was active in working for his party at Scotch Plains.

There survives a mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ball, one sister,, Miss Ball and a brother, Charles Ball. The funeral service and burial will be private.

DESPERATE ITALIAN GETS JAIL SENTENCE

Committed for Sixty Days on Charges Preferred by Two Girls Whom He Annoyed.

Charged with annoying two Italian girls on North avenue on several occasions during the past three weeks, Michael Scarlette, an Italian, was arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court this morning, and sentenced to pay a fine of $20 or be committed to the county jail for a period of sixty days. He will serve the jail sentence.

Scarlett, who recently moved to 1343 North avenue from New York city, was accused by Johanna Parallea and Mary Campi, both of North avenue. They alleged that the Italian had followed them about the city and accosted them. Their testimony was substantiated by a number of witnesses.

When sentenced to jail the defendant became frantic and considerable difficulty was experienced in subduing him. He is a foreigner of the desperate type and bears a long scar on his right check which he says is the result of a bullet wound received in a row. Enroute to police headquarters with Detective Sergeant Flynn the prisoner attempted to rid himself of a razor which he had in his possession but was unsuccessful.

ANTILLA NOW OFF TAMPICO

But It Is Believed She Will Wait Developments Before Landing Arms.

VILLA THREATENS R. R.

His Men Are Said to Have Blown up Trains Running Between Mexico City and Vera Cruz in Order to Prevent Huerta's Escape.

Vera Cruz, June 11., (From A. J. Rorke, Central News Correspondent).—A radiogram from Rear Admiral Mayo this morning stated that the S. S. Antilla had arrived at Tampico but the message did not give any information as to the discharge of her cargo of arms. It is believed that the captain will not make any attempt to unload the ship until he can do so with impunity.

Washington, June 11.—The Steamer Antilla, bearing arms and ammunition for the Constitutionalists, arrived off Tampico today. Officials maintain there is no order to prevent the landing of arms on the arrival of the vessel at the port.

The attitude of the administration toward permitting this landing of arms apparently is in violation of an agreement understood to have been reached by the United States and the Huerta delegates at Niagara Falls.

By the the terms of this agreement no arms were to have been landed for the rebels during the progress of the mediation proceedings.

Secretary Bryan today reiterated that an order is in effect forbidding shipments of munitions of war from United States ports for Mexico, in spite of the fact that custom officials at Galveston yesterday, were reported to have said they were without authority to prevent the trans shipment of arms from the El Sud to a steamer sailing for Tampico.

Practical confirmation of reports that the railroad lines between Mexico City and Vera Cruz were threatened by the Constitutionalists, was received at the State Department today. A number of wrecks of trains attempting to make the trip between the capital and the seaport have been reported to Consul Canada at Vera Cruz. The Mexicans explain these accidents as "washouts," but there have been no heavy rains in the vicinity for months. It is believed by officials here that mines have been exploded under the trains by the rebels, who have threatened to use every means of cutting off Huerta's escape from Mexico City.

San Diego, Cal., June 11, (Via. Wireless from Mazatlan, Mexico).—Heavy firing heard today is believed to indicate that Constitutionalists are advancing for a determined assault. The city is completely invested on the land side and the attack, it is thought will result in the fall of the city. The rebels captured a strategic hill north of the city Tuesday night.

DEMONSTRATED PROPER WAY TO WEAR CORSETS

Addressing a company of about thirty women from the various stores of the city in the parlors of the Queen City Hotel, last night, Dr. Maude L. Dunn, of New York, representing a corset house, gave many valuable suggestions on how to adjust different kinds of corsets on the slender, medium and stout figure. The demonstration was made by Dr. Dunn, assisted by Miss May Hughes upon some of the models from the store of A. E. Force & Co.

It was the opinion of Dr. Dunn that the majority of women wear their corsets too high, not taking time to adjust them so that there is no pressure on the body from the waistline up and firm support for the lower part of the body. A physiology chart was used to impress these facts more firmly on the minds of the audience. After the demonstration ice cream and cake was served.

WANTS CO. TAX BOARD OUSTED

Anderson Would Prefer Charges of Incompetency Against Body.

COLLEGE MATTER CITED

Resolution to Exonerate Mt. St. Mary College From all Blame in Effort to Escape Just Taxation Introduced at Township Meeting.

William de la R. Anderson, chairman of the North Plainfield Township Committee, introduced a resolution at the monthly meeting of the committee, this afternoon, exonerating Mt. St. Mary College from any effort to escape just taxation during the recent controversy between that institution and the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes. The matter in question was brought before the State authorities by the township committee which had levied an assessment of $25,000 on the property and the State Board, sitting at Somerville last week, decided that the college building and five acres of land adjoining, known as "excess land" is taxable This decision was reached under the College and Academy Act The college officials claimed that the building and five acres of land were exempt under the State law, the same as other similar institutions, and this view was finally sustained by the State Board of Taxation.

In his resolution Mr. Anderson flays the Somerset County Tax Board for its failure to comply with the law and suggests that the matter be taken up with the Governor. In an interview with a Daily Press reporter yesterday Mr. Anderson said that every effort would be made to have the present tax board ousted and a competent one substituted. He claims that the action of the Somerset County body was taken willfully in an effort to evade the State laws.

At the hearing held in Somerville Mr. Anderson took occasion to severely criticize the County Board for its "laxity" in the matter. He asserted that the matter was properly brought before the board but that it was never decided in a satisfactory matter.

DRIVER HAS NARROW ESCAPE WHEN AUTO HITS A WAGON

While driving through West Front street in one of W. L. Smalley's delivery wagons yesterday afternoon, Grover Schuck, an employee, had a narrow escape from serious, if not fatal injuries. Schuck was driving west on the thoroughfare when an automobile driven by Herbert Nelson, of Dunellen, crashed into the rear of the wagon sending him head foremost over the horse's back.

The machine was traveling at a pretty lively clip along the street and the impact completely demolished the rear of the butcher wagon. The fact that the horse stood still after the accident was all that saved Schuck from serious injury.

Other federations are expected to take similar action.

Marries Miss Belle Willard In Madrid, Spain.

MANY NOTABLES PRESENT

Religious Ceremony Took Place Today—Spanish Aristocracy and Representatives of All Nations Present at the Nuptials—Brief Honeymoon on the Continent.

Madrid, June 11.—A brilliant gathering of Spanish aristocracy, representatives of the diplomatic corps of all nations and many guests from various countries witnessed the final ceremony of the marriage of Miss Belle Willard, daughter of Joseph E. Willard, American ambassador to Spain, and Kermit Roosevelt, son of Colonel Roosevelt, today. The ceremony which is known as the religious ceremony took place in the Episcopal church in the British embassy grounds.

Colonel Roosevelt and Ambassador Willard were the witnesses today. Owing to the custom in Spain a civil ceremony must precede that of the religious part of the affair.

The civil ceremony was very formal. Kermit Roosevelt and Miss Willard, accompanied by the Duke of Alba and former Minister Osma y Scull, witnesses for the civil ceremony, went to the home of the civil magistrate, near the embassy. After signing the necessary papers the party returned to the American embassy to prepare for the real wedding.

The church where the ceremony took place was decorated with flowers. The American embassy, too, was turned into a pretty bower for the young couple, who held a reception there after the service. The ceremony took place at noon, the Rev. Dr. Watson, rector of the American church in Paris, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Robert Brown, chaplain of the British embassy in Madrid.

Miss Willard was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Willard, as maid of honor; the Princess of Thurn and Taxis, daughter of the German ambassador at Madrid; Miss Katherine Page, daughter of the American ambassador to England; Mlle. Gilono le Vonour de Tilliores of Paris and Miss Virginia Christian of Richmond, Va.

Following the reception at the American embassy Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt started for a brief honeymoon on the continent. They will sail for Brazil, where Mr. Roosevelt is connected with a railroad company. They will make their home at Sao Paulo.

Bride a Favorite in Madrid.

Mr. Roosevelt and his bride met at the Roosevelt home at Oyster Bay when Miss Willard was visiting Miss Ethel Roosevelt, now Mrs. Richard Derby. Miss Willard is twenty-one years old and Mr. Roosevelt twenty-four. Since coming to Madrid with her father Miss Willard has been a favorite in Spanish society. She was presented at the court of St. James' in London before coming to Madrid. Miss Willard made her debut in society at Richmond, Va., two years ago. The family home of the Willards is in Richmond.
